Cancer Clinics In Operation Weekly

Clinics Held Every Friday Afternoon From 1 to 2:30 P. M.

At the February 3rd clinic of the Northeastern Carolina Cancer Detection Center in Elizabeth City, 33 persons appeared for examinations, 26 white women, six white men and one colored woman. Those examined came from the following counties: Pasquotank, 20; Currituck, 5; Perquimans, 1; Chowan, 2; Martin, 2; Bertie, 1; Edgecombe, 1, and Washington, 1.

This cancer center was established by the Division of Cancer Control of the State Board of Health and is conducted by the County Medical Society with the assistance of the women of the community who volunteer to serve as receptionists, nurses and nurses' aides.

The objective of the center is to find the cancers in North Carolina and, having found them, to refer the patients to their personal physicians for recommended treatment.

The examinations are given without cost, and are available to all North Carolinians 35 and over, without regard to race, creed or color. In addition, those who are under 35 are eligible for examination if they have any of the recognized "Danger Signals of Cancer", or when they are referred by their physician.

The Clinics are held every Friday afternoon in the Health Center. Registration is from 1:00 until 2:30 P. M.

Frequently there are more applicants for examination that can be accommodated. Therefore, in order that those who live at a distance may be sure of an examination and thus not make a trip in vain, priorities will be sent on request, to all who live 20 miles or more from Elizabeth City. Address your requests to Cancer Center—Clerk, Health Center, Elizabeth City, and indicate two dates on which you could come for examination.

SPORTS AFIELD

only survive, but abound! If he is a common animal, he possesses uncommon and uncanny equipment to endure, claims Donald Culross Peattie, who is America's most famous writer of natural history.

So let's examine this unusual equipment. First there is the jack's jumping power. A black-tailed jack was seen by one zoologist to jump a 5 1/2-foot "rabbitproof" fence — not driven by fear, but in order to get at crops on the other side. The white-tailed jack will cover 22 feet and four inches at a leap. They will bound on for miles, 15 feet at a bound, 200 hops a minute, says one naturalist. I once clocked one at 35 miles an hour.

And those mulish ears! They're bigger in proportion to his head than a donkey's to its own poll. But he needs every inch of them. Twisting them this way and that, he uses those ears like so many antennae for collecting out of the air sounds which you and I never hear.

Perhaps we should stop and get the jack straight with our zoology. Strictly speaking, he is not a rabbit but a hare. (True rabbits are born blind and naked; the jack comes in a full suit of fur, with eyes wide open). However, in common parlance he is a rabbit and the name wounds only the feelings of a purist.

The jack rabbit is protectively colored, too. In various parts of his vast range, he takes on different hues. But we haven't come to his most wonderful equipment: The ability to live without water. In the west, the desert jack may live a whole rabbit span of existence without tasting free water.

Then there is his amazing nibbling capacity. It is no wonder that he is indicted by ranchers and farmers with a long list of charges. Some estimates have put the damage of these hares to range grasses as one-third the total pasturage and browse. An acre of alfalfa may be cut down in a few nights during years of rabbit abundance.

Probably no shooting except quail shooting, when the quail "bomb" explodes, requires such quick reaction, such split-second marksmanship, as when old Jack unexpectedly bounds out of a bush, and whirls away with antelope speed. And no other shooting of any kind of true game animal can be done with such a free conscience. The sport is great, the flesh is fair eating, the farmer benefits, and there are always more.

R. E. Hopper extended a most cordial invitation to the ladies to meet at "Athol," one of the historical Albemarle Sound plantation homes, and the present quarters aboard the station of Col. and Mrs. Hopper. An invitation was also extended from Mrs. Thomas Wood to have the ladies visit Mulberry Hill in the afternoon following the visit at "Athol." Other invitations were extended to view other historical homes in this vicinity.

For the April meeting the officers' wives were extended an invitation to picnic at "Belvidere," another of the Sound plantation homes, and now occupied by Lt. Col. and Mrs. G. W. Nevills. This home is also aboard the Marine Corps Air Station, and the barn and its grounds in every way lends itself to entertainment and pleasure.
