

Farmers Interested At Swine School

Long Range Agricultural Program Plan Progressing

The long-range agricultural program planning for Chowan County is progressing, says County Agent C. W. Overman. The farmer committees and the executive committee, assisted by Jack Kelley, swine specialist, and J. W. Crawford, program planning specialist, have worked out detailed recommendations for beef cattle and swine. The farmer committee was of inestimable value in stating the many problems facing them in the field of swine and beef cattle production and also, in making suggestions for improved practices.

The swine program was presented to the group at the monthly Farm Bureau meeting held at the Chowan Community Building on Friday night. At this time Jack Kelley conducted a swine school illustrated with projected pictures. Farmers joined in the discussion by asking questions and bringing out points on which they had problems which were not clear. The 4 farmers attending this meeting indicated considerable interest in asking for information by which they might do a better job of hog raising.
