

Down Where The Trade Winds Blow

Hawaii can still mean romance and glamour to most of us. On our first trip down where the trade winds blow, we are thrilled as they who discovered them were thrilled, when they first saw these magic islands of paradise rising out of the sea. To us, on our first trip, Hawaii is a veritable trove of impressive scenery, perfumed incense of varicolored flowers, and silvery moonlit nights shining with golden dreams come true.

But to see Hawaii—the real Hawaii—you must get away from Honolulu, Waikiki Beach and the commercialized tourist spots.

There several inter-Island steamship and airline services that offer opportunities for far-off sightseeing.

Since the Hawaiian Islands in common with most of the islands in the Pacific are of volcanic origin, there are to be found here several active volcanoes and craters. On the Island of Hawaii may be found the craters of Mauna Loa and Mauna Kea and the huge crater of Kilauea, where active molten lava may be seen in terrifying splendor. On the Island of Maui the magnificent extinct of Haleakala, known as the "House of the Sun," rises 9318 feet into the sky. Seeing Hawaii's volcanoes is a "must" for visitors to the Islands.

On these off-trail trips Hawaii offers the traveler many wondrous sights: placid, silvery lagoons; sheer cliffs; deep ravines; lovely waterfalls, and flower-spread verdant valleys of rainbow mist. And the hospitality and friendliness of the natives are most evident in many ways. At the first opportunity you'll be invited to attend a "luau," or native feast. At the luau you sit on mats of Lauhala and Makaloa, and partake of delicacies spread on large pandanus leaves or tapa cloth. There you'll find in abundance succulent roast pig, taro root, poi, fish and fresh fruits prepared in the inimitable Hawaiian manner. At a luau you'll hear the best music the Islands have to offer, and see the native dances performed by the best native artists.

Somewhere on your off-trail tour of the Hawaiian Islands you'll try your skill on the surf-board, ride in an out-rigger canoe, and at dawn, when the tropic sun is just beginning to paint the east, you'll cast your net into the surf. Until you've done these things and seen these things you've never seen Hawaii. And until you have done these things, you'll still be a "malahini," a stranger or newcomer to the Islands, and ineligible to be classed as a "kamaaina," or old-timer.

On the Island of Molokai, although closed to visitors, may be found the famed leper colony, which stands as a monument to the life-long sacrifice and devotion of Father Damien, who founded it. Father Damien himself succumbed to the dread disease which he had spent so many years combating in others. But his work has not been in vain, for soon will rise which will take the place of the original modest buildings, and where will a modern, fully equipped hospital, be put in practice the results of Father Damien's study of the arresting and possible cure of leprosy. Molokai is considered to be the most beautiful of all the Islands; and it is fitting that here in the loveliest spot in the Pacific compassion and beauty should go hand in hand.

Probably by the time this story sees print, Hawaii will have become our 49th State. Rupert Brooke once wrote a poem of the Islands in which was this line: "And new stars burn into ancient skies." And if Hawaii is destined to be admitted to Statehood, truly a brilliant new star will burn in the blue field of Old Glory.

Drunken Driving Cause For 753 Lose License To Drive

Increase Is Shown Over Same Month of Previous Year

Drunken driving was responsible for more revocations of driver's licenses in March than any other one offense. A total of 753 persons were convicted of drunken driving last month in the State as compared with 555 convicted on the same count in March of 1949. Fifty-one of the defendants were convicted on second offense.

Revocations for drunken driving brought to 994 the total of revocations for March. Two hundred and seventy-seven persons had their licenses suspended.

Thirty-four persons were convicted of driving after their licenses were revoked and sixteen after license suspended. One person was found guilty of hit and run charges, involving personal injury, and one hit and run, involving property damage.

Other convictions were as follows: Two offenses of reckless driving, 17; speeding over 75 miles per hour, 45; two offenses of speeding over 55 miles per hour, 21; larceny of automobile, 19; manslaughter, 2; transporting liquor, 43; improper use of operator's license, 1; unsatisfied judgment, 12; incompetency, 4; habitual violator, 8; failure to maintain proof of financial responsibility, 80.

In addition 10,153 persons were found guilty of moving violation, which does not require revocation or suspensions on first offense. Of the number, 7,513 were North Carolinians and 2,640, out-of-state drivers. Speeding topped the list with 3,323 cases. Failure to have driver's license was second with 1,955. Faulty equipment was listed in 862 cases and improper lights in 294. Seventy-six persons were found guilty of passing a school bus, 299 ran through a red light and 119 failed to give right-of-way.
