will throw the first ball.

Colonial officials state also that at Saturday night's game election returns will be broadcast as fast as they are received. It is hoped all candidates will attend the game so that an election stunt can be arranged.

The season's schedule includes 72 games.

Colonial officials are very much encouraged over the fact that the season will start off with a clean slate financially, but they emphasize the fact that they will need no little support in way of attendance in order to keep off the red side of the ledger. They plan to operate on a greatly reduced budget this year and at the same time feel confident that fans will be provided with good and interesting baseball.

Season tickets will be sold, and it is hoped that many fans will purchase them, thereby saving somewhat on their admission and at the same time aiding the ball club to meet expenses at the start of the season.
