

N. C. Cotton Crop Set At 635,000 Bales

New Estimate Up 25,000 Bales Over September Forecast

Prospects for North Carolina's cotton crop have improved since September 1 and the State's lint production is now estimated at 635,000 bales, according to the cooperative Crop Reporting Service of the State and Federal Departments of Agriculture.

The new estimate, based on October 1 conditions, is up 25,000 bales from the September forecast. Such a crop would be 454,000 bales larger than last year's short cotton harvest and 56,000 bales above the 10-year average crop of 579,000 bales.

Lint yields are now estimated at 399 pounds an acre compared with 151 pounds last year and a 10-year average of 369 pounds.

"Favored by good weather during August and September," the Crop Reporting Service stated, "cotton opened much earlier than usual. Growers took full advantage of ideal harvesting conditions during September and picking is well advanced in all areas. Approximately 188,000 bales had been ginned prior to October 1."

For the nation as a whole cotton production is now estimated at 16,931,000 bales, or 360,000 bales below the September forecast.

hibits from all parts of the state.

After taking in the ferris wheel and other rides, we were seniors just long enough to pick out gifts and souvenirs for ourselves and friends back in Edenton.

Finally, stuffed with cotton candy, pop corn, and candy apples we left the fair behind and headed for home. It was a nice ride back, with everyone in a carnival mood, we talked and sang every possible song including popular, classical, Christmas, football and children's songs.

An exhausted and hungry senior class stopped in Bethel to eat and rest, mostly eat. With this reinforcement the remainder of the trip was quite nice and with a happy sigh, we agreed it had been a perfect day and said, "Good-night."

With the fair and homecoming behind us, the senior class has settled down to business and to work again on our year book. The seniors engaged Mr. Stevens of Elizabeth City to take individual photographs for the "Edentonian." Beginning with the senior class on Tuesday, October 30, he has been in Edenton this week taking the students' pictures. With work on ads and photos well underway, much progress has been made on the annual.

Well, I believe you are about up to date on the senior news now but before I go I'd like to wish "Good luck to the Aces from the senior class." As you know they are meeting another strong and favored team tomorrow and will need all our support.

Well, I'll see you next Thursday so, "Bye, now."

Senior Class News

By ANN COFIELD

Hi There !!!

Oh, what a wonderful week-end! Of course, you know all about it but we just can't stop talking about that magnificent homecoming game. The Aces played a superb game and came out on the winning end with an 8-6 score. We are very proud of our team and their triumph over the favored Perquimans Indians. Congrats, fellows !!!

In harmony with a good football game was a good homecoming parade, sponsored by the sophomore class. The parade was very successful and the seniors are happy to have had represented in it, a float prepared by members of the senior class. Our float was a red, white and blue welcome to the alumni.

A very nice parade was topped off by an exhibition of floats during half time of the game when the Sweetheart of the football team was crowned. The band gave a fine performance in the parade and climaxed a thrilling game with a victory march down Hicks Field.

With an entrance in the float contest and the Senior Football Queen Glenn Twiddy, competing for "Sweetheart of Football and Gena Ward for king, the seniors had quite a lively interest in Homecoming.

After the game the senior class sponsored a homecoming dance. With congratulations and with happiness and pride all around, the dance was lots of fun and everyone enjoyed it.

Well, I suppose I've talked enough about the perfect week-end, which you already know and have heard about over and over again, so I'll tell you about how the seniors almost missed it. Really we didn't but about 5 A. M., on October 16, we were sure we would. It was with half-closed eyes and sleepy yawns that the seniors stumbled through the early morning darkness on this day, getting ready for our trip to the State Fair. However, once our crowd had formed, all telling at once of their struggle to open their eyes, we regained our festive mood and by the time we left Edenton we were all happily singing and talking.

When we arrived in Raleigh about ten o'clock we were all ready to take in the fair. First the class saw the many interesting and attractive ex-
