FHA NEWS

By Fay Taylor

Friday of last week the Edenton Chapter of the FHA held a meeting in the Edenton Junior-Senior High Library. It was opened by the president, Margaret Parrish, using the FHA opening ceremony. A short devotion was read by Alma Harvison.

There was a discussion on what to do with FHA money, and it was decided to have open house and invite the mothers instead of having a supper. It will be on the second day of April.

The group sang a number of songs which was very much enjoyed. The meeting was closed by using FHA closing ceremony.

Glee Club To Present "Miss Cherryblossom"

John Henry Smith, a tourist, and the course of their romance makes an intriguing story, which culminates in the happy ending of the traditional operetta.

The Glee Club presents "Miss Cherryblossom" as "a 32 year revival" performance, dedicated to the class of 1921, and takes pleasure in announcing the cast of 1953, with its counterpart of 32 years ago:

Kokemo, (Fred Bond, 1921) Gene Saunders.

"Cherryblossom", (Margaret Williams Cates, 1921) Shirley Winslow.

Togo, (John Privott, 1921) Ben Browning.

John Henry Smith, (Hugh Bland Copeland, 1921) Clifford Overman.

Henry Foster Jones, (Stuart Stephenson, 1921) Tommy Wood.

Jessica, (Sadie Hobbs Hoskins, 1921) Leigh Dobson.

Worthington, (Sidney McMullan, 1921) Bill Gardner.

James, (Aubrey Rice, 1921) Mike Malone.

O-Fun, Caleb White.

There are two choruses, one of Geishas, one of American tourists.

The 1953 version will have a cast of sixty, and is directed by Mrs. Mary L. Browning and Mrs. Alice Belch, with scenery designed and executed by George Gelbach and the Stagecraft Club of the School.

1806-1809. In 1949, during further repairs, the steeple, roof, galleries and organ were destroyed by fire. All interior furnishings and memorials had been removed, and were installed again when the church was rebuilt exactly as it had been before the fire.

Chowan County Court House—E. King St. Open 10 A. M., to 9 P. M.

Built in 1767, probably by Gilbert Leigh, this is considered the finest Georgian court house in the South. It has been in continuous use ever since its completion. The court room is reminiscent of the original Capitol in Williamsburg, burned twenty years before this was built. The beautiful assembly room on the second floor is believed to be the largest paneled room in the Colonies. A chair used by George Washington in the Alexandria Va., Masonic Lodge may be seen in the Masons' room adjoining the assembly room.

The Cupola House—S. Broad St. Open 10 A. M., to 9 P. M.

Built about 1725 by Richard Sanderson, the Cupola House is considered the finest Jacobean type house, south of Connecticut. The interior woodwork (most of it now in the Brooklyn Museum of Fine Arts) was probably added by the last agent of the Lords Proprietors, Francis Corbin, who bought the house in 1756. Since 1921 the house has been used for the Shepard-Proden Memorial Library and a small museum.

The Iredell House—E. Church St. Open 11 A. M., to 4 P. M.

Built in 1759 by John and Judith Wilkins, the original house was bought in 1778 by James Iredell, who added the east end. One of the leading Federalists, he was appointed by Washington an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court. James Wilson, a Pennsylvania signer of the Declaration of Independence, died here while on a visit to the Iredells. The house, which was saved by the Tea Party Chapter of the D.A.R., is now owned by the State and maintained by the James Iredell Historical Association.

The Barker House—S. Broad St. Open 10 A. M., to 6 P. M.

Built probably about 1782 by Thomas and Penelope Barker. Thomas Barker had a long and brilliant career in colonial government and finally became London agent for the Colony during the difficult days before the Revolution. His wife, Penelope, according to tradition, presided over the Edenton Tea Party, October 26, 1774. The resolutions signed at this meeting are the earliest known instance of political activity on the part of women in the American colonies. The house, recently moved to its present site, is now being restored by three civic organizations for use as a community center.
