

Education Pointers For Vets Of Korea

100,000 Service Men Per Month Entering Civilian Life

For the benefit of Korean veterans who are being discharged from the armed forces into civilian life at the rate of about 100,000 per month, the Veterans Administration offered three important pointers for those planning to take education or training under provisions of the Korean GI Bill. These will be of value, VA said, both to veterans who will enroll in summer school courses and those who will take courses starting with the fall semester.

The first point is that the veteran should give careful thought to the program on which he will enter and the vocational or professional goal he aims for. Under the law, he will be permitted only one change of course. A counseling service is provided by the Veterans Administration for those who wish to take advantage of it in choosing the program for which they are best fitted.

As a second point, veterans are cautioned to provide themselves with sufficient cash funds to tide them over the first two months of schooling. Under provisions of the present law, veterans in training cannot expect to receive checks from the Veterans Administration till around the end of the second month in training. They will receive checks to cover each month spent in training and the checks include the tuition costs as well as subsistence. Tuition costs are payable by the veteran himself to the school or training institution.

The third pointer for Korean veterans planning to take GI training is to make sure that the school they plan to attend has been approved for GI training by the State concerned. To avoid loss of time, a veteran should also make sure that the school will accept him for enrollment.

Eligible for the Korean GI training program are veterans who have served anywhere in the world in the U. S. armed forces since June 27, 1950.

SPORTS AFIELD

By Ted Keating

For those of you planning summer camping trips, here are a few suggestions on food by Colonel Townsend Whelen, noted camping authority.

Meats—Fresh meat will keep several days without refrigeration if hung out at night where the cool air will chill it. Bacon, ham, dried beef will keep indefinitely without ice if you keep them wrapped in wax paper away from flies and bugs. There are wonderful selections of canned meat and fish in all grocery shelves nowadays. Fresh eggs will keep for weeks if each is dipped quickly in melted paraffin, or even wiped with a little lard and then wrapped in newspaper to keep them from breaking. Egg powder used alone is no substitute for the fresh article, but is fine when used in breads and puddings, or scrambled with creamed dried beef.

Vegetables—By all means take all the fresh potatoes and onions you wish in an old gunny sack. Lettuce, cabbage, celery, radishes, etc., will keep fresh for weeks wrapped in wax paper or aluminum foil and then in brown paper. Canned corn and tomatoes go fine in camp. A can of cold tomatoes makes a splendid drink in hot weather. Personally, I draw the line at dehydrated vegetables, which cannot compare with the fresh article. TRY A HERALD CLASSIFIED AD tiolate it is so easy to take.

Fruits—Fresh oranges, bananas, lemons and apples are always desirable. The first two will keep well without ice for a couple of weeks and the last two almost indefinitely. Then there are all the dried fruits—apples, prunes, apricots and berries which need only to be stewed and sweetened with sugar.

Breads and Cereals—With a bag of flour and a can of baking powder you can always have fresh bread and biscuits. Self-rising pancake flours are convenient. Many bread and biscuit mixes will be improved with the addition of powdered milk, lard or butter for shortening, and corn meal. Don't hesitate to take along baker's bread which will keep perfectly the first week. Cereals are quicker and easier to prepare than bread and very nutritious substitutes for it—rolled oats, corn meal, hominy grits, etc.

Condiments and Seasonings—Butter keeps all right for weeks if kept reasonably cool; or canned butter is just as good and keeps indefinitely. Salt and pepper of course, and an extra amount if you are going to use salt to preserve skins or the pepper to keep flies from meats. Most campers use the frypan so much that a large can of lard or vegetable shortening is needed. Curry powder is fine for seasoning meats and rice, if used sparingly. Add a jar of mayonnaise dressing so you can have salads. Sweet chocolate comes in fine for lunches.

Ouch!
