Officers Installed For Edenton's BPW Club Last Week

Impressive Candlelight Ceremony Held In Parish House

New officers of the Edenton Business and Professional Women's Club were installed in an impressive candlelight ceremony Tuesday night of last week at a dinner meeting held in the Parish House.

Mrs. Alice Towe, district director, conducted the installation services, followed by the group giving the club pledge and singing the emblem benediction. Mrs. Towe outlined the program and goals for 1953-54, with the theme for the new year being "Prosperity For Freedom." She commended the out-going officers and organization for the fine work done in the district during the past year.

Heading up the organization for the new term are: Mrs. Evelyn Jackson, president; Mrs. Laura Ferguson, first vice president; Mrs. Nora Boyce, second vice president; Mrs. Lena Leary, recording secretary; Mrs. Emma Perkins, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Bertha Bunch, treasurer.

In accepting the new leadership, Mrs. Jackson told the members, "It is a pleasure and honor to be elected president of this club and I am deeply humble for the faith you have in me. I shall try to do my part in making the organization a credit, and I expect you members to do the same by me with your cooperation."

The out-going president, Mrs. Annie Mills, presented the new president and club with a presiding gavel. She thanked the organization for the fine cooperation extended her during her term of office.

Prior to the installation ceremony, a brief business session was held with Mrs. Mills presiding. Invocation was offered by Jack Mooney, after which the guests were recognized. A letter was read from Mrs. Annie Graham, the club's past year Woman of the Year, in which was a $100 check to be applied on the restoration of the Penelope Barker House, a project now being sponsored by the BPW Club along with two other Edenton organizations. A letter was also read from Miss Rebecca Colwell, a past BPW

County And Home Agents Hold Four-day Nags Head Meeting

County and Home Agents of the Eastern and Northeastern Districts attended an Extension Conference at Nags Head on Monday through Thursday of last week. From the standpoint of inspiration, this was probably one of the most successful conferences ever held.

E. L. Sparrow, Director of Education, Dearborn Motors, gave an excellent demonstration on "They Will Buy." In his talk and demonstration Mr. Sparrow explained several important fundamentals in selling ideas to people.

Dr. Dorris D. Brown, Extension Farm Management Specialist, gave a very interesting lecture and demonstration on "Techniques of Learning." D. S. Weaver, Director of the North Carolina Extension Service, talked on "Some Problems Facing Agriculture" and Miss Ruth Current, State Home Demonstration Agent, talked on "Looking Beyond the Horizon." R. W. Shoffner, Assistant Director, made a talk on "The County Extension Agent's Relationship to the District Agent and Specialists." Mr. Shoffner also explained about the new life insurance program which has been created especially for employees of North Carolina State College and the Consolidated University.

C. M. Ferguson, U. S. Director of Extension Service, spoke about department organization and working together. He told the group "Our responsibilities as extension workers are many. We must remember that we are working with farm people, not for them, and not for ourselves."
