Weekly Devotional Column

By JAMES MACKENZIE

Clarence Macartney tells how he went to a cemetery in Geneva to visit the grave of John Calvin. After much searching he finally found it, not far from a wall, covered with grass, shaded by a cypress tree. Marking that great saint's last resting place was a small black stone, hardly a foot high, with the letters "J. C." carved upon it.

Macartney says that his mind wandered across the lake to a spot not far distant where rises the magnificent, costly, pretentious cenotaph of the Duke of Brunswick. But who today, he asks, is the Duke of Brunswick? Who was he then? Who knows? Who cares? But the man whose initials are graven on that humble stone, in keeping with his theology which glorifies God and humbles men, has an influence far greater today even than when he was alive.

John Calvin was one of the most active men who ever lived. When he was only 26 he wrote the greatest work on theology ever penned, comprising three huge volumes. He wrote these in French and translated them into Latin. Though he died at the age of 53 he found time to write commentaries on every book in the Bible, to this day the most exhaustive and scholarly commentaries in print. In addition to this he preached over 300 times a year to the same congregation, most sermons lasting upwards of two hours. But that's not all! He lectured to college students 180 times a year, performed pastoral functions, carried on a tremendous correspondence, and administered the affairs of the city of Geneva. In his spare time he wrote theological pamphlets. Calvin was God's man in God's place at God's time. But circumstance alone is not the measure of greatness, and the secret to success is hard work, for:

A noble life is not a blaze
Of sudden glory won,
But just an adding up of days
In which good work is done.

And the reason God was able to use Calvin in such a remarkable way is that he put that beaky old nose of his to the grindstone and kept it there.

Historians tell us that John Calvin influenced our modern concepts of democracy and individual freedom more than any other man. They say that to understand liberal democracy you must first understand Calvinism. Indeed, the American system of government is patterned after Calvin's system of church government. Further, the very foundation rock of Calvinism is the Scriptural truth that the individual is responsible to God alone, and this is only possible in a democracy. Spanish tyranny in Holland ran aground on the sturdy rocks of Calvinism, and Spain collapsed. The Spanish inquisition was powerless to intimidate Calvinists, though the heartless butchers slaughtered over 50,000 God-fearing Dutchmen in the attempt. As if you could intimidate a man who believes—Romans: 8:28. Stuarts in Scotland, strutting about the divine right of kings, could not dent the solid stand of Calvinism, and freedom won the day in Scotland. Pioneer missionaries of the cross, men like Carey, Judson, Livingstone, were all Calvinists, as have been a good share of our great evangelists.

When the great William Carey, an ardent Calvinist, lay dying, a young co-worker stood by his side praising him. "Speak no more of William Carey," admonished the devout Christian, "but speak of William Carey's God." And therein lies the true secret to the power of Calvinism—it is God-centered, rather than man-centered.

Cotton Is Gradually Squaring In Chowan

Dusted Fields Far Less Damaged Than Those Dusted

In a majority of the fields cotton is about through squaring, according to County Agent C. W. Overman. Where sufficient squares were available, a count was made. Undusted fields averaged 94 per cent of the squares punctured. Dusted fields averaged 22 per cent of the squares punctured. Red Spider infestation was found in every field examined and in some fields was beginning to do some damage. Boll worm injury was found in most fields, the highest count running about 6 per cent.

Growers are being advised to make two applications, 5 to 7 days apart, with 5 per cent DDT. The sulphur is to control the red spider and the DDT to control the boll worm. Where a grower does not see red spider he may use 2½ per cent Aldrin with 5 per cent DDT, or 10 per cent DDT dust. Where insects have been controlled and cotton dusted, there are prospects of a good cotton crop, in spite of the dry, hot weather.

What Car Belongs Here?

Not many people would hesitate in naming the car they feel belongs in that inviting driveway.

It's the entrance to a fine American home, with a tradition of gracious living behind its handsome pillars—and the car which so obviously, belongs before it is a Cadillac.

But here is a fact which it is important to remember—a Cadillac likewise belongs in the driveways of millions of other American homes which are far more modest than the beautiful structure shown in the illustration above. For it is practical, as well as thrilling, to own a Cadillac.

Listen, if you doubt it, to these amazing and significant facts:

—there are twenty-two models of other makes of American motor cars which actually cost more than the lowest-priced Cadillac!

—a Cadillac will actually run farther on a gallon of gasoline than numerous cars which are built and sold primarily for economy!

—a Cadillac is so dependable and long-lived that it is just about as economical to service and maintain as any car you could buy.

—and, finally—according to authentic used car evaluations—a Cadillac may be expected to return a greater percentage of its cost at the time of resale than any other car built in America.

In view of these significant facts, don't you think you should consider a Cadillac for your driveway? Whether you live in a mansion or a house designed for easy living—a Cadillac belongs.

You can buy a Cadillac for prestige and glamour—or you can buy it for economy and common sense. And whichever you buy it for, you'll get all four.

Better come in and see us today. We'll gladly give you the facts and a demonstration.
