

Veterans Can Save Time In Applying For GI Training

Two Steps Necessary In Filling Out Of Application

Veterans Administration explains how veterans can save time in applying for schooling and training under the Korean GI Bill, just by using some of their own initiative.

Before they even apply for training, they should take these two steps:

1. Get a photostat or certified copy made of both sides of their discharge or separation paper (Department of Defense Form 215). They'll need it to attach to their application.

2. If they're sure of what they want to train for, find out whether the school or training establishment will accept them under the Korean GI Bill.

On the application form, which he may obtain at any VA office, a veteran who has come to a firm decision as to his training goal must put it down. He also must list the program of training that will help him reach his goal, as well as the name and address of the State-approved school or establishment where he plans to train.

Knowing these things in advance will save him a good deal of time when he files his application, VA said.

On the other hand, if he's not sure what he wants to take, and he'd like to get expert assistance in reaching a decision he may receive vocational counseling from the VA. In such a case, he should indicate that he wants counseling in his GI training application.

Knew Her English
During the last war an American doughboy on leave picked up a cute little mademoiselle and took her to a Parisian cafe for dinner.

During the first course he consulted in his French dictionary and with a fine Brooklyn accent breathed, "Je t'adore!"

The little lady fired back, "Shut the door yourself—you laze Yankee."

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

By Mary Lee Taylor

Royal Peach Dessert

1/4 cup Pet Evaporated Milk
2 cups canned, sliced peaches
1 1/2 cups marshmallows, cut into small pieces

1/4 cup peach juice
1 package lemon gelatin
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 cups diced, plain cake

Put milk into ice tray of refrigerator. Chill until ice crystals begin to form around the edges. Rub with salad oil a mold or bowl holding about 6 cups. Drain peaches and save juice. Put 6 peach slices in bottom of oiled mold. Dice remaining peaches and mix with marshmallows and peach juice. Add water to remaining peach juice to make 2/3 cup. Heat juice to boiling, then stir in gelatin and salt until dissolved. Cool to room temperature; add peach mixture; chill until slightly thicker than unbeaten egg whites. Put ice cold milk into cold bowl. Whip with cold rotary beater or electric beater at high speed, until stiff. Fold into gelatin mixture with diced cake. Put into oiled mold. Chill until firm. Unmold to serve. Makes 4 generous servings.
