

Some Farmers Give Away Their Cotton

Sold at Sacrifice Instead Of Grading to Sell At True Worth

The state PMA administrative officer, H. D. Godfrey, said today "as much as I hate to, I am forced to admit that some farmers in North Carolina penalize themselves hundreds of dollars each year on their cotton alone by dumping it on a crowded market."

Godfrey pointed to the difficult task most Tar Heel farmers had raising cotton this summer. It has not been a good cotton year in North Carolina. Yet, he said, a great many North Carolina farmers sell their cotton at sacrifice prices rather than have it graded and sell according to its true worth.

Immediately after receiving the classification card, said Godfrey, "each cotton farmer should compare the local cotton market price with the Government loan rate." It is never necessary for him to sell his cotton at less than the loan rate for the particular staple length and grade, he added.

All commodity loan and purchase agreement programs are provided by Congress to permit farmers to market their products in an orderly manner, avoiding market "gluts" that drain away the farmers' hard-earned cash and upset the nation's economic and price structures, Godfrey said.

The state PMA officer said he felt that committeemen in every North Carolina county feel exactly as he does about the use of these loan programs. He advised farmers to talk with their local PMA committeemen or county PMA office manager to secure details of the cotton loan program.

2,318 Arrested For Speeding In September

State Highway Patrolmen arrested 2,318 Tar Heel motorists for speeding in September making a nine month total of 20,670 speed law violators apprehended by the patrol.

Driving without an operator's license followed closely in the list of violations reported by the patrol for September. It came to 1,198 with reckless driving in third place with 694.

The three violations customarily head the list of motor offenses reported monthly by the Highway Patrol.

The report further revealed the following miscellaneous violations: faulty equipment, 747; failing to stop for stop sign, 647; improper passing, 393; improper lights, 334; driving on wrong side of the road, 221; following too closely, 201; and failing to give the right-of-way, 191.

Combined the September figures made a total of 7,372 North Carolinians found guilty of moving violations. Out of state offenders added another 1,211.

ARTHRITIS?

I have been wonderfully blessed in being restored to active life after being crippled in nearly every joint in my body and with muscular soreness from head to foot. I had Rheumatoid Arthritis and other forms of Rheumatism, hands deformed and my ankles were set.

Limited space prohibits telling you more here but if you will write me I will reply at once and tell you how I received this wonderful relief.

Auto Dealers Speaker

Frederick J. Bell of Washington, D. C., executive vice-president of the National Automobile Dealers Association, will address a group of new car and truck dealers in Raleigh on October 30, it was announced by Mrs. Besie B. Ballentine, executive secretary of the North Carolina Automobile Dealers Association.

Bell's appearance will headline the afternoon business session of the NCADA Fourth Annual Area Chairmen Day. The all-day program is sponsored by the State dealer association in honor of Area Chairmen representing 97 counties in the State.

FACTS... About Pedestrians

Men are more daring than women in disregarding pedestrian traffic rules, it appears from records of the State Department of Motor Vehicles.

Accident figures for 1952 show that of the 248 walkers killed on North Carolina streets and highways, only 64 were women and girls, while 184 were men and boys.
