

Fisheries Committee Will Hold Meeting At Mann's Harbor Dec. 8

Purpose Is to Consider Boundaries For Setting Gill Nets

A public hearing has been called for Tuesday, December 8 at 12 o'clock noon at Mann's Harbor, by Eric W. Rodgers of Scotland Neck, chairman of the Commercial Fisheries Committee of the Department of Conservation and Development.

The purpose of the hearing will be to consider a proposed regulation extending the boundaries in Albemarle Sound in which it shall be unlawful to set gill nets. Application for extension of the lines was made by a group of fishermen at a recent public meeting at Poplar Branch, but could not be considered at that time because it had not been placed on the agenda for that meeting and had not been given proper public notice. The group of fishermen then mailed the proposed regulation to the meeting of the Board of Conservation and Development at Asheville in October and the board authorized the Commercial Fisheries Committee to proceed with a public hearing on the matter.

In general terms the regulations would extend the boundaries in which it would be unlawful to set gill nets from Fleetwood Point in Croatan Sound in a general northwesterly direction through a portion of Albemarle Sound and extending to a point south of Camden Point. A center area of the Sound about four and two tenths miles wide would be included and the line then would run back to the point of beginning. While no objection has been raised to the proposed regulation and while those included in the group favoring same are among the gill net fishermen of the area, it is required by law before such changes are made that both sides to a question be given an opportunity to be heard.

Those who will be present at the hearing at Mann's Harbor in addition to Rodgers, as chairman of the Committee, will include the following members of the Board, who are also members of the Committee: Charles H. Jenkins of Aulander, Cecil Morris of Atlantic, Henry Rankin of Fayetteville and Charles S. Allen of Durham. Also present at the hearing will be Ben E. Douglas, Director of the Department of Conservation and Development and Gehram Holland, of Morehead City, who was recently appointed as Assistant Commissioner of Commercial Fisheries. Representative Bruce Etheridge as the member of the Legislature who represents the territory and who is a proponent of the suggested resolution, also has been invited to attend the session.

This durable cotton poplin parka from Greenwood Mills is treated with a water-repellent finish. It's smart as it can be with a wonderfully warm, protective collar, elastic shirred sides, buckle belted front and two hand-warming pockets. These parkas come in grey, skipper blue, gold, scarlet and navy, the Cotton Council reports.

Josten And Rogerson Wedding In Baltimore

A double ring ritual in Baltimore, Maryland, on November 25, united in marriage Miss Ruth Rogerson and John J. Josten.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Anne R. White of Hertford, N. C., was her only attendant.

Best man was the bridegroom's fraternity brother, Dr. Ernie Stator. Mrs. Josten is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Rogerson of Tyner. She graduated from the University of Maryland, School of Nursing and is now employed as staff nurse at the University Hospital.

Mr. Josten is the son of Mrs. Lara Kern Josten and the late Mr. Josten of Cincinnati, Ohio. He is a graduate of the University of Cincinnati and received his master's degree at Miami University. He is now a graduate assistant at the University of Maryland and will receive his doctorate in June.

The couple will be at home at 1523 East 36th Street, Baltimore, Md., while serving the university.

SPORTS AFIELD

By Ted Kesting

I'm tired of photographs of grinning anglers holding up strings of dead fish. So I asked Ormal Sprungman, one of this country's outstanding wildlife cameramen, for some new angles on filming fish.

The most difficult shot for shutter-clicking sportsmen is a leaping fish. From Sprungman I learned that you must bring a freshly-hooked fish to the surface as quickly as possible. You focus at the point where the line cuts the water, and release the shutter as soon as the fish starts his upward climb. If you delay he is already free-wheeling in open air, you'll probably catch only the final splash.

I've found that getting one good leaping fish picture in a dozen tries is a tough day's work and worth all of the patience and perseverance you can muster. The surprise element is ever present, for you will never know what you have captured until the negative is developed.

Once you have succeeded in filming leaping fish all by themselves, try branching out to work both fish and fisherman in the same scene of action. Because of the large lens opening and fast shutter speed—usually 1/500 to 1/1000 second is necessary to freeze the leap—both angler and fish must be approximately in the same plane. In other words, if the fish leaps between the camera and fisherman, and focus is sharp on the fish, chances are the angler will be out of focus. And vice versa.

Another ambitious project is to try filming close-ups in color or black-and-white of the various species of fish you can catch. On the bigger lunkers, come in close for striking head portraits showing the bulging eyes and powerful jaws.

If you want to brighten up your outdoor fishing scenes, use a yellow filter with black-and-white film to enhance any clouds in the sky and give your prints more snap.

And watch your backgrounds. Contrast a light subject with a dark background, and dark against light. Mottled backdrops of trees and rocks are confusing; shooting from a low angle will silhouette your subject nicely against the sky.
