

Maxwell R. Warden Elected President Of Remington Arms Co.

Executive Is Husband of Former Marguerite Goodwin

Bridgeport, Conn., January 7—Chas. K. Davis, president and general manager of Remington Arms Company, Inc., since the acquisition of controlling interest in the company by E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., in June, 1933, is retiring under the provisions of the company's pension and retirement plan on January 31, 1954.

At a recent meeting of the company's board of directors, held in New York City, December 29, 1953, Maxwell R. Warden, vice president and assistant general manager, was elected a director. At the same meeting he was elected president and general manager to succeed Mr. Davis, effective February 1. Mr. Davis will remain a director of the company.

Mr. Davis has spent almost 39 years in various executive capacities with the Du Pont Company and its subsidiaries.

Mr. Warden assumes his new duties on February 1, thoroughly grounded in the policies and procedures established by his predecessor and through which Remington Arms Company has enjoyed such outstanding success in recent years. As a member of the Engineering Department of the Du Pont Company, he organized and supervised the engineering and construction of the Utah Ordnance Plant, built and operated for the government by Remington Arms Company during World War II.

Upon completion of the plant, he joined Remington as works manager and resident engineer at the Utah operation, serving in that capacity from October 5, 1941, to February 23, 1942, when he became assistant manager of Remington's Military Production Division. As such, he had charge of four plants, including those operated by Remington for the government, and a total personnel in excess of 50,000.

In December 1943, he was advanced to the post of assistant manager of the Production Division, having jurisdiction over Remington's four commercial plants located at Bridgeport, Conn.; Ilion, N. Y.; Kings Mills, Ohio, and Findlay, Ohio. On March 31, 1945, he became manager of the Production Division and soon was named director of production.

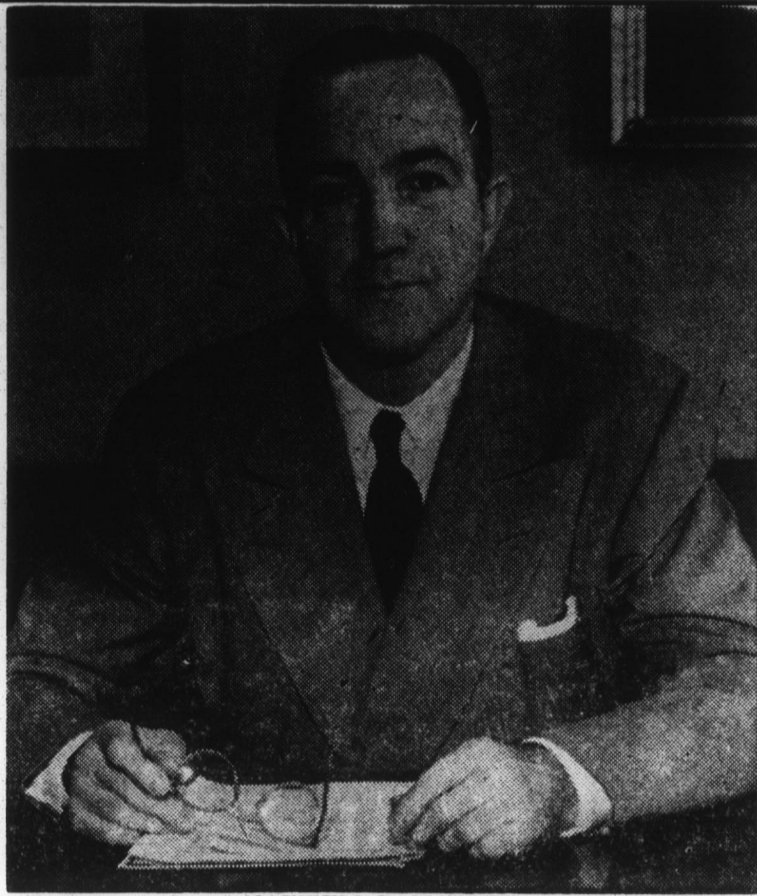

In the fall of 1945, Mr. Warden assumed, in addition to his other duties, the important job of chairman of Remington's Reconversion and Modernization Program, responsible for furtherance of Remington's ambitious projects encompassing the complete modernization of all of the company plants.

On April 1, 1948, Mr. Warden was named vice president and director of manufacture and was promoted to assistant general manager on July 1, 1949, from which position he assumes the presidency.

Prior to joining the Remington organization, Mr. Warden had served in many responsible capacities in the Engineering Department of the Du Pont Company. His work gave him an excellent background in engineering, construction and production.

Mr. Warden resides with his wife and three children at 971 Burr Street, Greenfield Hill, Fairfield, Conn. Mrs. Warden is the former Miss Marguerite Goodwin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Goodwin.
