

STATE REVENUE DEPARTMENT DEPUTY ASSISTING IN FILING '53 INCOME REPORTS

Garland B. Germain, State Revenue Department deputy in charge of Hertford, Gates, Chowan and Perquimans counties, is scheduled to be in the office of George S. Twiddy in the Hotel Joseph Hewes building from March 8 to March 15 to assist taxpayers in filing their 1953 state tax income reports. Until March 8 Mr. Germain will be in Mr. Twiddy's office each Wednesday morning from 9 to 12 o'clock.

"The average person should have an easier time filling out his or her State income tax forms," says Mr. Germain, "because of the short tax forms the Revenue Department is putting into use this year for the first time."

You'll be better off taking the 10 per cent deduction and using the short form.

January 1 marked the beginning of a busy three months for workers of the State Revenue Department, Germain said.

He went on to state that many persons who run into trouble filling out their State tax forms come to the office in Edenton to receive help.

Not only do people come to him, but he goes to others to help them in preparing their tax forms.

HEALTH FOR ALL

Fashions in Pneumonia

Not so long ago, when a member of your family came down with pneumonia, you waited with fear and trembling for the crisis that meant life or death. There was little to do but wait. Today, because of the effectiveness of modern drugs, people are almost as casual about old-fashioned pneumonia as they are about the common cold. But also today we have a new-fashioned pneumonia, in some ways more distressing than the old.

Doctors got their first inkling of this new type of pneumonia only about ten years ago when some patients failed to respond to drugs. They soon learned to recognize two quite different kinds of pneumonia: the "typical" bacterial pneumonia and the "atypical" or virus pneumonia.

Bacterial pneumonia strikes suddenly with sharp chest pain, chills, rapid pulse, and a cough which raises rust-colored sputum. If the patient is treated promptly with one of the new drugs, usually penicillin, he may be well within two or three days. The disease certainly is not to be taken lightly. It is probably as prevalent as ever, but the death rate has fallen dramatically.

Virus pneumonia develops slowly with occasional chills, headache, a dry, hacking cough, and a general feeling of illness. The fever does not follow any set pattern. Muscular weakness and depression often go along with the illness. The long coughing spells are hard to control. The disease is rarely fatal, but it is extremely trying.

Recovery from virus pneumonia may take several weeks, and any attempt by the patient to get back on his feet and into normal activity too quickly may cause a setback. In this respect, virus pneumonia is much more difficult to deal with than the old-fashioned kind. A setback may mean another long convalescence with weakness, fatigue, and depression. It can even mean another attack of virus pneumonia, because apparently the patient does not develop immunity to it.

Virus pneumonia is today a far more troublesome disease than bacterial pneumonia. Nothing seems to prevent it. No drug is definitely known to cure it. It is possible to have two or three attacks in one season. The best protection that can be prescribed is to keep in the best possible general health and avoid contact with people suffering from the disease.

SPORTS AFIELD

By Ted Keating

Most fly-rod anglers know that it's almost impossible to hook a fish with 100 feet of line out. Far too many rises will be missed at even 75 feet. So the skilled angler usually keeps his cast under 50 feet. And some of the best producers of trout keep them much under that.

So why, asks Jason Lucas in a recent issue of Sports Afield magazine, use heavy, sinking line that will give you distance but fewer fish? He suggests the following sizes and types of lines to suit your rods:

For sunfish, bass, tarpon or anything else, he uses a moderately powerful dry-fly rod between 7½ and 8 feet, and under 4 ounces. Any such rod will work fine with a C level, and HCH double-taper, or a GBF three-diameter. Theoretically, the level should be a D, but in practice the C often works better.

If your rod is from 8½ to 9 feet, but weak and floppy, it might call for a D, HDH and HCF. But if a long rod has reasonable backbone for its length and weight, it will take a B or a GAF. Many think such a rod too tiring for dry-fly fishing for trout, but if you're going to use one for that, a GBG would fit, though some prefer an HCH.

For wet-fly fishing, and for bugs and streamers, a level line is most

Flour Bag Makes Nice Flannel Nighties

Nighties and pajamas today can be found in a flour sack, the National Cotton Council reports.

The newest twist in flour packaging is a cotton flannel sack. For the first time, housewives can buy 25 pounds of flour in a high quality cotton flannel container. Each bag provides a piece of fabric 27 inches square, suitable for making children's pajamas, bed jackets, baby gowns, and other sleepwear.

The flannel flour sacks are available in five print patterns, each in a combination of two different colors. The prints include a gray, red, and tan Wild West pattern, a toy animal design in pastel hues, and three dainty floral designs.
