

New Schedules For Bus Line Announced

Carolina Trailways Now Operating Norfolk Southern Line

Carolina Trailways, which took over the operation of Norfolk Southern Bus System on March 1, has announced revised time-tables and new thru services to become effective on that date. This announcement comes from W. G. Humphrey, traffic manager of Carolina Trailways, of Raleigh.

There are to be five daily bus departures for Norfolk each day from cities and communities which lie on route US 17 south of Elizabeth City—such as Washington, Williamston, Windsor, Edenton and Hertford. There will be 6 daily trips between Elizabeth City and Norfolk, 4 of them via Camden, Sligo and Moyock, and two of them via South Mills.

Another thru bus to Philadelphia and New York, via Norfolk and the eastern shore route, has been added from US 17 points which includes the local terminal. The first thru bus service between Wilmington and New York over Norfolk-Southern routes was started in December, Humphrey points out, and the additional thru bus is part of the further expansion of this type service in this area.

Humphrey also announced, effective March 1, a thru bus service between Norfolk and Raleigh via Elizabeth City, Hertford, Edenton, Windsor and Rocky Mount, and one from Columbia to Raleigh which is routed via Edenton.

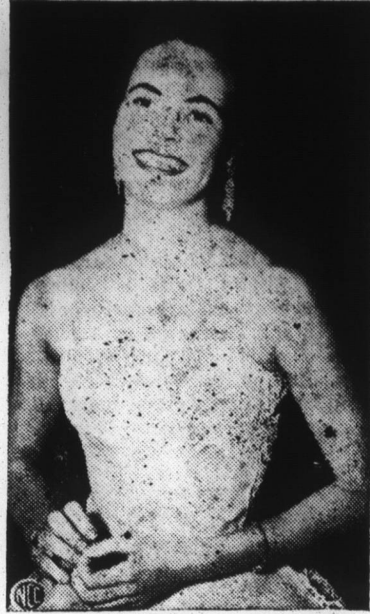

According to the March 1 departure time-tables, the Raleigh thru coach leave the local terminal at 8:55 A. M., and 3:50 P. M., with 2 other departures daily which require a change at Williamston leaving the local terminal at 9:10 and 12:40 P. M.

Northbound buses, thru to Philadelphia and New York, leave the local terminal each day at 12:15 P. M., and 8:40 P. M. Call the terminal for other daily service to Norfolk and points north.

Humphrey explains that it will take a little time to integrate the former services of the Norfolk Southern system into that of Trailways. The thru buses announced are the early steps in that direction.

"Perhaps the most important change Trailways has been able to bring about," Humphrey remarked, "is a steady, day-to-day departure schedule in this area. Instead of a minimum of trips between Monday and Friday with much added service on weekends, which has been the case, Trailways is to operate an equal number of trips every day. The only exception to this daily service is one added bus northbound and southbound on Sunday night primarily for military personnel who must report to bases in the Norfolk area or at Camp Lejeune prior to reville Monday morning." "Over the years," Humphrey added, "we've found that a reduction of bus service on Monday thru Thursday, with a substantial increase on weekends confuses the public. What's more, it sometimes confuses the bus terminal agents too!"

"Dependable, steady, on-time service, regardless of the weather or day of week, builds confidence in our mode of travel," Humphrey said, "and after all that's what we are trying to do in developing Trailways travel in the Norfolk Southern area."

wear and make necessary repairs. A bamboo rod that has been used much will need a new coat of varnish each season. A light coat of varnish will greatly improve the appearance of a glass rod; even a steel rod will be the better for varnishing.

The varnishing job is the same on all rods. Go over the finish with 00 steel wool. This rubbing down should be light, just enough to dull the old coat and give a "tooth" for the new. After using the steel wool, wash the rod with a rag and gasoline or carbon tet. Then don't touch any part that's going to be varnished—even a slight trace of natural oil from your fingers can keep the new coat from sticking well.

For a good job, the room temperature should be at least 70 degrees F. It is best to work alone in a closed room; don't move around any more than you have to or you'll stir up dust that you can't see until it's on the rod, sticking out like a sore thumb.

Use only a rod varnish put out by a reliable tackle company. Rub a little of this varnish between your thumb and forefinger and wipe it onto the rod. Do this quickly, and don't rub it in or you'll mess things up. A glance at the rod against the light will show if you're missing any spots.

Do not put on a heavy coat. You might think a heavy coat would look better, last longer, or give more protection. Actually, it does the exact opposite of all three. The lighter the coat the better, just so it covers everywhere.

Hang the rod, by the ferrules or guides, in a closet where there will be no air stirring. By morning the varnish should be dry enough to be safe from dust, but perhaps it won't be safe to handle for at least 12 hours more. A good elastic rod varnish is slow drying. The fast-drying kind gets brittle and cracks under the bending a rod is subjected to.

TEXT: "Americanism consists in utterly believing in the principles of America."—Woodrow Wilson.

A traveler in a rural area noticed a farmer having trouble with his horse. It would start, go slowly for a short distance, and stop. Then the farmer would have difficulty in getting him started. Finally the traveler approached and asked, "Is your horse sick?"

"Naw, he ain't sick."

"Well, is he balky?"

"Naw, he ain't balky," was the reply.

"Then what is the matter with him?" asked the stranger.

"Well, I'll tell ya," the farmer said, wakened, and the ability to meet the
