

Drunken Driving Drops In February

767 Tar Heels Lose Privilege To Drive During Month

Drunken driving convictions declined somewhat in February, according to the Motor Vehicles Department.

In its monthly summary of violations requiring the surrender of driving privileges the department said 767 Tar Heels lost their license last month for drunken driving. This was a drop of 50 from January and a further decrease from the 819 such violations reported in February a year ago.

Speeders held their own with 198 convictions for over 75 mph; 109 for two offenses of over 55 mph; 351 for over 70 mph; and 11 for over 60 mph in a truck.

Miscellaneous violations, driving after license revoked, transporting liquor, manslaughter, hit and run, unsatisfied judgment and improper use of operators' license resulted in 1,041 revocations and 1,127 suspensions.

HEALTH FOR ALL

Understanding the Aged

It is a rare family these days that does not have at least one aged member, often living in the home with the younger generations. This situation can be a happy one for all concerned if the normal results of aging are understood.

The wisdom of experience, wealth of memories, and keenness of thought are not lessened by the physical effects of age, and they can and should contribute much to the richness of family life. Arteries do harden and the cells they supply with nourishment may fail to function as in youth. This may cause some problems in the family, but they should not be allowed to cancel out the important contributions older people can make. They should be seen for what they are: side issues, annoyances to which adjustment can be made.

Every person has his own way of showing age. The arteries that supply different parts of the brain wear out at different times and to different extents. But some changes are common to everyone. The first is usually loss of ability to make new permanent age." The doctor should be consulted regularly. There is much he can do to make the later years of life more comfortable.

It is important for all members of the family to understand something of the changes that come with old age. With understanding will come more enjoyment of the company of the older members and fuller use of their powers.

Poultrymen Can Boost Profit By Cutting Costs

The smart businessman is constantly seeking new methods of efficiency in order to cut costs and thereby increase his margin of profit. The same is true, of the North Carolina poultryman.

R. S. Dearstyne, head of the department of poultry science, N. C. State College, says that while Tar Heel poultrymen have made great strides in putting efficiency into the poultry business, there are still a number of opportunities. Among the more prominent are these:

1. Reducing the number of culls in flocks. It is estimated that cull chickens in North Carolina consume $400,000 worth of feed each month (nearly $5,000,000 annually). Dearstyne thinks many poultrymen, especially the small flock owner, take this matter too lightly. It is a situation that the individual flock owner can handle, if he will.

2. Reducing feed wastage. Between overfilled feed hoppers, improperly constructed hoppers, rats and mice, and improper storage of feed, the value of feed lost in North Carolina amounts to about $2,500,000 each year, says Dearstyne. This again is a problem of the individual poultryman.

If he will attack this problem vigorously and follow through on a "feed conservation" program, the profits of the industry should be increased greatly.

3. Reducing the poultry mortality rate. Mortality in chicken and turkey flocks cost North Carolina farmers about $5,000,000 each year. While medicants can be used with success in some instances, this procedure is not the final answer, says Dearstyne. The annual loss caused by mortality could be cut 50 per cent by adopting and following through with a sound disease-prevention program.
