

HEALTH FOR ALL

The Unknown Ray

In a totally dark room the professor held out his hand and saw the outline of his finger bones. He had been making experiments on radiation when he found that his apparatus produced an invisible ray which could "see" through substances which no other light could penetrate. With that mysterious ray he could photograph what lay beneath the surface of his own skin.

When Professor Wilhelm Conrad Roentgen reported his discovery to the scientific world, he spoke of it as X-ray because of its unknown quality. Imagine the excitement of scientists all over the world in 1895 as they read about the new discovery and began to think of the many ways it could be used.

The average man was as interested as the scientist. Some modest ladies were afraid Peeping Toms might arm themselves with X-ray cameras. But most people were quick to recognize how tremendously valuable the X-ray could be to medicine. First used for accurate diagnosis of injuries and diseases of the bones, soon technical improvements in the apparatus permitted study of other parts of the body.

During this same period, the fight against tuberculosis was being organized. Here and there, state and local societies were formed to combat what was then the most serious health problem in the United States. Finally in 1904 came the organization of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, later re-named the National Tuberculosis Association.

The young organization early recognized that the X-ray was to be one of the most important weapons in the attack on tuberculosis. Here was a means of detecting the disease before outward symptoms appeared. The innocent spread of TB germs by people with unsuspected TB could be checked. The disease discovered in its early stages could most easily and quickly be cured.

However, the X-ray was still a cumbersome, expensive process. To find the unknown cases of TB, it had to be brought to the people. This need was met in the early 1940's by the development of small-film X-ray equipment that could be transported from place to place. Since then, hundreds of thousands of Americans have had screening X-rays by which possible cases of TB are sifted out of the general population. The professor's ray is no longer "unknown."

Aubrey Harrell Is Elected Member Of Scabbard And Blade

Aubrey Harrell, a senior in agricultural education at North Carolina State College, has been initiated into the National honorary Society of the Scabbard and Blade. Membership in this organization is based upon outstanding achievement in Military Science, leadership ability, and scholastic achievement. Harrell is a cadet captain in the Reserve Officers' Training Corps and in the Battalion S-1 and S-3.

He is a Distinguished Military Student and was awarded the American Ordnance Association Award at ROTC Summer Camp last year at Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Md.

He will be commissioned in the Ordnance Corps upon completion of ROTC training and graduation in July.

Natural

An English tourist travelling in the North of Scotland, far away from anywhere, explained to one of the natives:

"Why, what do you do when any of you are ill? You can never get a doctor."

"Nae, sir," replied Sandy, "We've just to dee a natural death."
