

Dr. McGuire Points Out Some Dangers Power Lawn Mower

Health Offices Urges Care In Operation to Prevent Accidents

The power lawn mower, the latest time-saver available to aid the home handy man, can be the source of many serious accidents if not properly used and maintained, Dr. B. B. McGuire of the Chowan County Health Department warns.

The health officer pointed out that the power lawn mower is the fastest selling home appliance on the market today and thousands have been brought into North Carolina's homes in the past few months.

He called attention to the two major types of power mowers and pointed out the specific hazards relating to the operation of each.

The reel type mower depends on a sharp cutting edge whereas the rotary type depends on a mulching action of the cutter bar to trim the grass. The rotary type mower is usually provided with a guard, but due to its construction a space must be provided between the blade and the ground. This necessary space makes it possible for stones, sticks, and other debris to be picked up and thrown out with great force.

This clearance space also provides an opportunity for the foot or shoe to enter into the whirling blades and a score of serious cuts have been reported to the Accident Prevention Section of the State Board of Health.

The reel type mower operates at a slower rate of speed and may be equipped with a guard or catcher to prevent the throwing out of stones and sticks. The user should be particularly careful to avoid adjusting the blade while the motor is running.

Other general rules, listed by the health officer include:

1. When powered by an electric motor always have a third, or ground wire firmly attached to the frame-work. In case a defect develops this ground wire will reduce the electric shock hazard. This machine should not be stored or used under wet conditions.

2. When powered by a gasoline motor, never make adjustments or do other repair work unless the ignition wire has been disconnected. If one should spin a reel or cutter bar while the engine is hot there is a possibility of it starting unless it has been properly deactivated.
3. Regardless of the type of machine other precautions are:
(1) Proper guards and covers on all moving parts and
(2) Do not allow children or other inexperienced persons to tamper with or use the machine.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear wife and mother, Mrs. J. D. Ward, who departed this life eight years ago, June 11, 1946:

From our lovely home on this earth Our precious one has gone from us, A voice we loved is still, A place is vacant in our hearts Which never can be filled.

Eight long years have now passed But thoughts of you will always last. No one knows how much we miss you For you yourself were kind and true.

Loving memories will never fade away As we live on day by day. Love for you we cannot forget With us are aching hearts yet.

They say time heals all sorrow, And helps us to forget, But time so far has only proved, How much we miss you yet.
