A LIFT FOR TODAY

They were all amazed at the mighty power of God. Luke 9:43.
WHO GUIDES below and rules above, the great dispenser and the mighty king; than he none greater; next him none can be, or is, or was; supreme, he singly fills the throne—that is our God. Horace.
We thank Thee, O God, that Thou art a Father whose eye never sleeps, watching over us and registering our thoughts.

Splendid Cooperation

That a man or woman serving or who has served their country is also interested in serving their community is reflected in what Marines stationed at the Edenton Marine Corps Auxiliary Landing Field have done lately in connection with local activities.

It is noted that a substantial contribution was made by the Marines to the Chowan County March of Dimes, the Marines last week donated $5 of the 144 pints of blood when the Red Cross bloodmobile was here and now this week they have set off the Heart Fund drive in the county with a $350 contribution.

For such cooperation a community cannot but be grateful and it is such evidences of friendliness which has always bound the town of Edenton and the base closer together.

Then hardly any kind of local worthwhile activity is undertaken but that veterans of World Wars I and II take leading parts, many times not only devoting their time and energy, but financial outlay as well.

With such devotion to their community many other citizens should emulate what they have done and are willing to do in the interest of the community as a whole.

In reference to the Heart Fund, Dr. A. L. Stanton is chairman in Chowan County and is hopeful the county will make a substantial contribution in the fight to conquer heart disease. Mrs. C. P. Wales is treasurer.

Reputation At Stake

For a long time efforts have been made to keep Edenton an attractive town and this reputation has been enjoyed with many comments coming from people who visit and even only pass through the town.

Lately quite a few complaints have been registered concerning trash strewn along the streets, garbage scattered about and trash cans remaining at curbs all day and night and even on Sundays. To be sure, such conditions add anything but attractiveness and tidiness to the town, so that Town Council has instructed Chief of Police George I. Duff to see to it that all citizens receive a copy of the ordinance governing trash and garbage.

It is hoped that when this information is in the hands of all who are responsible for putting out trash and garbage, they will cooperate to the end that the town will be cleaner and more attractive. Just a little thought and effort can go a long way in helping Edenton to maintain its reputation of being one of the cleanest and most attractive towns in the United States.

HEARD & SEEN

By "BUFF"

I received a brief but interesting letter the other day from the Rev. and Mrs. R. E. Gordon, who are now serving as missionaries in the Philippine Islands. Mr. Gordon is a former pastor of the Rocky Hook Baptist Church and in his letter, in part, had this to say:

"Dear Mr. Bufflap—Someone has been guilty of affording us a good deal of pleasure by sending us The Chowan Herald for these two years since we left Chowan County for the Philippines. We do not know whom to thank, but we wish to thank someone in Chowan County for a gift that gladdens our hearts each week of the year. We had been here only a few weeks when The Chowan Herald started coming and it has kept up for these two years. It does our hearts good to have a regular channel by which we can keep up with what is going on in Chowan County, a place that is dear to our hearts. So whoever you are, thank you very much. We would like to know who is guilty of being so kind and thoughtful of us."

I happened to be present at a birthday dinner the other day and upon opening her presents the honoree found a jar of homemade cream. "I gave that to you," said one of the ladies present. "I know you are on a diet and that cream will cover up the wrinkles."

Things just didn't seem the same over at the fire station for several days, for Cap'n Dick Hall wasn't hanging around. Cap'n Dick has been quite ill, but on Tuesday managed to get down to the place which, next to his home, he loves best of all. Then E. T. Rawlison hasn't been up to par for a long time and on Tuesday, for the first time since April, walked from his home down town. It's good to see both Cap'n Dick and E. T. getting around under their own steam.

Bill Perry, commander of the VFW Post, says now that the Town Fathers are putting teeth into the garbage ordinance, his boys will be selling 10 and 20 gallon garbage cans as part of a project started last year when they sold out. They will take orders and also deliver the cans. Anyone wanting to buy a can should phone 761, 57, 453 or 428-W.

The Red Men staged an oyster roast Monday night at Jackson's Radio and TV Repair Shop. It developed in a battle of Guses, for it was hard to determine if Gus Bunch or Gus Nixon ate the most oysters. Gus Nixon left the table first, but he claimed he started before Gus Bunch. At any rate Gus Bunch said he could have eaten more, but his "feelings" were hurt when the boys began to joke him.

Maybe all of the town's worries is affecting May or Leroy Haskett, for he must be getting absent-minded. The other day he went into Rhoades Shoe Shop and took off one of his rubber overshoes in order to have some work done on his leather shoe. When the shoe was done he put it on, but walked out of the place with one rubber overshoe on and the other off. He would have discovered sooner his forgetfulness had he gone with one of his leather shoes off, for it was cold as the dickens outdoors.

Here's one who ate something for the first time last Thursday. At the Rotary dinner a piece of fish made up part of the menu and some of the boys said it was rockfish and others said it was haddock. I asked Mrs. Jimmy Rieks what it was and she informed me it was tilefish. The first I ever heard of the stuff. But Webster says it is a large deep water food fish which was abundant in 1881 off the Eastern United States and in 1882 was nearly exterminated by an environment change but is now again plentiful. Gosh, the first thing I know I'll be eating chitterlings and not know it.

WASHINGTON REPORT

Ike. Several years ago—in the good old days when he was just a five-star general—President Eisenhower took pride in showing friends the trophy room in his home.

For those who like trophies, the room was a dandy. In here was an amazing collection of cups, guns, plaques, medals, and a number of other things—the souvenirs and keepsakes of a brilliant military career.

Because he had so many, trophies and souvenirs had become rather routine for General Eisenhower. They were nice, sure, but he had so many that he took them for granted.

Exception. That is, they were routine except for one. At parties and other occasions, the General would pick up a beautiful diamond-studded dagger and tell his guests that this was his most treasured memento. It was an odd gift, and it came from an unusual and interesting man.

There were many reasons. A man by the name of Georgi K. Zhukov, the dashing Russian field marshal who was the Soviet's biggest war hero, had given Ike the dagger when they had occasion to work together in the allied occupation of Berlin. Only last week, Zhukov was named head of all Communist Russia's armed forces.

Friends. To begin with, the two generals had struck up a sort of friendship during and after the battle of Berlin.

Secondly, Ike had a deep curiosity about this man as an individual—a peasant who rose to the head of the Red Army, a man of perplexing moods and ideas.

Thirdly, Ike liked to exchange war stories and talk military tactics with Marshal Zhukov.

To every Russian, Zhukov was what Ike was to Americans. It was he who was given credit for saving Moscow from the Germans, and then turning the ragged but monstrous Red Army on to victory with the capture of Berlin. He was a rough and tough army man who loved to fight. But, according to Ike, he could also be a gentleman. He was a man who interested Ike in a way, and they got along well, because he liked Ike.

Ideas. In Berlin, during the leisure hours between work, Ike and Zhukov exchanged a lot of war stories.

To Zhukov, the Americans were a strange lot of fighters. They maneuvered, planned and gave too much attention to detail when in battle. They would go to almost any extreme, for example, to save the lives of a thousand men. To a man who had been trained to have little regard for human life in battle, the American trait of saving lives seemed a waste of time. According to Zhukov, the ultimate ruler of the world would be the country that had plenty of lives to expend at the drop of a hat.

Naturally, this kind of thinking intrigued Ike. It was fantastic to see and hear a man talk of men dying in war at wholesale rates as being so much water over the dam. On the one hand, Zhukov was a friendly, personable, nice sort of fellow. On the other, he could be a bullish butcher.

During the time they were in Berlin, Ike invited Zhukov to visit America. The Russian general liked the idea and still hopes that he will be able to do so one day.

"Green Pastures Program" Is Now Creating Interest

C. W. Overman Says Program Will Add To Income

On Tuesday afternoon of last week the Agriculture Workers Council held the second meeting on the "Green Pastures Program". A committee previously selected had been contacted personally and agreed to serve. Another meeting was held on Wednesday afternoon of this week at the Court House. Farm committees, civic leaders, farm machinery dealers, seed and fertilizer dealers and other interested persons attended. This meeting was devoted to a more general discussion of the Green Pastures Program and working out a broad plan of action.

"If farmers will participate in the Green Pastures Program it will mean thousands of dollars to them in Chowan County," says County Agent C. W. Overman. "We have an ample amount of pasture area on many farms but many of these are not being managed properly to obtain greatest returns. We still have a large number of farms which do not have enough pasture to graze the livestock on them. It is hoped that our farmers will realize the importance and need this year enough pasture to meet their livestock needs."

Agents Trained In 4-H Club Activities

A 4-H training school for Farm and Home Agents in the Albemarle area was held on Thursday, February 10, at the Virginia Dare Hotel in Elizabeth City. Present enrollment and activities were reviewed and new methods of doing a better job in 4-H work were discussed. All the agents in the counties were present to receive information and build enthusiasm.

Colored USO Club Joins In Celebration

The Colored USO joined in the celebration of the 14th anniversary of the USO at the Brown-Carver Library Thursday night, February 3, at 8 o'clock.

Thomas Sharpe, vice president of the local USO and Miss H. Jenkins, staff aide, greeted the guests upon arrival.

Quite a few civilians joined the service men in the celebration of the affair. Refreshments were served and games were played. Music for the occasion was furnished by leading band recordings.
