By MRS. ONNIE S. CHARLTON, Negro Home Demonstration Agent

The fifteenth annual 4-H Wildlife Conservation Conference was held at J. W. Mitchell 4-H Camp, Hammocks Beach, August 5-10. Two delegates from each county could attend. Pencie Blount, James Brooks and I were there from Chowan County.

From the conference we gained a keener appreciation of wildlife. The farm youth realizes that if the birds, animals and wild flowers for instance, are removed from the wood lot and forest much of the joy of farm life disappears.

Camp organization, duties and activities are the same as at regular camp. The classes are different.

Tuesday was Soil and Water Conservation Day—Soil experts have found there are but a few inches of fertile topsoil left on much of our farm lands and this soil is washing and blowing away each year. 4-H clubbers can do much to help preserve the soil such as planting of trees; planting of shrubbery for gully improvement; pasture improvement; cover crops and legumes; crop rotation; building of grass waterways. A field trip was made in the afternoon to observe conservation practices being carried out.

Wednesday—Forestry Day—It was interesting to learn that there are one hundred and eighty-five different trees grown in General Lee.

The address on the occasion was delivered by Honorable J. Bryan Grimes, the Secretary of State of North Carolina. A general holiday was observed, with bands leading a huge parade.

The Bell Battery Company derived its name from the fact that its field pieces were cast in Richmond from bells given by the various public buildings and churches hereabout, in response to an urgent appeal sent out by General Bureaugard.

Captain William Badham, who formed the battery during the winter of 1861, sent Lieutenant John M. Jones down to Edenton, from Camp Lee near Richmond, with his plea for the bells, which were sent by wagon to Suffolk and then shipped to the Tredegar Iron Works at Richmond, where they were cast into cannon.

It is said that the guns were named the "St. Paul" for the church in Edenton and was in charge of Sergeant B. F. Hunter; the "Fannie Roullac," for a patriotic and devout lady, and was in charge of Sergeant Harry Gregory; the "Columbia," for the Edenton Shipyard, in charge of Sergeant Ed Davenport; and the "Edenton" for the town, in charge of Sergeant George Parrish.

Just at the time the boys had completed their training and ready to fight, they were ordered attached to the infantry, since the artillery corps of General Lee had been completed. This resulted in great dismay and disappointment and Captain Badham dispatched Lieutenant Jones to President Jefferson Davis with the following message:

"Sir: The guns of my company were made from the bells from my town and they have tolled to their last resting place and great many of the parents and relatives of the men in my command, and sooner than part with these guns

North Carolina; that 9,000 products are on the American market from the Nation's forests. How to prevent forest fires was discussed at length since fires destroy a tremendous amount of wild life, native and young trees, also human life and property. It is usually a careless individual who throws a lighted match or leaves a smoldering campfire who start forest fires. On the field trip we learned the names of trees in the area and how to select and mark trees for cutting.

Thursday—Wildlife Conservation Day. We learned here some ways to feed, preserve and care for animals and birds in our communities. On the field trip we observed some life around the camp grounds.

Friday—Entomology Day. Some campers felt this was the most interesting day at camp. We were told that of the 15,000 different insects in the world, about 14,000 are helpful. There are two ways in which insects help the human race. First, some insects destroy the harmful ones by killing them. Insects also help to pollinate plants. The honey bee gives us honey and wax. The class discussion also included insects common to our houses, animals, vegetables and field crops and how to control them. Our field trip gave us experience at catching, killing and mounting insects.

would rather be taken out and shot. But if allowed to keep these guns they will stand by them until they die."

Being impressed with the sincerity of this letter, the President replied immediately, ordering the company to be furnished with both artillery, horses and wagons and assigned them to Moore's Third North Carolina Battalion.

The company distinguished itself at Culpepper, Winchester, the Battle of Seven Pines near Richmond in Redoubt No. 7, as well as Goldsboro, Kinston, Whitehall Bridge, Smithfield (now Southport); Fort Anderson, Town Creek, the streets of Wilmington and Cox's Bridge, before being ordered to surrender.

Although Edenton still has a number of the cannon used in the Revolutionary War, which were set up on the waterfront as dummies to hold the Yankee fleet at bay until the Confederate ram "Albatross" could steam down the Roanoke River and do them battle, it is not definitely known what became of the Bell Battery's cannon. It is supposed that they were dumped into the Eno River near Hillsboro when it became apparent that surrender was imminent.

"The difficulty experienced by us in locating the record of this monument emphasizes the importance of preserving our records for posterity," said Mr. Spire. "Having a vast store of historic events dating back to the early colonial days may cause us to lose sight of the fact that history is being made every year and someone ought to be appointed as county historian for the purpose of preserving such events as they occur," he continued.

REVIVAL IN PROGRESS

Revival services are in progress this week at Warwick Baptist Church and will continue throughout the week. The Rev. J. O. Mattox of Hertford is the visiting evangelist. Services are held daily at 3 P. M., and 8 P. M.
