

SENATOR SAM ERVIN SAYS

Washington—The Preparedness Subcommittee of the Senate Armed Services Committee will soon begin hearings on the United States missile and satellite programs.

Subcommittee
Its members are Senator Lyndon Johnson of Texas, chairman, and Senators Kefauver, Stennis, Symington, Bridges, Saltonstall and Flanders. As a member of the full Armed Services Committee I am vitally interested in the work of the subcommittee and will follow its deliberations with careful attention. Senator Johnson has pledged the committee's efforts toward a constructive inquiry.

There is no question of the need for a searching inquiry to determine what Congress needs to do in order to speed up our lagging program.

Rackets Committee
Recent hearings by the Senate Select Committee on Labor and Management have continued to paint an ugly picture of some conditions in this field.

I returned to Washington for a few days to attend the hearings which disclosed highly unsavory practices among some segments of management. I certainly want to give Chairman McClellan much credit for the very efficient and unbiased way he has conducted the hearings by our committee. The public probably will never realize the very hard work he and the staff have done. I feel that the country owes Senator John McClellan a heavy debt of gratitude for his efforts.

Elections

One definite lesson should be learned from the recent elections. It is that the race issue's value as a vote-getter in Northern areas is over-emphasized. Little Rock seemed to back-fire on the candidates who were using it for the purpose of securing the Negro vote. It reflects much credit on the wisdom of the average Negro citizen who will not be misled by emotional charges but rather will look to the party and candidates who offer him the best opportunity for all-around advancement through harmonious race relationships, better economic conditions, and the progress of the average man of all races.

With our very national survival at stake it is to be hoped that agitation on civil rights can cease. Great effort and all unity are needed in the search to regain our lost world position. I hope that we can all unite to work toward the realization of the goal of peace, security and prosperity for our country.

To Each His Own

"What did you come to college for anyway?" demanded the disgruntled professor. "You are not doing any studying."

"Well," replied the student, "Mother says it's to fit me for the Presidency of the United States. Uncle Jim says it's to sow my wild oats. Sister Helen says it's to get a chum for her to marry. And Dad says it's to bankrupt the family."

RESTORE BIRTHPLACE OF GIRL SCOUT FOUNDER

Restoration of the birthplace of one of America's famous women—Juliette Gordon Low, founder of Girl Scouts in America—has recently been completed in Savannah, Ga., through the efforts of the more than two and one-half million girls and adults of the Girl Scouts of the U. S. A.

It's the handsome, ante-bellum Wayne-Gordon mansion, considered one of the best surviving examples of the many handsome residences erected in Savannah in the 1820s and 1830s.

Action by the National Board of the Girl Scouts in 1953 saved the historic structure from being torn down to make way for commercial development. Funds for its purchase and restoration were raised by the Girl Scouts and today it stands as a memorable example of Old South architecture.

The structure, which occupies a quarter of a block, has been partially furnished with some of the original furniture. The remaining pieces will be carefully selected to reflect the era and section of the country.

In the bedroom which was occupied by Mrs. Low's parents, is the bed in which Juliette Low was born. Girl Scouting officials chose an authentic Birge Colonial collection wallpaper pattern with which to decorate the room in which the Girl Scouts' founder was born.

At the suggestion of the Girl Scouts, the design, for many years a popular one known as "Mayfair Chintz," has been renamed the "Juliette Gordon Low" by The Birge Company of Buffalo, N. Y., oldest wallpaper manufacturer in the U. S. The firm has long been known for its quality wallpaper products. Other Birge wallpapers were also used in the restoration of the mansion.

The mansion will be used as a center for Girl Scouting activities in Savannah. Its carriage house has been converted into a troop house for Girl Scouts. The long neglected garden has been restored and is now alive with yucca, fig and pomegranate trees, colorful flowers and shrubs. The service yard has been converted into a play area for Girl Scouts visiting the home.

The ground floor of the mansion houses Girl Scout exhibits, a modern kitchen, dining space and an assembly hall.

The house, when first completed, consisted of an English basement, a principal or parlor floor and one floor of bedrooms. Another floor was added in the mid-1880s. It is a spacious house with large rooms, crystal chandeliers, marble fireplaces and curved staircase.

Distinguished American figures visited it, among them Presidents William McKinley, and William Howard Taft, Admirals W. S. Schley and George Dewey.

Crashed The Gate?

the story of what happened at the funeral of a certain woman who during her life had constantly quarreled with everyone, henpecked her husband, and had been regarded by all as a genuine battleax.

But now that she was dead, people were willing to forgive and forget, and a crowded church listened to the minister as he droned his eulogy of the departed.

The sky grew darker and darker, and just as the service ended, a storm broke. There was a flash of lightning, followed by a crash of thunder.

All was silent in the church, and then from the front row came the voice of the widower: "Well, she got there."

Did you know this fact about... NORTH CAROLINA

In Raleigh at State College is the first college-owned nuclear reactor. It has attracted international attention and thousands have visited it. The cost: nearly 3/4 of a million dollars. Its use: to train men in nuclear engineering, and for experimental research in physics, chemistry, medicine, agriculture and engineering.

Progress in industrial research goes hand in hand with the same enlightened viewpoint of the citizens in those areas that favor the "legal control" system of the sale of beer and ale . . . because it is a method that has proven to be in the best interests of all concerned.
