Today—A random observation: A significant manifestation of our changing times is the streamlined cleanliness of the modern barber shop — the appointments, the equipment and the personnel. And also that by-product of all barber shops, the small talk, the off-color chit-chat has been considerably toned down, or in most cases completely eliminated. No longer is man's last stronghold, the barber shop, the uninhibited paradise it once was. . . . Maybe the cleanup can be attributed, in part, to the patronage of the ladies.

Marines Top Coast Guard By 92 To 75

Wednesday of last week the NAAS All-Star basketball team traveled to Elizabeth City, spotted the Coast Guard Air Station five there a height advantage and still came out on top by a score of 92-75. The rebounding efforts of Dave Fenty (HEDRON-1) and the net scorching of John Block (MABS-14) led the NAAS group to their second straight victory in as many games. Fenty, a 6-ft. 2-in. sergeant from Buffalo, New York, did a tremendous job in controlling both backboards, and was highly praised for his work by Coach Lt. Shore (MABS-14). Block was really "on" as he found the mark from all around the floor. He ended the evening with 39 points, 36 of them on field goals, as he hit for better than 70 per cent of his shots.

Three other players on the All-Star team hit in the double figures, proving it again a team victory. As in the last victory, Don Holman and Chuck Bates (both from VMA-211) were among the leading scorers, hitting 16 and 12 points, respectively. Chuck Wepner (MABS-14) was the other player scoring in the double figures with 13 points.

The All-Stars took the lead early in the first half and remained in front throughout the cently. A magazine article gives him well-deserved recognition for his fine work as a radio commentator and authority in the field of jazz. . . . And also gives Edenton a generous slice of publicity, too. . . . Keep up the good work, Donald.

Yesterday—It is only natural that we think first of Annie Oakley as the world's best shot. But Adolph Toppwein and his wife Elizabeth, probably topped any shot Annie Oakley ever made. Toppwein and his wife, as a team, were employed by the Winchester Arms Company as demonstrators of their rifles. Although contemporary with Annie Oakley, Toppwein never got the popular recognition that Annie Oakley received.

An interesting fact about the Old West: "Comanche", a horse belonging to Colonel Keogh, of General Custer's command, was the sole survivor of the famous game. Two brothers, who played college ball at Texas A&M, named McCulloch, scored 25 and 23 points, respectively, and Wolf had 20 to keep the Coast Guard in the game.

The Coast Guard five will travel here for the NAAS All-Stars' next game, to be played at the armory in Edenton on the night of February 6th. A game has also been scheduled for February 19th, when the team will travel to Camp Lejeune to play there.

battle of the Little Big Horn, when Custer's entire force was wiped out by the Indians.

Tomorrow—Have you ever focused the sun's rays through a reading glass and ignited small bits of wood or paper? The Air Force is constructing a huge sun mirror in New Mexico that will focus the sun's rays into a concentrated five-inch spot, with temperatures up to 7,000 degrees. This particular mirror will be used for high-speed missile research, but think of the unlimited power at our command if we could succeed in harnessing the sun's heat. . . . the sun is a huge atomic furnace of 12,000 degrees Fahrenheit on the surface, and 40 million degrees at the center. If only a fraction of this heat energy could be utilized by man, he would have solved his power problem for all time. Even atomic energy would have difficulty competing with the sun.

TEXT: "Impatience harms only the impatient."
—Eff Thomas

At a college lecture the students were eager to leave. They kept their eyes on the classroom clock. As the end of the lecture hour arrived, several students gathered their books impatiently, and rose to leave, even though the professor had not quite completed his lecture.

"Wait a moment," the professor objected, "don't go just yet. I have a few more pearls to cast." No other human attitude receives so many rebukes as impatience. Yet our impatience never seems to lessen. Impatience has ended many a romance; spoiled many a meal; lost many a sale; caused scores of failures and defeats in the lives of each one of us.

Measure all the eons of time that stretch before and behind us. Then measure one life's tiny span. How futile it is to be impatient of men or circumstances. If our impatience could achieve all the results we desire, they would be as nothing in man's march to the infinite.

Let us, then, side-step the tumult that impatience heaps upon us. Let us live every moment that we have; savour each fleeting second; living fully and easily. "Impatience harms only the impatient."

CALLS THAT COUNT

"Send a cab to 236 Front Street, please"

A pleasant stroll, an afternoon visit with a friend. . . . and then, when it's time to go, a sudden storm. But there's no need to worry, no need to get wet, either. A telephone call will bring a taxi.

The fact is, a telephone can bring help of any sort. It's at your service 24 hours a day, every day. . . . always there to help make your life just a little bit easier, more enjoyable.
