

NAAS Basketball Team Will Enter Tourney At Albany, Ga.

The NAAS All-Star basketball team lost its first basketball game of the season Wednesday of last week in a close, hard-fought contest with the Marines from Camp Lejeune. The local club was in the game all the way, but was nosed out by a score of 66-63, as Lejeune froze the ball for the last few minutes.

Actually, this was a moral victory for the All-Stars, because they lost by only three points to the number one service team in the East. Camp Lejeune has a record of 34 wins and 7 losses and has a 6 ft. 3 1/2 in. team height average. This tremendous height was one of the deciding factors in the victory. They have two men measuring 6 ft. 6 in. and one 6 ft. 7 in. The tallest man on the All-Star team was only 6 ft. 3 in. Because of this height advantage, Lejeune controlled both backboards throughout the game.

The All-Stars held it close all the way—sparked by little (5 ft. 9 in.) Don Holman, who was the game's leading scorer with 26 points. John Bates was close behind Holman, racking up 23 points. Chuck Wepner played a good all-around game and Coach Shore had nothing but praise for his entire squad. He also heaped praise freely upon the Lejeune cagers. "They are a fine ball club. You can't take that away from them," was his general opinion.

The All-Stars played without the services of one of their starting five, John Block, who sat this one out with a bruised knee.

The leading scorer for the Lejeune five was Marv Leggett, who was a former Little All-American at Texas A and M, with 13 points. Camp Lejeune has nine ex-college players on its team.

The next definite outing for the NAAS Club is an Invitational Tournament at Albany, Georgia, starting on March 4. The better service teams of the area have been invited to participate in this tournament. Camp Lejeune was invited, but had to decline the invitation due to a conflicting schedule.

witness his rebuking of John. Jesus was directing his words toward the narrow loyalties of mankind.

Many Christians throughout the various denominations have become convinced that the competitive divisions are harmful to the spread of Christianity, and have begun to do something to offset these divisions on a practical basis. Thus, today, a number of cooperative ventures have been established. Their interest in the unity of the churches forms the background of the ecumenical movement. As a result of this trend of thought more and more Christians seek the union of the churches into one great body. They feel that the Church—the Body of Christ—should by its very nature be a single, united community.

The many divisions of the Christian faith, as it stands today, have no desire to forsake the values of their individual historical past. Nor do they need to abandon them; religion, which has been practiced in one form or another since the beginning of time, is steeped in history—some good, some bad. Albeit, the bad has been discarded over a period of centuries, and mostly it is only the good that remains and

John Deere Day March 6

A treat of six all-color films awaits farmers and their families, who are to be guests of Hobbs Implement Company at the Edenton Elementary School auditorium Thursday night, March 6, at 7:30 o'clock.

The film fare, which is to be shown will be headed by a full-length feature titled "Tim's Choice." According to Guy C. Hobbs, "Tim's Choice" is a happy type of movie built around the three youngsters of a typical rural family. How the delightful young trio, all of 4-H age, vie with one another for activity honors and the sometimes anxious, sometimes comical, situations they find themselves in provides a story that is a pleasant combination of humor and sentiment.

All leading players have been seen frequently in motion pictures and on television and carry off their respective roles superbly.

The Gordon family, a Deere-created clan that has grown to seem as real as it is actually fictional, appear in the picture "A Lease on the Future." This and then, truly, will be serving Jesus, when we have worked towards his dearest wish—ONE LORD, ONE FAITH.

EARLY MORNING TRYST

By JOHN D. MCCREADY

Editor's Note: This is one of a series of articles written by John D. McCready, head of the English Department at Chowan College. Mr. McCready for 18 years was pastor of the First Baptist Church at Morganton and served as army chaplain in World War II and was state chaplain for the American Legion. Since connected with Chowan College, Mr. McCready has preached at many churches in this area.

There was another cold winter half a century ago! One night sleet encased a small North Carolina town in ice. One of the few owners of cars was driving his rickety model through a lonely street about four o'clock on a Sunday morning. Suddenly in the distance he noticed, by the dim light of the street lamps, a strange object slowly making its way along.

"What on earth is that—a bear?" he exclaimed. Closer scrutiny revealed his mistake. It was not a bear but a man. Pink Hildebrand was crawling along on hands and knees toward his church. He was going to build a fire, so that the sanctuary, in spite of the frigid weather, would be comfortable.

Mr. Hildebrand was one of the leading men of the community. He kept an old-fashioned general store, in which everything was sold from groceries to dress goods. On Saturday, as was the custom of those days, the store stayed open until midnight. Yet these late hours did not interfere with his work on Sunday.

He was superintendent of a Sunday School, which was attended by children who today are among the most prominent people of North Carolina. They love to tell about the little bell he used, to send classes to their rooms and later bring them back. They can never forget how he carefully counted the offering and announced it, urging the boys and girls to be good stewards.

On Sunday afternoons Uncle Pink, as he was called by numerous nieces and nephews and many others of the younger generation, would walk four miles into the country and four miles back to conduct a mission. He was an all-weather Christian who knew how to endure hardness. The secret of his faithfulness was a tiny room he had fitted up for special use in his home—his prayer room.

Sometime before the episode of the winter night, a problem had arisen in Mr. Hildebrand's church. A janitor was needed. The members had built an attractive edifice, large for that time and community, and its care required almost more attention and expense than they could afford.

One Sunday Uncle Pink made a proposal. He had doubtless taken their problem for solution to his prayer-room. He offered himself as janitor without wages. His fellow members hesitated to allow a man so busy to assume the menial tasks which the job involved. But he was insistent, and they consented. From that time on, enjoying first class janitorial service, the congregation never had to worry about the comfort of the sanctuary. The devoted caretaker would arise at four on Sunday mornings and make his way to the church.

On the night of our story he had arisen at the usual hour, but found walking virtually impossible. The streets and sidewalks were like glass. But he was not to be stopped. Wrapping his feet and hands in gunny sacks, he started out on all fours in the darkness of the bitter night. Uncle Pink's portrait—a serene kindly face, with a close-cropped beard—hangs in a prominent place in an assembly room of the Sunday School building erected a score of years after this saintly layman went to his reward. Many lessons have been taught there. Few, however, have been so practical as the lesson taught by the life of this man, who knew how to go forward on his knees.

See-Worthy

On the beach a genial fat man watched a group of shapely young ladies in scanty swim suits as they went through their morning setting-up exercises. "Do you think this sort of thing is really good for reducing?" a sour-visaged acquaintance demanded.

"Unquestionably!" beamed the fat man. "Why, I walk three miles every morning to watch it."

By USING TEST PROVEN SOIL FUMIGANTS We Have In Stock a Complete Line of Soil Fumigants And Application Equipment Announcing DORLONE

DORLONE* will control a wider range of nematodes than most other fumigants. Its effective and economical control comes from a combination of proved soil fumigation chemicals. Extensive tests of DORLONE have proved that it will control rootknot, stunted (tobacco stunt) meadow or lesion nematodes and other parasitic nematodes. If you have a combination of nematodes as your problem, DORLONE provides effective control in a single fumigant. DORLONE eliminates the need to switch fumigants to prevent the build-up of nematodes not affected by some soil fumigants.

Table with 2 columns: Fumigant and Nematode Effectiveness. Rows include DORLONE, DOWFUME W-85, and TELONE.

Where meadow nematodes are a problem TELONE is especially recommended for control of meadow and cyst-forming nematodes. Use TELONE on vegetables, cotton, peanuts, citrus replants and onions in all soils—including muck. Also, you'll find this new, highly concentrated Dow fumigant clear and free of impurities. It'll never clog equipment.
