

Tomb Unveiling In Memory Of Rev. L. G. Nichols

Plans have been completed for unveiling of a tomb to the memory of the late L. G. Nichols, who was pastor of Providence Baptist Church from 1930 to 1946, coming to Edenton from the Peoples Baptist Church in Portsmouth, New Hampshire.

The local church was lacking in interest and work upon his arrival, caused in part by the economic depression, but he applied the old truths which had been preached with great success by able pastors preceding him, so that the community and the church was uplifted during his ministry.

The unveiling will take place at Vine Oak Cemetery Friday (Memorial Day) at 3 P. M. The program will be under the direction of Mrs. Ruth H. Frinks. Music will be under the direction of Mrs. Elizabeth Barnes. The speaker for the occasion will be the Rev. S. N. Griffith. Mrs. F. M. Blount, as well as a few others who knew him intimately, will also make a few remarks.

Georgia also had narrow roads and cows and pigs had the right-of-way. Accommodations were very few and at times it was necessary to drive 70 miles between stops. Most of you have children and you think you have trouble traveling with them now.

"In spite of all this, a small group of men were able to envision a great future in automotive travel, and the Ocean Highway Association had its inception at Myrtle Beach. Officers were elected, a budget of $7,500 was adopted and approximately 50 sponsors made up the association that first year.

"Now the Ocean Highway has been shortened to 998 miles of modern, well paved, restful highways from the pines to the palms. The time for crossing the Chesapeake Bay by ferry has been shortened and a bridge-tunnel crossing is in the advanced engineering stages.

"Now there are more than 350 members in the Ocean Highway Association, the annual budget is over $100,000 and 1,000,000 Ocean Highway map folders are distributed each year.

"Accommodations are wonderful—hotels, motels, restaurants, service stations, and plenty of them!

"The weather being as cold as it was in Florida last winter, there are those of you who might say that there are too many accommodations. You and I have no control over the weather, but never get the idea that the amount of traffic and the improvement to the roads along the Ocean Highway just happened.

"From the very beginning of the association there has been a recognized need for outstanding promotion through newspapers, outdoor advertising and an attractive map folder. As traffic increases because of this promotion, efforts are made through the various state highway commissions for improved roads. The officers and staff of the association have always dedicated themselves to the best interest of the membership and the fruits of their labor can be seen in the millions of dollars invested in tourist accommodations along this safe route.

"No, it didn't just happen. The members were cast in star roles, too, but many of us become complacent in our attitude regarding the amount of work necessary for the members to perform in order for the Ocean Highway to continue its traffic growth. You may feel that the completion of the bridge-tunnel across Chesapeake Bay will bring more traffic than can be accommodated by present facilities along the Ocean Highway. I will agree—if proper promotion is given to the advantages of traveling the Ocean Highway. Otherwise you can expect this: Southbound traffic from the bridge-tunnel will go in 16 different directions and northbound traffic from Florida will hit or miss—the bridge-tunnel from 16 different directions.

"The bridge-tunnel is the greatest opportunity the members of the association have had to meet a challenge. A challenge to be a part of a bigger, stronger and better Ocean Highway Association. Don't think in terms of your individual problems, but in terms of an overall program with long range planning.

"During the coming year your officers and staff will make a concerted effort to secure more members in the Ocean Highway Association. Last year Lloyd Macklen requested each of us to secure an additional new member. Some of us did just that, some did more, others did nothing. May I ask you again to do that same thing? That's not asking too much, is it? I'll thank you from the bottom of my heart.

"You do that and I'll promise you that this year we will have even more promotion through newspapers and outdoor advertising, and your association will grow bigger, stronger and better through moral and financial support from all sources."

you go too far with them, you may be building up big trouble for yourself.

Forcing yourself to "take it on the chin" is no way to solve a painful problem. Actually it's a form of self-punishment. Sometimes it's better to be an escapist for awhile. Note "for awhile". Lose yourself in a movie or a book or a game, or a brief trip for a change of scene. Then you can come back to your problem and deal with it in better condition emotionally and intellectually.

If you're boiling internally with anger, physical activity is a good escape and relief for tension. Pitch into something strenuous like gardening or tennis or window washing or wood chopping. Work the anger out of your system and you'll be better prepared to handle your problem intelligently.

Frequently it helps to confide your problem to some level-headed person you can trust: husband or wife, father or mother, clergyman, family doctor or teacher. Talking things out helps relieve strain and often helps you see your troubles in a clearer light. You might even get help toward a solution. There's no virtue in shutting yourself off from help that's available.

Everybody has problems. Everybody gets anxious and tense occasionally. This is normal. The time to worry is when emotional upsets are frequent and severe and don't wear off. A little common-sense escapism can help maintain good mental health.
