

95 Million Seedlings Are Now Available For Tar Heel Growers

Tar Heel foresters will have an estimated 95 million seedlings available for planting during the coming season.

While the 1958-59 supply is greater than this year's, farmers are urged to place their orders as soon as possible.

Walt Keller, forestry specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service, points out that the expected supply can be changed by losses to insects, diseases and storms.

All orders will be filled on a first-come, first-serve basis by the N. C. Division of Forestry. Orders will be accepted immediately.

Keller advises prospective buyers to contact their local county farm agents for the necessary order blanks.

According to Keller, an inventory of the four state nurseries shows the following seedlings available:

Loblolly pine—About 64 million seedlings available. The supply should be plentiful.

Slash pine—About 10,800,000 available, which should be enough to take care of demands for the coming year.

Longleaf pine—About 1,200,000 seedlings available. Get orders in early.

Shortleaf pine—About 1,250,000 seedlings available.

Virginia pine—About 350,000 seedlings available. These pines should be used only in certain locations. Prospective growers are advised to consult their local county agent or forester before ordering this species.

White pine—About 14 million seedlings available, which should be enough to meet demands for the first time.

Red cedar—The supply is short. Only 700,000 seedlings are available. Order early.

Yellow poplar—About one million seedlings available. This will be 10 times more than last year. However, demand is expected to be fairly heavy.

Balsam fir—About 400,000 seedlings available. This fir can be used in Christmas tree plantings at higher elevation in western North Carolina.

Norway spruce—Only 60,000 seedlings are available. This spruce makes a fair Christmas tree under certain conditions. Local foresters should be consulted, however, before very many are planted.

County agents will have a seedling price list.

The prices will run from $3.75 to $5.75 for each thousand of the pine, cedar and poplar seedlings when picked up at the nurseries. An additional 50 cents per thousand will be added if the seedlings are delivered.

The Balsam fir and Norway spruce seedlings will sell for $15.50 per thousand, delivered.

Information on free 4-H seedlings will be made available later.

Extension Service Gets Safety Award

The N. C. Agricultural Extension Service has received a special award from the American Water Safety Congress.

David S. Weaver, extension director, received the award from Mitchell Kirkland of the American Red Cross, acting for members of the board of directors of the Water Safety Congress. The award was presented for outstanding educational work in promoting water safety, and in particular farm pond safety.

Weaver heads a state group promoting water safety. The Extension Service has made water safety a major part of its farm safety educational program. Much of the work has been carried out among 4-H Club members, with 4-H leaders and county farm agents cooperating. Also, the Extension Service has conducted an active program of water safety education among its professional agricultural workers.

Miss Morris Speaks At Beech Fork Meeting

It has been said that an expert salad maker uses one-fourth common sense and three-fourths imagination to make salads that are works of art. Miss Maired Morris ably proved that at the July meeting of the Beech Fork Home Demonstration Club by making a raw salad that could be used for dessert. Miss Morris said, "Pep up your meals with salads, fill in the foods needed to complete a good meal with them. To keep fresh fruits bright in color, dip in tart juice or water with a little vinegar added. Could you ask for a more pleasant way to get the fruits and vegetables you need daily?"

Mrs. Willie Saunders presided at the meeting held at the home of Mrs. Stillman Leary. Mrs. I. E. Halsey and Mrs. Mona Hoffer discussed their plans to go on the UN tour. The August picnic was discussed but no definite plans were made. Mrs. Cora Harrell gave the devotional taken from Colossians 4:6, and followed by prayer.

Miss Morris gave the group a "What's Cooking" quiz, and then read two poems, "Tobacco Time" and "Do You Jest Belong," which were very entertaining.

After the meeting, the hostess served drinks and cookies, which were very refreshing to everyone.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Continued from Page 6—Section 2 highly than he ought to think." (Romans 12:3). The basis of partiality is often self-love. The individual deems himself to be the fit companion of the wealthy, or the brilliant, or the famous. He defers to such, but disregards his less noble neighbor. But the Christian ethic for society is the fulfillment of the ends of all persons in the community.

The goal of love is also the goal of social justice. Therefore it follows that an aim of love should be the establishing and maintaining of social justice. Christian social justice aims at the extension of neighborly love to groups of persons. It seeks the good of the group, but also indirectly the good of each individual member of the group.

If one is firmly committed to the principle of freedom to worship God as the individual desires, not only will he tolerate the views of others, but he will speak for their right to be different. He will resist every attempt to grant any one denomination or sect an advantage over the others. He will not even seek a favored position for his own religious body. Furthermore, he will, on occasion, find himself in the unpopular position of defending the rights of a group with whom he does not agree. Attempts to harass or license any religious group will be attacked as an abridgment of a basic right.

Humility is one of the basic precepts of Christianity. Pride is an ever-present temptation to the good man. As each one of us seeks social justice for others, we are tempted to pride. This is another thing against which we must be on our guard.

Neither do Christians have any license to sit back contentedly because some evil has been rectified. The law of love is continuous and full and complete justice are the goals for which we must strive. The early Christians regarded themselves as a community. The Gospel declared that love was the only satisfactory basis of community. This basis of love must enlarge itself from the core of Christianity, to embrace the whole world, making the brotherhood of man truly a "brotherhood."

Class struggles have not rent the United States as they have many other nations. It behooves society to foster even greater justice for all classes so that class identification will not destroy the spirit of community. The Christian has a higher motivation.
