

Young Churchmen Elect New Officers

In their first autumn meeting Sunday evening in the Parish House the Young Churchmen of Saint Paul's Episcopal Church re-elected Miss Milly Price, president. Other officers elected are Alexander Kehayes, vice president; Miss Sara Relfe Smith, secretary, and James M. Johnson, Jr., treasurer. Mrs. Myda Taylor was re-elected sponsor with the election of another sponsor to be decided next Sunday.

The Young Churchmen were presented an achievement banner which was earned in the Diocese of East Carolina last year for successfully completing a ten-point program. The group is also well known as sponsors of the Christmas Empty Stocking Fund and has been responsible for several community projects in the past. The group meets in the Guild Room of the Parish House each Sunday evening at 7 o'clock for ages 14-18.

He said he will not excuse any juror for business reasons unless it will be more convenient to serve at the next term of court. A few were excused under this condition. "It is an important duty and a privilege," he said, "for you to be engaged in this worthwhile endeavor of administering justice. This ancient Court House has been occupied for many years to administer equal justice between one man and another. It is our obligation to have conditions as good or better as left by our forefathers. Every man should receive justice and make things as near right as we can humanly do."

Judge Bundy then gave brief but clear instructions to the Grand Jury, telling them their duties fall in two categories. First was bills of indictment, which he fully explained. The other was inspection and investigation of operation of the county's business. "You are a representative body of your county to inquire into condition and operation of county business," he said. "Your jail need not be a modern hotel, but it should be clean, safe and a sanitary place. School buildings should be safe, comfortable and sanitary. School buses should be safe for transportation. You should see if justices of the peace have made a proper accounting of money and that guardians have made their necessary reports."

Criminal cases were still being tried Wednesday and cases dis-
