

AROUND THE FARMS IN CHOWAN

By C. W. OVERMAN, Chowan County Agent

Sweet Potato House Fumigation is being done by the use of Larvacide. Chowan County growers have found Larvacide to be a very effective means to control diseases and any insects or rodents carried over in the curing houses.

This method of fumigating involves thoroughly cleaning the house, wetting it down and leaving it closed for three or four hours so that a high humidity builds up. Then at least a pound can of Larvacide is used for each 1,000 Cubic feet of space in the house. Instructions must be carefully followed in order to avoid any danger to the applicant. As soon as a treatment is applied, the house is immediately closed as tight as possible, being sure that the ventilators are closed tightly and left so 40 hours. At the end of 48 hours the vent is opened and the doors opened and left to air out for at least a period of one day. This provides a clean house for new potatoes to be cured and stored. It is well to remember that any used containers which are being used again should be fumigated in the house.

The Chowan County Fair was quite successful last week, in my opinion. The weather man smiled on us with sunny weather providing an opportunity for good attendance.

I am informed that the attendance was well above that of last year in spite of the busy peanut digging season on our farms. The number of field crops entered was perhaps slightly less than normal but the exhibits were of about normal quality. The horticulture exhibits were as extensive as normal and also of very good quality. I think that we had some of the best educational booths that we have ever had. The home department appeared to me to be fully as much if not more than normal.

I want to congratulate all of our farm people who participated in helping to make the Fair a success and also the businessmen and others of Edenton for their wonderful cooperation. The County Fair is basically an agricultural fair, therefore, we as agriculture workers try to do everything possible to help make it successful. For a fair to be successful, the exhibits must show progress in the application of improved farm and home practices. It reveals a better way of living for our farm people through educational aspects which show the way. I want to congratulate the American Legion for their sponsorship and excellent cooperation in making this event one of the main ones of the year for Chowan County.

Why greater care than is customary should be exercised in selecting Senators and Representatives for the next Congress is explained clearly by one of the leading conservatives—Senator Goldwater (R-Ariz.).

"I believe," he says, "that the coming 86th Congress is faced with probably as great a challenge as any Congress of the United States ever will be faced with—namely, to face up to its responsibilities to the American people in two general areas—first, the area of financial soundness, and, second, the area of proper labor legislation.

"To do this is going to require courage of a type that has not been too obvious in Washington, this country.

"Next year, men are going to be called on to be men, and to stand up in Congress and vote, not with an eye toward perpetuating themselves in office, but with an eye to perpetuating the American Constitutional Republic, its freedoms, and our free enterprise system."

Many issues, of course, will be considered by the next Congress, including labor legislation, tax reform, government economy, and protection of state laws against federal preemption. In fact, virtually every issue before the 85th Congress is certain to reappear in some form before the 86th Congress—plus many more now being dreamed up by the New-Fair Dealers.

A coalition of conservative Republicans and southern Democrats succeeded in the recent Congress in stopping some of the legislative proposals pushed by the New-Fair Dealers. But what will happen to this legislation in the next Congress if the ranks of labor-supported New-Fair Dealers are substantially increased? This question is causing real concern to the conservatives.

In the session of Congress that just ended, it was estimated that approximately 180 House members (a majority is 218) and 40 Senators (a majority is 49) usually could be counted on to support labor's position on legislation. As a result, researchers have been unable to find a single piece of major legislation opposed by labor that has been passed during the two most recent sessions of Congress.

Organized labor now is waging an all-out campaign in an effort to obtain an actual majority of Senators and Representatives who will vote down the line for labor's legislative program.

Needless to say, the more New-Fair Dealers there are in the next Congress the more likelihood there is of enactment of a major part—or all—of the AFL-CIO program.

Practical illustration A youngster asked his father how wars began.

"Well," said the father, "suppose America quarreled with England and—"

"But," interrupted the mother, "America mustn't quarrel with England."

"I know," he answered, "but I am taking a hypothetical instance."

"You are misleading the child," said the mother. "No, I am not," he answered. "All right, dad," said the boy. "Yes, you are." "Don't get excited. I think I tell you I am not! It's know how wars begin."

FACES A CHALLENGING FUTURE
Native handicrafts form an important segment of the economy in the North Carolina Highlands. These people work with metal, leather, textiles, wood, clay, gems and their crafts range through weaving, ceramics, carving, gem cutting, rug making, spinning, basket making, ornate enameled and furniture. It is a cottage industry with organized market centers in Asheville and Blowing Rock. A craft school in Penland attracts students from all over the world—thus this whole area is being opened to further education and enlightenment.

And with enlightenment comes the ever practical solution of the "legal control" system for the sale of beer and ale, as proven to be in the best interests of temperance and moderation.

Beer—the light, bright beverage of moderation

No Comment

"NO COMMENT" is a report of incidents on the national scene, and does not necessarily reflect NAM policy or position.

Washington — Electing members of Congress is an obligation of citizenship that should be regarded with deepest concern, for one never knows what transcendent problems may develop in the years ahead.

Right now the problems awaiting action by the Senators and Representatives elected on November 4 are of such magnitude that the next session of Congress is certain to be one of the most important in peacetime history. Because this is such a crucial period, congressional action will have an extraordinary effect on the nation's future—and also, inevitably, on the future of the world.

It is for this reason that conservative members of Congress—of both parties—are urging, with greater emphasis than ever before, that the voters make a real study of the campaign issues so that they will cast their ballots in the light of the nation's highest
