The Three P's:
There is a great deal now being written and discussed about paid "TV." Some people seem to be in favor of it on the basis of seeing better entertainment; others say there will be no difference. Do you have any comment on this subject?

Alex P. T.
Dear Alex:
First let us clear up a few points. First you are suffering under a delusion if you think you are not paying for radio and television entertainment.

Every time Minnie's hair-do or Jasper's men's underwear backs a show on radio or TV they pay through the nose for it and you pay for it every time you buy Minnie's hair-do or Jasper's men's underwear. It is true you do not have any selection of the program except the right to turn it off if you do not like it.

Another misconception is that you should be entertained 24 hours a day and that there are sufficient entertainers to give you high class entertainment on an around the clock basis. Such an idea stupefies the mind and takes away from you the ability to entertain yourself once in a while.

That the so called stars, crooners and rock 'n roll performers are underpaid is far from the truth. Many of them are millionaires many times over, have their own producing companies, receive continual royalties and many of them have controlling interests in other corporations outside of the entertainment field.

You are paying for that whether you realize it or not while you get your weekly salary and live in hopes that some day you will be free from debt and save that first thousand dollars.

The argument for paid TV and radio is that you will get performances and better entertainment and a wider selection within your own choosing. Well, let us face the facts: You will have the same stars as you have now; you will have the same over glamorous movies with a deep sex appeal and ridiculous plots that insult the mind of an intelligent person.

The one thing you will miss is the commercial. However, once you put your quarter in the slot and the entertainment is poor, you can still turn it off, but you will have lost your quarter. Right now the TV producers are hard put to it and from present observation to The Three P's:

I am a man and I have never written to a woman's column or any other column, but under my skin I have a problem I would like to get out in the open. I have a wonderful wife and I love her but for the past year and a half she has gotten in the habit of staying in bed and letting me get my own breakfast. I do not mind this once in a while, especially when she is sick, but as a steady diet it is too much. Now, from one man to another, and I presume you are a man, what would you suggest I do. I know after I leave for work my wife gets up when she feels like it, primps up, goes shopping, goes to social affairs and plays bridge. Please let me know what to do before I blow up.

Dan N. T.
Dear Dan:
Yes, you do have a problem and it is not uncommon; in fact, it is becoming rather prevalent from all the letters I receive from general conversation. Of course, in a certain way you yourself are responsible. Perhaps this habit of your wife staying in bed and letting you get your own breakfast started in a natural way. Your wife was indisposed one morning and asked you if you would not get your breakfast that morning. You being a sympathetic, understanding and loving husband, replied, "Yes, honey, do not bother your head about it; you stay in bed until you feel better." Well that was the beginning. Your wife rather enjoyed the luxury of staying in bed in the morning. So she tried it again and again and you agreed until it became a habit. Well, there is only one thing you can do, just tell your wife that from now on she is to get up and get your breakfast or else. And that "else" can be anything you choose it to be, threatening to get all of your meals out to you holding on to the pay check and doling out the money in dribs and drabs. This, I am sure, will have the desired effect. If this does not work, drop me another line and I will have something else to suggest that I am sure will correct this habit.

from other shows to put on a few so called funny skits. It is following the old line of vaudeville, but falls far below the mark of the old vaudeville shows. Either way you are going to pay for the entertainment; it just depends upon how you want to pay for it. Do not misunderstand your counselor; there are good TV and radio shows and movies, but they are few and far between. You are going to be a victim either way, unless you express your criticism and do not expect to be entertained by some one else in your idle moments.

Christmas Trees May Be Hazard
Do you wait until your Christmas tree becomes a fire hazard before you dismantle it? Miss Mamie Whisnant, home management specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service, emphasizes that the fresh tree that is not kept in water or wet sand becomes a fire hazard in less than a week.

For safety's sake, take the tree down before New Year's celebrations. After the tree is removed, clean the area thoroughly. Your tree may have been commercially treated to be fireproof. In this case, you may enjoy it as long as you desire.

National Outlook

by giving a credit to the account of the government, and that involves an increase in the money supply.

An increase in the money supply is inflationary unless it is offset by an equal growth in the volume of goods and services being offered for sale. The threat of inflation is the third great worry. More persons today than at any time in several years are convinced that there is further inflation ahead.

The fear of inflation is not simply the result of the federal deficit. Government spending itself is inflationary when it gets to present totals. And wages overall still are increasing at least as rapidly, and perhaps more rapidly, than output per manhour, which means a continuation of the wage-price spiral.

On the other side, we have substantial unused productive capacity, and there is plenty of labor. It may well be, therefore, that we shall have a sufficient increase in the volume of goods and services coming into the market to absorb the increased money supply. But that would still leave government spending and the wage-push as inflationary factors.

The final worry which must be mentioned is the negative outlook. It is certain that we shall have labor and tax legislation. In neither case will it be all that is needed, but by hard work it may be possible to make some progress in these fields.

The worry arises from other laws which may be passed by the new Congress. The list of possibilities runs well over a score and the aggregate cost would be billions of dollars. Some of these will be opposed by the Administration, some will not be. The most than can be said at the moment is that the new Congress will not be an aid to continuation of the business recovery.

Four Fire Alarms During Holidays

Quietness of the Christmas was broken with Edenton firemen being called out for four fires, two on Friday, December 26, and two on Saturday, December 27.

One of the Friday alarms came from the Gliden community but the firemen returned before arrival after learning that the fire was put out. The other fire was at the home of Percy Twine, colored, on the Mexico Road.

Twine's wife had finished washing clothes and placed them near a heater, as the result of which they caught fire. Practically all of the clothes were burned.

The first Saturday fire was at Habit's Tavern, where an oil heater flooded, but no damage was done. The second fire was caused when a 1954 Buick automobile belonging to Percy Halsev burned. The fire started inside the car and gutted the entire interior.

Married Is Mississippi

St. Paul's Catholic Church in Pass Christian, Mississippi was the setting Sunday afternoon, December 7, at 3 o'clock for the wedding of Miss Frances Neacise and W. T. (Bill) Boyce, Jr. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilburn E. Neacise of Gulfport, Miss., and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Boyce, Sr., of Edenton.

The Rev. James Pillar, O.M.I. officiated at the double ring ceremony. Vows were exchanged before the altar banked with ferns and white gladioli interspersed with greenery and lighted with white tapers. Pews were marked with white satin ribbons and greenery.

Preceding the entrance of the wedding party, Miss Ann Liverseed, organist, played a program of nuptial music and used the traditional wedding marches as the processional and recessional.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length wedding gown of white lace and tulle over bridal satin, designed with a fitted bodice, Victorian collar of lace tapering to a sweetheart neckline embroidered with white seed pearls, and long sleeves ending in Calla points. The full skirt of bridal tulle featured lace panels. Her fingertip veil of illusion was held in place by a cap of lace and seed pearls. She carried a cascade arrangement of white carnations centered with an orchid. Her only jewelry was a single strand of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom.

Miss DeLores Ann Cuevas, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor and Miss Gayle Bradley was bridesmaid. The bridegroom's father served as best man and Jerlon Ladner was groomsman. Ushers were Gordon Spears and Hayward Ladner, cousins of the bride.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Old South Motor Lodge in Pass Christian where the young couple was assisted in receiving by the parents of the bride and bridegroom, and Mr. and Mrs. Alcide Neacise, grandparents of the bride.

Later in the afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Boyce left on a wedding trip. They will make their home in Edenton. For traveling the bride chose a sky blue wool suit, navy accessories and the orchid from her bouquet.
