

WITH THE FARM WOMEN

By VIRGINIA M. NANCE, Extension Home Economics Editor

First Check

The "exhilarating" effect of writing their first check was recently experienced by many Wake County Home Demonstration Club women.

Mrs. Myrle Swicegood, home economics agent, first discussed the banking services available to them — including the various types of checks that are commonly used. She stressed the importance of properly stubbing the check for future identification.

Each club woman then "practiced" writing and stubbing a check; a first experience for many of them.

Craft Leaders

Graham County is especially proud of two young Home Demonstration Club women that are promoting craft work in that county.

These women, according to Home Economics Agent Nellie Carter, began learning many crafts when they were 4-H'ers. Now, they are able to help others learn these skills so that they, in turn, might benefit from craft experience.

Copper enameling, gimp crafts, Swedish darning, and leather work are among the popular crafts in that county.

Projects For The Future

The Leasburg Community Development Group of Caswell County has few idle moments these days.

Their dream of a community club house is now a part of the future. With each of their various money-raising projects, it becomes more of a reality.

Miss Lillie Wise, assistant home economics agent, reports they prepared and served stew, pie and coffee at an auction for a profit of $58.

New Desk

Mr. and Mrs. Theron Wright of the Hickory Grove community in Lincoln County, have been refinishing several pieces of furniture.

From an old kitchen cabinet and a piece of plywood, Mr. Wright made a desk for use in their family room. The desk was painted a pale green to accommodate the color scheme in that room.

The total cost of the desk, including the paint was $3.75.

Outstanding 4-H'ers

Four outstanding Iredell County 4-H'ers presented the program at a recent 4-H County Council meeting.

Clyde Templeton, gave an inspiring report on her trip to the Canadian 4-H Club Congress.

A student of home economics at the University of Maryland, Nancy Mason, compared the 4-H program of this state with the program in Maryland.

The inspiring devotional was led by Sue Goforth, a freshman at Appalachian State College.

And Lucile Mayes, North Carolina's 1958 Girls' Home Economics winner, related her experiences at the 37th National 4-H Club Congress.

"It was evident in this program how the lives of these 4-H Club members had been made richer and fuller as a result of the varied activities they had participated in through the 4-H work," says Miss Doris Teeter, assistant home economics agent.

Aluminum Etching

Twenty-two 16-inch trays were completed in an aluminum etching workshop conducted by Mrs. E. C. McLawhorn and Mrs. John Ives of the Harlowe Home Demonstration Club of Carteret County.

These leaders had complete charge of the workshop; they ordered all of the supplies, arranged for a meeting place and instructed each phase of the process.

Their efforts were justified. "The trays reflected quality work and they were truly beautiful," said Mrs. Floy Garner, home economics agent.

LONG WAIT—Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Holmgren, of Memphis, Tenn., are especially proud of their baby, Jane Elizabeth. She's the first female child born to the Holmgren family in two centuries, according to Holmgren. His family history, dating back to its Swedish origin, shows no daughters in all that time.

ification that must be met before Congress will appropriate federal money for water development. We have a great many projects in North Carolina that will meet the requirements of these formulas and it is false economy to fail to complete them.

I hope very much that Congress will over-ride the recommendations of the President concerning the pending projects we have in North Carolina in order to carry out a reasonable program of water resources development.

60 - SECOND SERMONS

TEXT: "Superior man blames himself. Inferior man blames others." —Confucius.

Little Betsy ran into the house crying as though her heart would break.

"What's wrong, dear?" exclaimed her mother. "My dolly! My dolly! Billy broke it!" she sobbed.

"But how did he break it, darling?" her mother asked. "I hit him over the head with it," was the reply.

When you have erred, do you instinctively admit it, or do you look for someone or something to blame? Most of us will look for a scapegoat. Yet the scapegoat of the ancient Hebrews was a far more humane way to atone for error. Today we blame innocent people or objects. Why? The psychologists have interesting answers and none are complimentary. We may accuse others because we fear censure. Sometimes we just don't like ourselves. From our miserable viewpoint, other people appear unworthy. We can, also, balance our ego by blaming others. We feel if we can tear down others we have built up ourselves.

The next time that you err and lift a finger to point out the blame — stop! Think. Whose fault was it, really? If even a little shred of the blame belongs to you, accept it. You'll make a lot of friends that way. You'll like yourself, too.

How pleasant it is to pity the fate of an enemy when we have nothing more to fear from him. —Pierre Corneille.

Kickoff Breakfast To Start Campaign

purchased prior to that time. Beginning at the eleventh year and for each year following principal plus interest will be paid. He added that the stock will not receive dividends but if the building and property are sold to the prospective manufacturer, stockholders will share in any money realized from the sale.

A "Question and Answer" pamphlet and purchase form have been prepared which each campaigner will have for prospective investors. Copies of both may also be obtained at the Chamber of Commerce office.

Each campaigner is being asked to see his prospects immediately. Chairman Graham emphasized that "we must know in one week what the results are. We feel the community can and will make it possible to bring the prospective manufacturer here. If we are successful it could be the start of industrial development in this area."

A parade headed by the Edenton Junior-Senior High School Band, under the direction of DeWoods Bray, and a large motorcade of campaigners will form at the high school and proceed down Broad Street, stirring up a good deal of enthusiasm along the way. Most of the campaigners are planning to start seeing prospects right after the parade breaks.

Conger said plans for the campaign were arranged by a Coordinating Committee comprised of John W. Graham, chairman, Gilliam Wood, W. E. Bond, Ernest P. Kehaves, J. H. Conger, Sr., Albert G. Byrum, W. P. Jones, Henry Quinn, Richard S. Atkinson, Jr., George Twiddy, William S. Privott, A. B. Harless, Ernest J. Ward, Jr., R. N. Hines, Harry Smith, Jr., J. H. Conger, Jr., and A. C. Boyce.

General Chairman Graham said the campaign organization consists of four main divisions each headed by a colonel with captains and campaigners.

Division A is headed by Colonel J. H. Conger, Sr.; Captains J. Clarence Leary and Dr. Frank Wood; Campaigners Albert Byrum, Richard P. Baer and Dr.

Richard Hardin.

Division B is headed by Colonel Gilliam Wood; Captains J. R. DuLaney, John Mitchener and J. P. Partin; Campaigners Gerald James, Dr. A. F. Downum, G. H. Harding, West Leary, Frank Holmes, Frank Elliott, Al Phillips, Lloyd Bunch, Haywood Bunch, G. B. Potter and Murray Baker.

Division C is headed by Colonel Henry Quinn; Captains Ralph Parrish, W. E. Malone, Ed Parker and Jesse Harrell; Campaigners Bill Wells, George Alma Byrum, J. W. Davis, Richard Dixon, Jr., J. P. Ricks, Sr., T. C. Byrum, Jr., Jimmie Earnhardt, J. C. Parks, Bill Perry and Gus Hughes.

Division D is headed by Colonel W. P. Jones; Captains Elton Forehand, Nick George, Bruce Jones, Gene Ward and L. H. Haskett; Campaigners Tom Shepard, Claude Griffin, James Bond, A. B. Harless, Jr., W. W. Byrum, Jr., Larry Dowd, A. C. Griffin, Ernest Ward, Jr., Warren Twiddy, Dr. Edward Bond, Kenneth Worrell, Gene Perry, Robert Smith, Joe Thorud, Luther Parks, Dr. Louis Ferguson, Jasper Hassell, Scott Harrell, Shelton Moore, Oscar Griffin, William Easterling, Caswell Edmundson, John Goodwin, Ralph Outlaw, Bill Bond, Clarence Britton, G.
