

Family Life And Career Week Successful At Colored School

The "Family Life and Career Week" activities at Edenton High School were a week of learning and sharing for the students, faculty and consultants.

Wednesday morning's session was one of great value to future parents and homemakers. The Rev. Earl Richardson, pastor of Edenton Methodist Church, gave information that will improve moral, social, educational and religious standards.

The evening session was conducted by local consultants. Harry Smith, executive vice president of the Chamber of Commerce, gave a vivid description of the work and need for a Chamber of Commerce.

Thursday morning's session by a very dynamic speaker, Dr. Walter N. Ridley, president of the Elizabeth City State Teachers College. He used "Human Growth and Its Development" as the subject for his speech.

Thursday afternoon's session was mainly conducted by college consultants. The following colleges were represented: North Carolina, A. & T., Shaw University, Virginia State, Virginia Union, St. Augustine, Elizabeth City State Teachers College, Durham Business School, and Barnes Business.

Friday, Alumni Day, was a day of inspiration to the students, faculty and community. The address of the day was delivered by an alumnus. Avant Lowther, who is now employed in the public school system of Newark, New Jersey. His subject was based on the theme of the week, "Education for Family Living".

The consultants for Friday afternoon's session were alumni. Many trades and professions were represented.

A social hour was held which climaxed the week's activities. Thanks are extended to all who helped to make the week's program a wholesome and enjoyable event.

COLERAIN RESIDENT DIES
William P. Sharp, 75, of Colerain died Wednesday morning of last week in the Veterans Hospital at Kecoughtan after an illness of 12 months.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Amanda Sharp; a son, William Paul Sharp of Colerain; three stepdaughters, Mrs. Lloyd L. Howerton and Mrs. M. D. Brown of Ahoskie and Mrs. A. L. Brown of Suffolk; two sisters, Mrs. Hunter Sharp of Harrellsville and Mrs. S. A. Ives of Hendersonville, and eight grandchildren.

He was a veteran of World War I and a member of the Colerain Baptist Church, where funeral services were held Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The Rev. P. T. Worrell, pastor, officiated and burial was in Hillcrest Cemetery of Colerain.

Electricity is a good servant, but learn to respect its power to injure and kill as well as to serve. Even good equipment is subject to wear and human carelessness. Don't connect too many appliances to an outlet. If a cord or any part of an electrical appliance happens to get wet, be sure it is thoroughly dry before turning on the current.

The football player wears shoulder pads, helmets, and other guards; the industrial worker wears the proper personal protective equipment for his particular job. The smart homemaker wears the right kind of clothing for her job, too. Safe shoes are absolutely essential; the shoe to do the job is the one with a low heel, good arch, and non-skid sole. Streamlined garments are more chic than frilly ones, as well as less hazardous. Buttoned down the front dresses are annoying to many homemakers who find buttons getting caught on drawers or popping off when they kneel to dust or get utensils from lower shelves. Smooth hems will eliminate potential tripping hazards.

Many house-cleaning jobs require that somebody do some climbing. If a stepladder is used, be sure it's fully spread and locked, with all four legs resting on a level base. The top of the stepladder is not meant for standing; there is danger of losing one's balance and falling. If a ladder is used outside, don't forget that the ground may be soft and the ladder will sink almost by its own weight. Place a board beneath the ladder feet to keep it from tipping. Be sure, too, that shoes and ladder rungs are free of mud, grease, or oil. When climbing, grip the ladder firmly with hands and place feet squarely on the rungs.

When washing the stairs, don't absent-mindedly leave the scrub pail on one of the steps to serve as a "booby trap" ready to catch unsuspecting members of the family coming downstairs; the same goes for brushes, mops and rags. When the task is done, remove the tools promptly. Store cleaning supplies neatly in one place with all household poisons safely out of reach of children and oily rags in airtight metal containers.

Don't slight the attic in your spring cleaning. Throw away all old newspapers, magazines, broken furniture, old clothes, everything that is a potential fire hazard.
