

AROUND THE FARMS IN CHOWAN COUNTY

By C. W. OVERMAN, Chowan County Agent

The Chowan County Agricultural Advisory Board met at the County Extension Office on Monday night. The meeting was devoted to considering the major problems Extension needs to work on next year.

Rural Fire Protection was expressed as the number one need.

Rural Fire Protection was expressed as the number one need. The Ryland-Gliden area and the Cross Roads-Center Hill area are both moving along nicely with their plans. Extension may help by informing and encouraging the people, help with organization, and help keep the County Commissioners informed.

The Rev. L. C. Chandler recommended we get more people working. This means as individuals and as committees. McCoy Spivey suggested getting some individuals follow improved practices and get results and their neighbors will follow. This is the time proven method.

There is a need for more telephones and better telephone service all over the county, particularly in Advance, Center Hill and Rocky Hock communities. More and better home gardens with canning and freezing for out-of-season use is greatly needed.

Mrs. Jackie Castelloe recommended that the Home Demonstration Fashion Show be held in the spring rather than in September. Garments made during the winter months would be newer and fresher.

All members of the Board agreed that the Community Progress Contest, backed by the Peoples Bank & Trust Company of Edenton, is the one channel through which Extension and other agencies can work to the best advantage. Individuals and committees in each community must be enlisted in active service.

Mrs. Arizona Fleming suggested several needs. The production, conservation and consumption of the family food supply needs improvement. Diets need to be improved. Housing and sanitation facilities are inadequate for many families. Farm people should use local health services.

W. H. Sawyer stressed the need for better soil conservation practices. Good crop production practices are only partially employed. We need a good market outlet for commercial eggs.

Several members feel that farm people in general are not cognizant of the value of the Social Security program. Possibly we need to have a group of community leaders informed and trained by a Social Security representative. These leaders could disseminate information and even help some people in their communities to prepare the necessary forms.

Members present at this meeting were Chairman R. S. March, Vice Chairman George Lewis, Secretary Mrs. Clara Boswell, Mrs. Jackie Castelloe, Mrs. E. N. Elliott, Mrs. Arizona Fleming, W. H. Sawyer, the Rev. L. C. Chandler, Guy C. Hobbs, Marvin Evans, McCoy Spivey. Absent members were Dallas Jethro, Jr., Troy Toppin, Thomas Ward, Lester T. Copeland and Judy Haste. Extension Workers Pauline Calloway, Catherine Aman, Onnie Charlton, Fletcher Lassiter, Harry Venters and C. W. Overman attended.

The purpose of the Extension Advisory Board is to advise Extension workers relative to the desires and needs of the people in the county. They must consider ways and means to help the people meet these needs and desires most efficiently.

Cotton Marketing Meetings are being held this week Wednesday night at the County Court House, Thursday night at Chowan Community Building and Friday night at Wards Community Building. The meetings will begin promptly at 8 o'clock.

This will be the main opportunity for cotton growers to ask questions and get information on the cotton dusting marketing program for this season. Growers, including tenants, are invited to attend one of these meetings.

Corn Ear Worms and Army Worms Are Having A Feast in many peanut fields. Dust with 10% DDT at 15 to 20 pounds per acre. Other dusts are 20% Toxaphene and 5% Malathion. If the hay is to be fed to milk cows, do not use DDT or Toxaphene. These worms will do a lot of damage to both peanuts and soybeans if they are not controlled promptly.

Membership Drive For Farm Bureau

reau a local farmer can strengthen his county organization. He can help solve his problems on field and truck crops marketing on getting a fair return for his labor and investment and his voice, along with that of other members, is heard in the legislative halls of Raleigh and Washington.

Just this year the Farm Bureau saved Tar Heels millions of dollars in fighting to prevent taxes being levied on farm products and in fighting to have transportation taxes removed from farm products, according to President Wood.

"It's becoming more difficult for farmers to make their recommendations known to Congress and with other groups because of the small number of farmers and the misunderstanding between farmers and other segments of the population," continued Mr. Wood.

An example of the type of work that the organization does can be found in testimony of the various Congressional committees. Just this year Farm Bureau fought long and hard and successfully to have Congress drop the three per cent transportation tax which was being paid on all goods shipped on common carriers. This tax, dropped now by the government, meant that farmers paid three per cent more for all their goods shipped in.

Farmers now represent only about six per cent of the population of this country and it's getting more difficult to keep non-farmers informed about what's happening in agriculture. Then, too, it is hard for us to get fair treatment in the Congress and within the administrative bodies of the nation. And without strong organization the farmer's chances of fair treatment are even less.

Mr. Wood urges every farmer to join the organization that is helping him.

Labor Day Message

this huge, long-term increase in employed labor is the magnificent growth of new and diversified industry which has taken place in the State since the end of World War II.

The labor force of North Carolina has been changing drastically in composition for the last two generations. Once predominantly agrarian, the working population of the State is now 73 per cent non-agricultural. This is true despite the fact that

North Carolina has more farms than any other state except Texas and possesses the nation's largest rural-dwelling population. Agriculture, however, is still basic in the State's economy. It may well be said that North Carolina has at present a favorable balance between industry and agriculture.

Further industrialization is necessary to provide jobs for the thousands of people who are gradually being displaced from farming by technological change and improved practices and for thousands of others who enter the labor market each year. We have a high birth rate and must be constantly on the move to provide employment for a rapidly expanding population.

I am proud of labor's long record of productive and peaceful relations with management in North Carolina. That record is not an unbroken one; painful and tragic setbacks with which we are all familiar have taken place this year. Notwithstanding these growing pains—which so dominate the news of the day while they are happening—these exceptional situations merely prove the rule.

I have complete confidence in the long-term future of labor in North Carolina. I am certain that intelligent leadership and vigorous faith will enable North Carolina workers to meet the challenges of the future.

As your Commissioner of Labor, I am privileged to extend respect, appreciation and honor to the working men and women of North Carolina on this Labor Day, 1959.
