

SUNLAY SCHOOL LESSON

This is not to suggest that just because an idea is old it is of questionable value, or that because an idea is new and different it more nearly approximates the truth. There is always this danger.

But, it is to suggest that when the Christian is convinced of the facts of his faith, then he is called upon to stand up and be counted among those who hold fast to that faith in the face of unpopular reaction. This lesson is helpful to any of us in the modern day, because it points to the reasonable demand on Christian disciples to stand firm for the new and the old in the Christian faith as God has revealed it, and as he still reveals it to minds and spirits sensitized to his voice and his will.

Too often we are inclined to compromise with the more popular interpretations of truth, rather than to stay firm in a courageous stand for convictions. Such procedures, among the early Christian martyrs, could never have established the Christian Church. Such procedures today cannot hope to sustain the organized Church.

It isn't enough for the modern Christian to marvel at the boldness of Peter and John. It isn't enough to call the roll of the martyrs to the faith. To each Christian comes the demand to stand up and be counted in his corner of the world for the faith we all share. There may not be the drama of the courtroom with all the religious leadership of the church in rapt attention. It may merely be the simple test at a social gathering when a cocktail is offered and one murmurs a polite refusal. Nevertheless, it will be an affirmation on our part.

During a severe persecution of Christians in Smyrna in A.D. 155 and its demand for emperor worship, Bishop Polycarp was called on to recant his Christian faith and give obeisance to the Roman emperor. This aged leader of the Christians refused to compromise himself or his faith. He was burned at the stake in the market place of his city, as a result.

His last words are worthy of our attention here. Given one last chance to renounce his faith in Christ before the fire was lighted, Polycarp replied, "For eighty and six years have I served him, and he has done me no wrong. How can I now blaspheme him who is my God and my King?"

This is the authentic spirit of unshaken Christian witness. And we today are called to join its fellowship.
