

Woman's Club Art Show At Barker House April 23 And 24

The annual Art Show sponsored by the Edenton Woman's Club will be held Saturday and Sunday, April 23 and 24. The show will be held in the Barker house with hostesses being on duty between the hours of 10 A. M., and 6 P. M., on Saturday and from 2 P. M., and 5 P. M., on Sunday. The hostesses will be on hand to greet art patrons and parents of Edenton and Chowan County school children wishing to see the art work displayed.

Judging the show will be Mrs. John Shackelford, noted artist of Edenton. She will award ribbons for first, second and honorable mention prizes. Twelve prizes of one dollar each will be given to the twelve school children who, Mrs. Shackelford feels, have done outstanding art work.

A hobby corner — arts and crafts — will be set up where unclassified entries such as: Photographs, ceramics, needlecrafts, tinting of photographs, handicrafts, wood carving, etc., may be exhibited. Anyone wishing to participate in this category and does not have transportation of article to Barker house are asked to contact Mrs. John Raines, phone 3307.

Adult work will be in a separate class and not placed in competition with that of school children.

Held annually for a number of years, the Art Show has proved to be of great interest to the citizens of Edenton as well as exciting for the school children. It is hoped a large number will be on hand to see the art work presented.

Edenton Woman's Club Highly Honored At State Convention

The Edenton Woman's Club was signally honored last week at the convention of the North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs held at Raleigh.

The club won the first award of the North Carolina Society for the Preservation of Antiquities. A certificate and a $50 check was presented to Mrs. Wesley Chesson, Jr., president of the Edenton Club. The presentation was made at the awards luncheon held at the Sir Walter Hotel Thursday.

The Edenton Club also received recognition for its outstanding achievement among woman's clubs in the state in the preservation of antiquities.

The judging was based on 1959 activities, which included the fifth biennial tour of the historic Edenton countryside. Proceeds were used for a long-range planning in the community. A committee was named to set up objectives and plans for future activities. Part of the plan was beautification prepared by Morley Williams, landscape architect, for the Court House Green and a Confederate parkway at the foot of Broad Street.

This project, however, hit a snag when the County Commissioners voted to hold an election to decide whether or not the Confederate monument on the Green should be removed. The club women leaned to the opinion that the decision smacked of politics and, therefore, withdrew their request.

The club also received second place for its press book, which was prepared by Mrs. William Cozart.

Mrs. Joe Thorud, vice president of the 16th District, was awarded a silver cup for 100 percent participation in the Samaritan project by district clubs.

Group Of Churches Join In Holding An Early Easter Service

Final plans have been announced and the program released for the annual Easter sunrise service to be held at the Great Hope Baptist Church in Perquimans County at 6 o'clock Easter morning. Churches taking part include: Evans, Center Hill and Anderson Methodist churches and Center Hill and Great Hope Baptist churches.

Pastors taking part are: The Rev. Frank Fortesque, pastor of the Methodist Churches and the Rev. Henry V. Napier, pastor of the Baptist Churches. Members of other churches are urged to attend if they have no such service in their own church, or if they are visiting nearby.

The program for this service includes an Easter music meditation for ten minutes before the service with Mrs. C. T. Mansfield at the piano. The call to worship will be given by the choir of the host church which will also arrange for flowers and for special parking to take care of the crowds expected. The invocation will be given by Joe Wiggins of the Center Hill Baptist Church and the welcome by Billy Elliott of the host church. Scripture will be read by the Rev. Frank Fortesque, followed by special music by the Anderson Methodist Church. The prayer for the morning will be made by a member of the Center Hill Methodist Church followed by special music by the Center Hill Baptist Church. The Easter meditation will be brought by the Rev. Henry V. Napier, pastor of the Center Hill and Great Hope Baptist churches. After the closing hymn the benediction will be sung by a member of the Center Hill Methodist Church. The choir will be directed by the music directors of the separate churches and the accompanists will be the regular accompanists of the churches.

Margaret White Byrum, a student at Louisburg College, was among 14 girls representing nine colleges to model clothing made by themselves in the 13th annual cotton style show at State College.

Edenton Aces Top Scotland Neck 5-0

By BILL GOODWIN
Zackie Harrell blasted a three-run home run and scattered four Scotland Neck singles as he led the Edenton Aces to a 5-0 Albemarle Conference baseball victory on Hicks Field Thursday afternoon.

Harrell's circuit blow came in the first inning after Gene Daniels had walked Dickie Cobb and Carroll Forehand. The Aces collected their final two runs in the fifth frame when Harrell and Wayne Baker singled in succession and Jerry Tolley sent a booming triple to center.

Scotland Neck singled in the fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh innings. Up until the fourth Harrell had not let a runner on base. Ronnie Grove was the only Scot to reach third. He singled to right in the fourth and went to second when Joe Mitchener dropped the ball. He advanced to third with one out, but Harrell downed the next two men on easy grounders.

The Aces had five hits and made one error. The Scots made no mistakes.

EDENTON STUDENTS AT ECC CHOSEN AS NEA OFFICERS
Officers will be installed for the Student National Education Association at East Carolina College, Greenville, Wednesday, April 20.

Among those to be installed are two Edenton students, Myrna Skinner as recording secretary and E. Fay Zwick, assistant secretary.

Water Conservation Stamp Goes On Sale In Edenton April 19

Above is a reproduction of the 4-cent water conservation stamp which goes on sale at the Edenton Post Office Tuesday, April 19. The stamp, printed in three colors, will go on sale Monday, April 18, in Washington, D. C., at the Seventh National Watershed Congress.

The unique two-part stamp portrays a close-up of a drop of water falling from a leaf, which symbolizes the influences of land and vegetation upon water supply. This design leads the eye into a right-hand panel depicting an actual small watershed panorama. People and industries in the town in the foreground are dependent for their water upon the watershed above, which ideally includes conservation-managed farm and forest lands and small dams for flood prevention and water storage.

SPECIAL SERVICE TONIGHT AT METHODIST CHURCH

The Rev. Ralph Fowlkes, pastor of the Methodist Church, announces that a special Maundy Thursday Communion service will be held at the church tonight (Thursday) at 8 o'clock. Special music appropriate for the Lenten season will be presented by the choir.

Mr. Fowlkes also announced a rather unique method of administering the Communion in that instead of gathering at the chancel rail, 13 chairs will be arranged at the front of the church symbolic of Jesus and His disciples at the Last Supper. The communicants will occupy 11 of the chairs to receive the Communion elements with two, symbolic of the ones occupied by Jesus and Judas, remaining unoccupied during the ceremony.

All members and friends are not only invited but urged to attend the service.

Challenge On Jobs Front Points Up The Need For More Savings And Growth Without Inflation

What has been termed the American population "explosion" since the Forties is about to manifest itself in a pronounced uptrend in the size of the working population in the years ahead, by contrast with its comparatively slow growth of recent years, according to data compiled by the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The Bureau in its projections expects the number of new workers to increase by 13½ million persons in the Sixties. This would be half again as great as the number of entrants into the work force in the current decade, as compared with only a minor increase between the Fifties and the preceding decade. A continued expansion is anticipated for the decade of the Seventies, with the labor force expected to grow by over 15 million in that period.

Basic Factor of Growth
The American economy over the years had demonstrated its strength and resilience in providing employment opportunities for an expanding population and has been a familiar characteristic of the capital and investment demands of recent years. More savings and capital formation will not only be needed for business and industrial expansion in the years ahead. They will likewise be required to meet the growing demands for mortgage in steadily advancing the people's living standards to levels never attained hitherto. However, the size of the increase in the work force in the offing lends new emphasis to the current discussion of the nation's growth performance and to the principal factors that promote or retard economic expansion.

In a high investment economy such as ours, it is obvious that the adequacy of savings and capital formation is of fundamental importance to growth. Every effort must, therefore, be exerted to encourage the people to save more if the nation is to achieve its potentials and to meet the challenge of an increasingly competitive world. A savings "pinch" funds from homeowners, and to provide Government with the social capital needed to build schools, roads and other community facilities.

Need of Stable Dollar
Of paramount importance to the nation's future, too, is the need to control inflation and to stabilize the buying power of the dollar, a problem with which the country has been plagued for the last two decades. Inflation is the great enemy of savings and capital formation, and hence a major threat to continued and sustainable national progress. Considering the demands of the future, inflation-breeders such as chronic Government deficits and wage-price spirals must be stopped.

Other factors that are also intimately related to the nation's growth prospects are the need for steadily rising productivity in keeping with our historical trends, and the size and incidence of our record tax burden and its effect on incentive.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics in its study of population and labor force trends expects the working population to increase from an annual average of 73.6 million persons in 1960 to a total of 87.1 million in 1970, accelerating as the decade progresses and as those born in the post-World War II "baby boom" reach working age. In 1975, the work force is expected to approximate 95 million, an indicated growth of more than 15 million for the Seventies.

By contrast, the working population rose by 9 million persons in the current decade, only a few hundred thousand more than the rise of 8.6 million in the preceding decade. The showing of the Fifties reflected the low birth rates of the Thirties, while the impact of the wartime manpower requirements of the Armed Forces and of industry brought abnormally large numbers of women, youngsters and older men into the labor force in the Forties.

Reversals of Recent Trends

The Bureau's forecast shows two interesting reversals of recent trends. The first is that more men than women will enter the work force in the next decade and a half. During the Sixties, for example, it is anticipated that there will be 7.4 million new male job seekers as against 6.1 million new female entrants into the working force. An even wider margin is expected in the Seventies. During the last two decades, by contrast, the figures show more women than men having gone into the working population, with the working wife scoring the biggest gain.

The second reversal of recent trends is an anticipated expansion in the younger job seekers, particularly males under 35. In the Sixties, for example, this group is expected to increase by over 5 million, and an even larger growth is forecast for the following decade. This trend is of particular significance since it is tomorrow's youth, with its rising educational attainment and more intensified training, that will be the source of the country's creative and administrative brains of the future.
