

SENATOR SAM ERVIN SAYS

Washington — A resume of activity for the second session of the present Congress shows that 766 measures have been passed. The Senate has passed 278 bills, 19 joint resolutions and 21 concurrent resolutions since January. Furthermore, the Senate has reported 930 measures. There have been 115 simple resolutions acted upon.

Measures — The total number of measures introduced during the 86th Congress, January, 1960 to date, is 4,412 for the Senate and 14,875 for the House. The majority of these measures, public and private, will not be enacted before the end of the present Congress.

When the Congressional bills are divided between the appropriate committees it is obvious that the committees have a vital role in the legislative process. This role is sometimes little understood by Congressional critics. As I view it, the value of a committee is not only to try to report out the best possible legislation but it is also to prevent the reporting of ill-conceived, unnecessary and harmful measures.

Time — It has required 116 days this session to accomplish the enactment of 278 bills along with the other measures. Broken down into time segments, this totals 936 hours and 19 minutes in session for the Senate, requiring over 9,000 pages in the Congressional Record to record the proceedings. There have been 112 quorum calls and 116 yea-and-nay votes in the Senate this year.

Ahead — On the eve of the return of the Senate for action on a number of controversial measures, the Senate is scheduled to act on such measures as health benefits for the aged, minimum wage and foreign aid bills. It will not be a summer holiday that faces Congress because the atmosphere will be charged with the campaign and three of the four nominees of both parties, including both party chairmen, will be present on the floor of the Senate.

The road immediately ahead is not going to be easy. I urge the people of North Carolina to carefully watch the actions of Congress in this most unusual session. I shall continue to do all within my power to halt the enactment of unnecessary and unwise measures.

D. M. Parker Family Returns To Sunbury

Mr. and Mrs. Dalton M. Parker and family of Sunbury have returned from Athens, Georgia, where Mr. Parker was given a National Science Foundation Summer Institute scholarship at the University of Georgia.

Mr. Parker graduated from Sunbury High School in 1932, and from North Carolina State College with a B.S. degree in forestry, in June 1936.

He was superintendent of the Greensboro Country Park, Greensboro, from 1936 to 1940.

Mr. Parker was in the United States Army from December, 1940, to April, 1946, serving as instructor in basic training units from Florida to California.

He was promoted to Captain while commanding an Infantry unit at Dutch Harbor, in the Aleutian Islands of Alaska. At the time of the Japanese surrender, he was on troop transport duty to Siapan and Guam.

He operated Parker Lumber Company at Kellogg Fork, Sunbury, for ten years.

In February 1959, he began extension work through the University of Virginia. He also attended spring quarter week-end classes at East Carolina College. He continued his education by taking both terms of 1959 summer school, and classes each Friday evening and Saturday morning during the fall, winter and spring quarters at East Carolina College, Greenville and was awarded the degree of Master of Arts in Education and Science on May 22, 1960.

Mr. Parker is married to Evelyn White Jackson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Watson B. White of Edenton. He has one step-son, William Lloyd Jackson, Jr., and one son, Dalton Murray Parker, Jr., eleven and five years of age, respectively. He will teach science again this year at Sunbury High School.

How He Knew

A man fell into a coma and it was several days before he awoke. Later he spoke of his experience to a party of friends. "Oh, yes," the young man said in reply to a question, "I knew all the time what was going on, and I also knew that I wasn't dead, because my feet were cold and I was hungry."

"I see," said one of his friends thoughtfully; "but how did that make you think you were still alive?"

"Well," answered the man, "I knew that if I were in Heaven I wouldn't be hungry, and that if I were anywhere else my feet wouldn't be cold."

WITH THE FARM WOMEN

By MAIDRED MORRIS

4-H's Learn To Cook Out
Would you like to have "some mores"? The 4-H's in Chowan County are now learning to cook out. Miss Catherine Aman, assistant home economics agent, taught 4-H's to make stuffed picnic rolls, which were heated in foil on an outdoor grill. The girls prepared a finger salad from home-grown vegetables. For dessert they enjoyed "some mores", which is a combination of graham crackers, marshmallows and milk chocolate.

Preceding the outdoor meal, the 4-H's had a handicraft workshop and learned to cover coat hangers by braiding plastic gimp on the hangers.

Home Planning
Plans should be made before the actual building starts on a new house. Mr. and Mrs. Ray Buckner are progressing rapidly on their new home. Many hours of planning should pay off when the house is completed. Mrs. Buckner realized the necessity of planning so she planned each room individually so as to get each room well arranged. Storage space has been planned for all areas of the house.

Miss Ethel V. Townsend, home economics agent in Madison County, says when the home is finished, the Buckners' should have a comfortable, well-arranged, livable home.

Adventurer In The Kitchen
Thirteen year-old Ronnie Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eldridge Smith of Stanfield, R. I., is a real adventurer in the kitchen. Early in the summer he requested help in canning from Mrs. Rebecca T. Mooney, assistant home economics agent. Ronnie wanted to get good products so he could exhibit them at the county fair.

Mrs. Mooney says Ronnie showed the ingenuity of an engineer as he skillfully operated the pressure canner and carefully followed each step in the extension canning bulletin. Ronnie hopes to earn some premium money at the fair so he can go to 4-H camp next year.

Preserve Making
Home Demonstration Club women in Wilkes County have learned the correct way to make preserves at club meetings. Many found they had not been making preserves according to recommended procedures.

Mrs. Sue Beaver, home economics agent, reports the color, shape, and syrup consistency of preserves made during demonstrations were excellent.

Fashion Show Staged

The Jackson Springs Home Demonstration Club women in Moore County held a double-barreled meeting at the home of Mrs. Worth Bynum recently. Not only did they see a bread making demonstration but also staged a fashion show under the direction of Mrs. Paul Cole.

Miss Flora McDonald, home economics agent, reports that house, church, and evening dresses were modeled by club members. Miss Martha Currie was narrator for the event.

Refinished Furniture
"You wouldn't believe that old black furniture could come to life and be so lovely," said Mrs. Roland Frazier of the Oak Hill community in Granville County, as she displayed a walnut buffet with a cherry marble top which she and her husband had refinished. "We are now so proud of the beautiful piece of furniture," she said.

Mrs. Dorothy G. Wilkinson, home economics agent, says the furniture refinishing is taking place as a result of a workshop held in the county.

New Accommodations Book Now Available
A new guide to travel accommodations and attractions in North Carolina is just off the press and available free on request to the State Travel Office, Department of Conservation and Development, Raleigh.

The 132-page accommodations directory lists 1,246 hotels, motels, dude ranches and other overnight facilities in 179 North Carolina cities and towns. Rates are given in many instances, showing a range from $2.50 a day, European plan, in small hotels, to $30 a day, American plan, in a luxury resort at season's peak. Both are for single occupancy.

The directory also lists boating facilities, golf courses, and 42 camps for boys, girls and adults, and 26 religious assemblies.
