

KNOW YOUR SOCIAL SECURITY

John T. Grooms, representative of the Social Security Administration, is in Edenton every Thursday at the North Carolina Employment Security Commission office in the Citizens Bank Building.

Thirteen million beneficiaries are now drawing monthly social security checks. If you are among those receiving a social security check each month, you can see how important it is that you notify the Social Security Administration and your Post Office promptly when you move. Your checks are less likely to be delayed when you change your address, if you report your new address properly and promptly.

With the delivery of so many checks, you can understand there are bound to be many people of the same name. Social security numbers are used to identify each claim. This claim number identifies the worker on whose account social security benefits are being paid.

When a claim is filed, each claimant is given a post card to be used to report events which would affect receipt of his social security checks. One of the purposes of the card is to report a change of address.

Frankly Speaking

By Frank Roberts

Thanks to R. Elton Forehand, insurance and real estate in downtown Edenton, WCDJ has been able to start a most interesting new series. It's entitled, "Celebrity Calls," and it's heard every Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 7:45 during our Reveille with Roberts program. We have been, and will continue to, talk to those who make the news in the fields of politics, show business and sports. If you've been listening to the program you've heard us thus far talking to famed actor Sidney Blackmer, and then the honorable governor of our state, Luther Hodges. We'll have many more well-known folks to talk to. Once again it proves that in Northeastern North Carolina, WCDJ leads the way with something new, something different, something interesting. For quite a while now, other stations have followed suit with many of our ideas, but as our ratings recently showed, we're still way out in front so far as listening audience is concerned. Getting back to the new show, Celebrity Calls, permit me, to give you a behind-the-scenes balance at what goes on. First of all, much money in the form of fat phone bills. Secondly, much time. Placing the phone calls, and trying and trying to get hold of the party or parties we're after. Sometimes, we have to contact them in advance by letter, to set up the proper arrangements. Then, if and when we finally get them on the phone, a little advance discussion on questions to be asked and how to go about the interview. However, once I get hold of the celebrity involved it's easy. The hardest thing is getting past their bevy of secretaries, bodyguards and the like. The rest is comparatively easy. People in show business like to talk about their current movie or tee-vee play or song, and, of course, politicians have much to say in this election year of 1960. So, hope you'll be sure to listen every Monday, Wednesday and Friday morning at 7:45 to Celebrity Calls. There's not another local program like

The card provides space to show the claimant's name, claim number, new address and signature of the person entitled to receive the check. These four items must be shown so that the Social Security Administration can change its records promptly and mail the next check to the new address. When any of the above four items is missing, a delay results.

If you are drawing social security benefits and have changed your address, be sure to fill in the card given to you when you filed your application. A letter addressed to your local social security office will serve the same purpose. However, be sure that in this letter you include all four items—your name, claim number, new address, and signature. Also you should supply your Post Office with a change of address card.

If you prefer to use the specially prepared post card form and have misplaced yours, you may secure another by contacting your local social security office.

it south of Norfolk, for that matter, in Norfolk itself. We're very proud of it here at WCDJ.

The beginning of a new month and, whenever we get the opportunity, we check over the good movie situation for you, and August is a terrific month, movie-wise. We've got "Huck Finn" coming to the Taylor Theatre this week-end. By the way, if there are any young 'uns in your family, be sure to listen to our program this Saturday morning. Got some good news for the youngsters in connection with the "Huck Finn" movie. Also this month is "Fugitive Kind," with not one, not two, but three academy award winners starring—Brando, Anna Magnani, Joanne Woodward. For science-fiction fans these movies: "Battle In Outer Space," and 12 to the Moon." Later, H. G. Wells' "Time Machine," Jerry Lewis' latest, "The Bellboy," is coming up, as is "Hell To Eternity," the true story of a World War II hero from the Tar Heel State. The big musical offering is "Bells Are Ringing," starring Judy Holiday and Dean Martin, and that should be a lot of fun.

Closing thought: The easiest way to remain poor is to pretend to be rich.

4-H Week: Summit Of The Year's Work

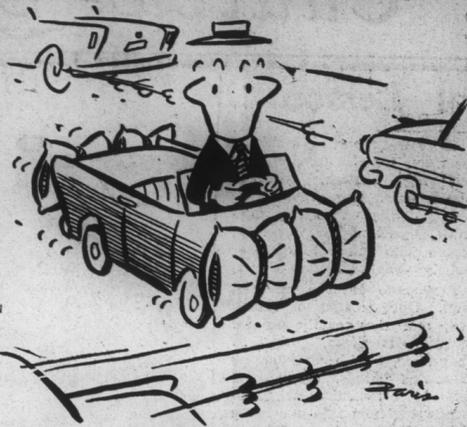

Raleigh — Four-H Club Week is many things to many hundreds of boys and girls and their leaders.

For most of the 1,500 delegates, it's the summit of the year's work. For a few, it's a spring board to greater heights—national contests in faraway states, the National 4-H Club Congress at Chicago in late fall, perhaps even to big-time entertainment stardom.

But, for all, it's a chance to show skill at the complex job of farming and homemaking.

There is, for instance, the top man at judging livestock. Immediately, he wins a trip to the National Livestock Contest at Chicago just after Thanksgiving. He and the other three leading winners will also show their skill at the Virginia State Fair in September at Richmond. But there may be a much deeper meaning for the winner.

DRIVE DEFENSIVELY!

His ability to gauge the quality of cattle, sheep and hogs may lead into a successful career as a rancher. And roundups and brandings and livestock shows are beginning to make the Old North State with its tobacco and cotton heritage look like the ranges in "Rawhide".

The girl who walks around the long tables in the coliseum picking up Irish potatoes and onions and snap beans—to mention a very few vegetables in the contest display—is vying for a prize, too. She hopes to get a free trip to the national contest in vegetables at Colorado Springs, Colo.

But she's learning what to buy at her home-town grocery store. The folks behind the cash registers will find that she knows what a "Number One" Irish potato should be. They won't be able to sell her any with wireworm or scurf damage, or any of a multitude of other defects. She'll know, too, all about the quality factors for just about every vegetable sold.

The boy who leads the whole assembly in a vespers program is maybe five feet tall and 13 years old. Behind him and beyond him sit many of the state's leaders in agriculture, men and women with decades of service. And yet, for all his youth, this boy speaks with the assurance of leadership.

This is 4-H in North Carolina, where 4-H was born, whose 167,000 4-H'ers number more than those in any other state—by 18,000.

This movement which has carried the waves of the future for half a century is part of America's answer to the "Pioneers" of Russia, those millions of hard-minded and single-a lamp in the front window of the house, hoping that by a wild stretch of imagination she might return. Then one night she came back in all her misery and shame. When the old man greeted her and she sensed his love and all his heartbreak, her heart cried out in love and repentance also. God is like that! We must not assume that the love and forgiveness which Hosea preached come easily, however. Any understanding of the cross makes it plain that God could not easily have overlooked the hatred of the men who crucified Jesus. It was not easy, but God forgave. Indeed, "Love is patient, and kind." (1 Corinthians 13:4). This attitude of love makes all the difference in the world. Many persons are sick because they have been denied love. Some of them even recover when this need is met. It is confidence, appreciation, comradeship, trust, and, over and above all, undying good will that these persons need. Is this not a wonderful area in which Christians can demonstrate unselfish love?

Treatment of prisoners, also, is a long and dreary tale of "man's inhumanity to man." It is true that we have come a long way in our prison system from the days of notorious Newgate Prison in London, and from the time when prisoners were chained and flogged and forced to live in the most bestial conditions. Our prisons, nowadays, are cleaner, and prisoners are now able to secure an education while they are incarcerated. But we still, in the main, imprison wrongdoers to punish them rather than to redeem them. If we could free ourselves of social snobbery, we would find many occasions for helping the imprisoned or others who suffer in various ways. Jesus himself said that the truly faithful would be greeted with the words, "Come, O blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you . . . I was in prison and you came to me." (Matthew 25:34-36). There is far too much aloofness between respectable church folk and their brothers in prison.

If we are aware of God's love for his children, we will also take a second look at capital punishment. How can the state take the lives of persons when they are God's children? We are the state. Furthermore, statistics seem to indicate that capital punishment does not deter people from crime anyway.

The description of love that is presented by Hosea makes us realize that we need much more of this type of concern if we hope to improve significantly conditions in our world today. Human relations would be radically changed if more persons truly believed in God's irresistible love.

Dove And Marsh Hen Seasons Set

Tar Heel dove hunters get a bonus this year by way of five more hunting days and a two-bird increase in the daily bag, according to Clyde P. Patton, Executive Director of the North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission.

This year's dove seasons will again be in two segments, the first from September 10 to October 15, and the second from December 12 to January 14. Shooting hours will be from noon to sunset, and the daily bag will allow 12 birds, and 24 in possession.

The woodcock season gets underway November 24 and runs through January 2. Daily-bag and possession limits are four and eight, respectively. Wilson's snipe may be hunted from November 24 through December 23, with a daily bag and possession limit of eight birds. Shooting hours for marsh hens, woodcock and snipe are from sunrise to sunset.

Patton said that the seasons for waterfowl hunting have not yet been announced by the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, but that little change may be expected over last year's rules.

Too Much Service

A good little girl was hurrying to school in a state of extreme agitation.

"Please, God, don't let me be late," she murmured as the school bell began to ring in the distance. At that moment she tripped over a stone and fell flat. "Please, God," she exclaimed in an injured voice, as she got up and dusted herself, "I didn't say 'push!'"
