have the support and cooperation of other organized groups as well as business men and the general public. It needs the continual support of press, radio and television medias for public expression. In short, public relations effort is directed toward and is responsible for building a climate that is conducive to selling the community to new industry, to the touring public and for promoting expansion of local businesses; to enhance our cultural and educational facilities and in making our community generally a finer place in which to live, work and enjoy the natural blessings we have inherited.

"Common to all Chambers of Commerce is the need for basic research and information, the necessity for assembling facts and figures in a central place so that anyone anywhere may have ready access to the evidence of our community's progressiveness. The newly appointed executive vice president, I feel, is exceptionally well qualified for all of these duties."

Robinson has been associated with three North Carolina state agencies in public relations work and in research, the Department of Agriculture; the Civil Defense agency and the Department of Conservation & Development. He is a former newspaper reporter and advertising executive.

"We believe Robinson is well equipped," Jones said, "to work with the various Chamber committees who activate the Edenton Chamber of Commerce's program of work."

Recently Robinson attended the Institute for Organization Management at the University of North Carolina, a course of study for Chamber of Commerce executives.

Robinson, a resident of North Carolina since 1938, was born in New York City where he met his wife, a native Tar Heel who subsequently sold him on the many virtues of the Old North State. He attended Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Maine, of which his father was an alumnus. He is a Presbyterian and is a member of the Sons of the American Revolution.

435 Farmers Sign For ASC Program

Evans has had open ditches dug and installed tile. In carrying out other steps in his conservation program, Mr. Evans seeds rye as a winter cover crop. "I find sowing a winter cover has caused my peanut yield to be much higher," Mr. Evans said. "Also ACP pays half of the cost of the seed, therefore making me able to seed more acres of cover crop and permanent pasture."

West said last year 448 farms in Chowan participated in the Agricultural Conservation Program. The gross assistance received by Chowan County farmers through this program was $37,122 in 1959.

To date 435 Chowan farmers have signed requests to participate in the 1960 program. The ASC Office is open Monday through Friday and will be glad to accept requests for fall practices now.

If all farmers would carry out their soil and water conservation practices to the fullest as Mr. Evans has done they would have higher yields and therefore, higher incomes. Also when they conserve their soil now it is for the generations of the future benefit stated Mr. West.

Edenton's Post Office will be closed Monday, September 5, in order to observe Labor Day. There will be no mail delivery in Edenton or the rural routes, but the lobby will be open and mail deposited in the lock boxes. Mail will also be dispatched as usual.
