SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

We acknowledge the fact that Christmas has come true in history, we would do well to pause and ask ourselves this question: Has it come true in our hearts? Does Christmas work his salvation in us and through us? If not, how can he? Such questions carry us far beyond the gold and glitter of Christmas, into the deeper meaning of the occasion.

Salvation through Christ waits upon our personal choice and action. The truth of Christmas is relevant only as we lay claim upon it. This was the sharp and probing requirement laid upon Nicodemus by Jesus, as reported in John 3:1-6. And nothing has changed to subtract from the fundamental truth of what Jesus said to Nicodemus. Now, as then, we begin life on earth when we are born in our fleshy guise. But also, now, as then, the second and all-important step into life awaits our choice and action. This is the step of accepting Christ as our Lord and Saviour. But how do we enter the new life of deliverance through Christ,

First, like Nicodemus, we must sense our need. So long as we live at peace with evil and error, whether social or personal, all doors are shut and locked against the salvation Christ would bring. Salvation begins when we admit that we are sinners in need of a Saviour. We may not be particularly fond of the word "sinner" applied to ourselves; we much prefer to think of it as a term applied to others! Such is our innate vanity. We may despise the word "sin," but we must perforce admit that it describes something that is very true and real. We have but to glance at our newspapers and know that sinners exist; if we are completely honest with ourselves we can look within and see the truth about sin in ourselves. We can be cognizant of our inclination to shun the good and turn aside from the highest. We can see the self-centeredness that makes us an easy prey of bitterness, deceit, envy, greed and pride. This, and much, much more, gives us reason to know that the word "sinner" can only too easily be applied to us and deservedly so. Because we are sinners, we need a Saviour. We must have help from above and beyond—regardless of what our pride and our ego tells us. Thus begins salvation—when we look upon Christ and confess our need. But mere confession of need is not enough; we must act upon that need. Every day we must say "No" to evil and "Yes" to the good we see in Christ. Every day we must resist anew our tendency toward rebellion, and surrender anew our soul to God. Through worship, through daily work in which we seek to do God's will, and in those special tasks which meet the needs of our brothers in love, justice, and truth, Christ enters, renews, and recreates us. We share a redeeming fellowship that is salvation, a salvation that is man's greatest hope. How privileged we are, as Christians!
