20 YEARS AGO

Wood, Sr., and John W. Graham made a trip to Washington to present Chowan County data in an effort to secure a proposed $5,000,000 naval dirigible base to be erected along the Atlantic seaboard.

An added feature for the celebration of Christmas is a large decorated Christmas tree on the Court House Green under the supervision of Mrs. Julien Wood, Sr.

Philip McMillan was summoned before the Grand Jury and ordered to make a thorough check with the registration of voters in the last election as well as the recent draft registration to see if any names were included not on the county tax books. As the result of an investigation about 150 persons faced possible indictment for failure to list poll tax.

Meeting in special session, Chowan County Commissioners approved the appointment of C. W. Overman as Chowan County agent to succeed N. K. Rowell.

A Garden Club committee was appointed to meet with Town Council to see what could be done to eliminate the unsightliness of Cemetery Road. The club also discussed the advisability of installing a sun dial on the Court House Green.

Chowan County cotton growers voted 230 to 229 in favor of having cotton marketing quotas in effect for the 1941 crop. The one dissenting vote was in Yeofim Township.

A Grand Jury report recommended that the County Home, more or less abandoned the previous year, be restored, buildings repaired and that all inmates be returned to the institution instead of being boarded out as at present.

Chowan County's cotton allotment was reduced from 5,045.7 acres to 4,880.9, a reduction of 164.8 acres.

New Ocean Hiway Map Now Available

The 1961 edition of the Ocean Hiway map folder has just been received from the printers and now is available free and post-paid from headquarters at Wilmington, Del., of this non-profit highway association. It is a 20-panel, full color, illustrated, descriptive folder which contains not only the map and mileage table of the north-south Ocean Hiway route, but also a highway map of the Florida peninsula.

The popular Ocean Hiway route this winter is in far better condition than ever before with more than half of its length now dual-laned and all of its highway surface in fine condition. Since last winter, the mileage total has been reduced by 10 miles, due to highway straightening and improvements, bringing the driving distance from New York City and Jacksonville, Florida, to only 988 miles.

The Ocean Hiway is the nation's only officially name-marked north-south route. In five states, on more than 750 of its 988 miles, motorists will find helpful metal markers reading Ocean Hiway, in addition to the federal highway numbers. In the northern sector, after crossing the Delaware Memorial Bridge, the official route of the Ocean Hiway is U. S. 13. In the southern sector, from a point just south of Norfolk, Va., the official Ocean Hiway route is U. S. 17 all the way to Jacksonville, Fla.

Congress In Chicago Will Live Long In Hearts N. C. 4-H'ers

By TOM WOOD
N. C. State College

Thirty-six Tar Heel 4-H'ers came back from Chicago recently with sweet, strong memories that will live long in their hearts.

There are memories of thousands of smiles . . . from the 1,500 4-H'ers at the national congress . . . from hard-bitten Chicago natives . . . from top industrialists who help support 4-H . . . from the harried millions of the great hotels . . .

They remember the magnificent horse show at the International Livestock Exposition, the steeplechase with its hifalutin riders . . . the proud champion cows and sheep and hogs . . . They recall the warmth of their hosts, at magnificent luncheons and banquets in the famed Palmer House, the Conrad Hilton, the Sheraton-Blackstone—people like Mrs. Charles R. Walgreen, energetic 81-year-old widow of the drug chain founder. She was there for almost every main event, poving her personal as well as financial interest in 4-H.

They think of Police Sergeant Pepperkorn, a slim man with a friendly face who saw that the delegates got around the metropolis with ease, and still kept the interminable flow of traffic moving. The sergeant seemed to be at every intersection, and always smiling.

They remember the spirit of Christmas that was permeating the city already, the bare-limbed trees diamonded with white lights, the marvelous scenes in the store windows, the jangle of Salvation Army bells amid the roar of the "el" in the Loop . . .

Chicago is a city of all peoples, where the youngsters from the farm mingle with the strolling from a $250-a-plate benefit . . . where a dollar doesn't buy much, but a 4-H'er gets a thousand dollars worth of entertainment free . . . where a top executive of a huge industry chats at a banquet with a delegate from Africa . . .

The 4-H'ers recall vividly their meetings, and how they presided before audiences of two thousand . . . where the spirit of 4-H achievement swelled strongly, firing up the speakers, the hosts, even the entertainers . . .

The delegates will not soon forget the entertainment, which was remarkable even at the special breakfasts . . . the comedian who said it was time to break up the meeting, "so Mrs. Walgreen could get back to her drugstore" . . . the sparkling girl singers, one of them so vibrant and talented that a middle-aged 4-H leader predicted she'd be another Sophie Tucker . . .

One of the lessons of 4-H Congress is learning the inspirational value of topnotch entertainment, and the families of Tar Heel delegates should not blanch when their children seek the higher plateaus of entertainment.

The memory that this whole week is a tremendous tribute to 4-H deeds will bolster the delegates, their parents, their leaders and the 4-H'ers who follow them in living up to the 4-H motto: "To Make the Best Better." For this is why the congress has been held for 39 years and each one seems better than the last. It's a contest of achievement between 4-H and Chicago.

To a great many of the delegates, the finest memory of all is of the final banquet. There the whole Congress, two thousand strong, forms a mighty chorus to sing the "Star Spangled Banner."

And all of the 4-H effort is distilled into a single goal. To live up to the spirit of the National Anthem.

IN MEMORIAM Oscar M. Elliott

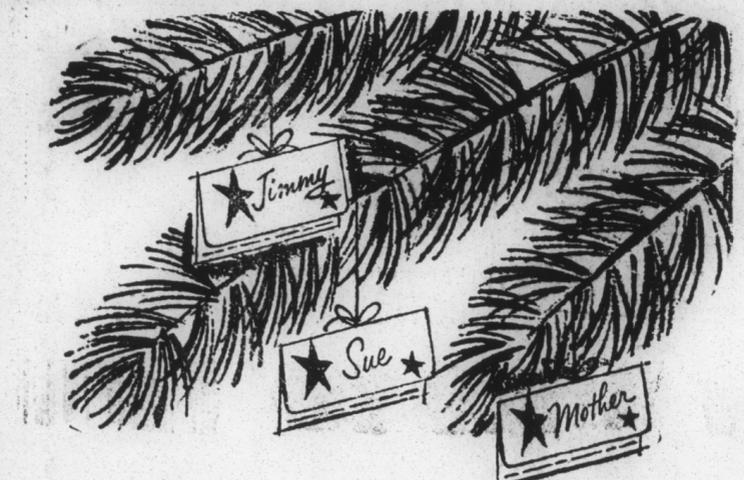

We, the Board of Directors of Edenton Cotton Mill, wish to express our sincere sorrow because of the death of our fellow member, Oscar M. Elliott, who died September 15, 1960. He had been a member of the Board of Directors for twenty-nine years and during this time his continued interest and business judgment had contributed much toward the advancement of the business of the Company. While he was a Director the Mill was improved throughout and the most modern machinery installed. He always was aware of the necessity to keep the Mill in the most modern condition.

In addition to his serving on the Board of Directors, Oscar M. Elliott was the owner and operator of one of the most successful mercantile establishments in Edenton. His fine business acumen led this business into substantial growth to become one of the largest mercantile establishments in the community.

His private philanthropies were not generally known, but over many years he quietly assisted a number of youths in obtaining an education. He was always interested in the betterment of Edenton.

To his wife and members of his family we wish to express our sincere sympathy upon the loss of our fellow member and long-time friend.

JOHN W. GRAHAM,
JOHN G. WOOD,
Committee.
