

The Roundup

By WILBORNE HARRELL

What you will see in 1961: The overthrow of Fidel Castro. Improved relations between Russia and the United States. The rise of Red China as the real threat and menace to the West and Russia, with possible alliance of Russia and the U. S. against this mutual threat. President Kennedy will prove himself as an able first executive, with overtones of F.D.R. Intensified struggle of racial minorities for social justice. More books will be written and published than ever before, with fiction beginning a gradual climb back to popularity. But factual works will still continue to lead the literary field. Certain national magazines will begin to slip or discontinue publication altogether; the day of the leisurely constructed magazine is past—the public wants everything in bite sizes, which will lead to a new tabloid format in magazine publishing. TV viewing will increase, thereby dealing books, magazines, radio and the movies a jolting blow as family recreation and entertainment.

There comes a time in the affairs of nations as well as men when a firm stand must be taken. To name a parallel, things can become somewhat like the shootouts in the Old West, when one must draw the line or allow himself to be completely dominated or killed. That time has come with Cuba—in fact, it has been long due, and this column approves and applauds our country's stand in breaking diplomatic relations with Cuba.

The inconsistencies and irregularities of the English language make it one of the most difficult languages to learn, especially to a foreigner. One foreigner, who has been in this country for many years once said that when he was learning English, on returning an article to a shopkeeper he had received by error, was told, "Thank you, sir, you are a square man, I hope you'll be round again." It took the fellow quite a while to figure out what the shopkeeper meant. Here's another example of our cock-eyed English, if B-O-U-G-H spells bough, why doesn't C-O-U-G-H spell cow? I don't know—do you?

State Of North Carolina Major Beneficiary In March Of Dimes

The state of North Carolina has been the principal beneficiary in the allocation of March of Dimes funds in the states over the past 23 years, it is disclosed in a financial summary prepared by The National Foundation.

More than 88 cents of every dollar from North Carolina's March of Dimes has been put to use in aiding the state's disease victims and in research and education projects conducted by North Carolina institutions. Of the remaining 12 per cent accruing to the national headquarters, a considerable amount also has come back to North Carolina in shipments of polio vaccine and gamma globulin and in other nationwide services conducted by The National Foundation.

The summary covers the period since the first March of Dimes was held in January, 1938, and compares the net total of funds raised in the state with amounts made available to North Carolina through September 30, 1960.

In this period North Carolina chapters of the March of Dimes organization raised a net total of $13,547,058.66 at an average fundraising cost of less than 5 1/2 per cent. Of this amount, $10,642,656.99 has been available to the county chapters in carrying out their extensive patient aid programs, including advances of $4,845,547.08 from the national office to meet local emergency situations.

In addition, 51 grants totaling

$1,253,712.13 have been made in support of research and professional education projects at North Carolina institutions. Principal recipients of these grants have been Duke University, $705,318.85; University of North Carolina, $345,740.82; North Carolina College at Durham, $112,312.05 and Wake Forest College, Bowman-Gray School of Medicine, $90,340.41.

Over and above the 88 per cent used by institutions and county chapters in the state, The National Foundation has financed within the state projects such as the historic field trials which proved the effectiveness of the Salk vaccine, epidemiological studies and scholarship or fellowship grants to North Carolina residents. National headquarters' expenditures for the vaccine trials in North Carolina amounted to $23,420.98. In addition, the national office has sent into North Carolina $134,410.85 worth of Salk vaccine and 278,886 cc's of gamma globulin in

Food Values High In Sweet Potatoes

Sweet potatoes are a real marketing treat for the homemaker who is eager to serve highly nutritious food on a limited budget.

Homemakers have long recognized that sweet potatoes are a size food package brimming with vitamins A and C and loaded with food energy. The daily hued sweet potatoes lend an inviting appearance to most menus whether served as a part of the main dish, as a vegetable, or whipped into a flavorful pie. To accent the natural goodness of sweet potatoes, many menu planners frequently add either cinnamon, cloves, nutmeg, poppy seed, ginger, or apple pie spice. Butter and margarine are a must for the enhancement of both baked and mashed sweet potatoes. Either light or dark corn syrup, molasses, honey and marshmallows are to be found in some of the mashed sweet potato recipe variations. Many nuts and several fruits also team deliciously with this vegetable. For a new idea in preparing sweet potatoes, you may want to serve them French fried. First, peel uncooked sweet potatoes and cut into lengthwise sticks or crosswise slices. Immerse in hot oil until tender and golden brown. Drain and serve immediately. To enhance the flavor, add a maple syrup topping.
