Frankly Speaking

By Frank Roberts

Today's big skewp: Milton Bunch does so worry. However, he doesn't do it very much, and his public never sees a frown. Anytime you wanna fill 'er up at Milt Bunch's you can be sure of a smiling, friendly greeting.

Milt Bunch has operated his gas station for seven years now. Prior to that, he worked eight years for Joe Conger. Prior to that he was in the air force and prior to that he was an assistant manager for an A&P store.

We gathered all this information from both Milt and his lovely wife at their very unusual but very handsome home in Morris Circle. Found out that he was born in Chowan County and graduated from the Gum Pond School. Milt is married to the former Evelyn Harrell, and they are the proud parents of Patricia Ann who's 15; Earl Wayne 13, and little Cynthia, two. Milton, himself, has three brothers and a sister. As mentioned a few paragraphs ago, Milt was in the Air Force. He was a bombardier and served in both the European and Japanese theatres of operation. It was during one particular mission over France, that Milt was shot down. He spent over two months marching through wooded areas and small French towns ducking the Germans, not getting enough to eat and, more often than not, going hungry. He tells of his experiences with a priest in France who tried to patch up his wounded feet. As a matter of fact, it was due to his badly injured feet that Milt received the most coveted award, the Purple Heart. Amongst his other wartime awards: the valued Air Medal. It was after his discharge that he came back home and went to work in one phase of the gasoline and oil business with Joe Conger, then became his own boss in a business that Milt describes as: "nowhere near as easy as it sometimes looks." Long hours are required, a mechanical bent and good judgment. Economically-speaking, summertime is best for his particular business, thanks mainly, to the pick up in the tourist trade. However, he relies on local trade, of course, for the bulk of his business. Speaking of tourists, I was both surprised and happy to find that more travellers than I had thought, take time out to ask about and investigate our many points of interest. Along that line, Milt believes that, at this time, the town is doing as much as it can to promote tourist trade, but, he declares, more should be done to attract industry to our area. By the way, I asked him if he did like Edenton. He said he did, but his wife qualified that with: "you couldn't run him out of Edenton." One of his big reasons for his love of our town is his love of hunting and fishing, particularly the latter. He generally trawls for rock. In summertime, he'll settle for anything that'll bite his line down at Nags Head. Does he eat what he catches? Heck, yes, he'll eat anything except spinach or lamb. Milton Bunch likes eating, fishing, people, life. On television, Milton likes the musical shows, such as Dinah Shore but, as in most everything else, his tastes are varied and he's easy to please. Doesn't go in too much for cowboy shows, though.
