

WITH THE FARM WOMEN

By MAIDRED MORRIS

Anson HD Women Plant New Vegetables

Home Demonstration Club women in Anson County are making plans to plant new vegetables in their gardens this spring.

Mrs. Ada Dalia Pozza, home economics agent, says the Guidance Club members are trying to get Mrs. Walter Redfean, Wadesboro, Rt. 2, to plant seed for broccoli, Brussel sprouts, cauliflower, and kohlrabi and sell plants to them at Barter Day. Mrs. Redfean has already planted her asparagus seed.

Wills and Inheritance Laws

The study of wills and inheritance laws has continued throughout the month to stimulate interest among club and non-club members," reports Mrs. Frances Darden, home economics agent in Washington County.

Mrs. Darden says the laws have been discussed at their community improvement meetings and reports indicate that 20 families have recently made wills.

Family Living Account Books

Four family living account books were completed in Watauga County in 1960," says Miss Jean Childers, home economics agent. "Mrs. Ferd Michael, Mrs. W. R. Vines, Mrs. Clay Robinson and Mrs. David Farthing completed their records."

Mrs. David Farthing said, "Record keeping has meant much to my family and I plan to continue keeping the records."

Quick Tricks With Biscuit Mix

Patricia Phelps of the Greenleaf community 4-H Club in Bertie County, really captured the interest of 4-H girls with her demonstration on "Quick Tricks with Biscuit Mix."

Mrs. Virginia S. Barfield, assistant home economics agent, reports that Patricia made the mix and then made pin wheels, cheese biscuits and muffins. The girls received the recipes to use at home.

Freeze Ahead

Home Demonstration leaders in Mecklenburg County are presenting the demonstrations at local club meetings this month.

Miss Kathleen Nelson, home economics agent, says leaders are teaching the women to look ahead and plan ahead for special days and occasions, are informing homemakers of foods that freeze well; teaching how long foods can be kept in the freezer; giving some general freezing tips; and discussing the sign posts to good, safe, frozen foods.

Teaching Upholstering

Mrs. Hugh Beasley of Graham County, had an opportunity to show her friends and neighbors some things she has done during the past year. The family added a family room to their home and Mrs. Beasley rebuilt and reupholstered two davenports and three chairs.

Miss Nellie Jo Carter, home economics agent, says Mrs. Beasley has saved more than $200 by learning how to upholster at the workshop held in the county. She has also helped neighbors with their work.

No Comment

Assistant Vice President, Government Relations Division of the National Association of Manufacturers

"NO COMMENT" is a report of incidents on the national scene and does not necessarily reflect NAM policy or position.

Washington — The hurdles now being encountered by the Kennedy Administration in its journey toward the New Frontier emphasizes the importance of public opinion in determining the nation's future.

Much of the Kennedy program is being opposed by industry on the ground that it would retard—rather than stimulate—economic growth, would intensify inflationary pressures by increasing government spending and the national debt, and would create a bigger federal bureaucracy to tighten controls over business and over the lives of the people.

Some of the Kennedy program also is being opposed by the AFL-CIO and the Americans for Democratic Action, but only on the ground that it does not go as far to the left as these organizations advocate.

There is conclusive evidence that some Administration officials favor legislation closer to the AFL-CIO viewpoint, but agreed to a modified version in the belief that this would increase the chances of winning congressional approval.

Congress is moving slowly—a situation which provides an opportunity for grass roots sentiment to make itself felt on Capitol Hill. But the congressional tempo could speed up at any time.

It is too early to predict what Congress will or will not do. But there clearly is no widespread agreement with Speaker Rayburn's assertion that the nation's economic condition is the "most urgent since the great depression" of the 1930's. Skepticism regarding the accuracy of the Speaker's analysis serves to discourage any move for pell-mell congressional action.

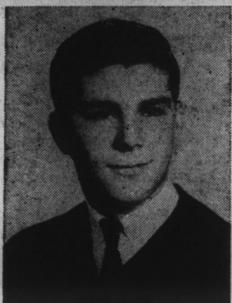

Fear was expressed in some congressional circles that the dismal picture of the economy presented by Speaker Rayburn, by President Kennedy, and by other Administration spokesmen might tend to delay economic recovery.

Many members of Congress point out that most economists are predicting a business upturn in the near future—and that most of the Kennedy legislative program, even if enacted, would come too late to be a factor in this improvement.

Some Capitol Hill veterans have expressed the opinion that

Top 4-H Leader

Clyde, Edwin Davis, 18, of Cornelius, a freshman at the University of North Carolina, returned from Chicago recently as sectional winner in the national 4-H leadership program directed by the Cooperative Extension Service.

Clyde Davis

Clyde participated, along with 1,350 other outstanding 4-H'ers from across the nation, in the 39th National 4-H Club Congress. He was a guest of Edward Foss, Wilson of Washington, D.C., for the trip and stay in the Illinois metropolises.

Active in the 4-H program for eight years with affiliation in two clubs, young Davis was president of the North Carolina State 4-H Council, the Mecklenburg county 4-H Council, his school 4-H Club and the 4-H Achievement Club. He also has been a foreign exchange student to Germany through the American Field Service.

Says Phil Hass, assistant county agent, of this son of Mrs. Clyde O. Davis: "Eddie has done an excellent job in leadership from the local to state level in 4-H Club work."

This university student has selected the field of medicine as his life's work and is convinced that the "every minute I have spent in 4-H work will multiply into a successful future."

Mr. Kennedy is using the present temporary economic situation as a basis for urging congressional approval of long-range welfare legislation sought for many years by the Liberals.

One experienced legislator wondered aloud—no doubt with tongue in cheek—how Mr. Kennedy expected to get Congress to approve foreign aid appropriations when the President's statements indicated that this country desperately needed assistance to relieve its economic plight.

Prolonged controversy was indicated on most of Mr. Kennedy's legislative proposals. For example, Rep. Adam Clayton Powell (D-N.Y.), chairman of the House Education and Labor Committee, predicted that progress would be slow, because of so many different opinions, on the Kennedy proposal to increase the minimum wage from $1.00 to $1.25 an hour within two years and to expand coverage to an additional 4.3 million employees.

Industry opposes the program on the ground that, among other things, it would increase unemployment and stimulate inflation. The AFL-CIO urged an immediate increase to $1.25 and expanded coverage to an additional six million employees.

There is a great deal of opposition, too, to Mr. Kennedy's request for federal subsidies for school construction and teachers' salaries.

Even Speaker Rayburn is opposed to federal appropriations for teachers' salaries. In the past, the House has refused to go along with the Senate in voting such funds.

'Damping Off' Hurts Vegetable Plant Beds

North Carolina farmers should keep a sharp look out this year for "damping off" in their vegetable plant beds, warns J. C. Wells, Extension plant pathologist at N. C. State College.

"Damping off is caused by fungi in the soil which rot the seed or kill the young seedling," says Wells. "In addition, roots are sometimes decayed, resulting in stunted plants. The disease does the most damage during periods of comparatively warm, cloudy weather."

There are several methods of controlling damping off, says Wells. Two consist of plant bed treatments:

Two pounds of methyl bromide per 100 square feet of plant bed.

"This will give excellent control for damping off, as well as control nematodes and weed seeds," he says.

However, in some cases it may be necessary to supplement methyl bromide treatment with fungicide drench treatments, he says. If this becomes necessary, there are three materials which can be used:

The first is 76 per cent Fernbam. "It should be mixed one-half pound to 50 gallons of water and applied at the rate of one-half gallon per square yard," says Wells. "The first application should be made immediately after seeding, with following applications at 10-day intervals until plants are ready to set."

The second material is 50 per cent Captan, mixed two pounds per 100 gallons of water and applied at the rate of one-half gallon per square yard. "The first application should be made immediately after seeding, with following applications at 10-day intervals until plants are ready to set, says Wells.

The third material is Semesan. Farmers should follow manufacturers directions listed on the package.
