

SOCIAL SECURITY Questions and Answers

George Dietrich, field representative of the Social Security Administration, is in Edenton every Thursday at the North Carolina Employment Security Commission office in the Citizens Bank Building.

There are more than 600 social security offices throughout the United States. One is in your town, or close to where you live.

People work in these offices—people who know and understand the social security law. Other people ask them questions about the law and the social security people answer the questions.

When the social security law changes, the answer to people's questions change. For instance: For many years, when people past retirement age, but still under 72 earned $2,080 or more a year, they could not receive their social security benefits. This answer was given to many questions. But now the law has been changed. This causes the social security people to worry. They worry because they would like the people they talked to before to know the new answer to their question.

They would like for all people over 65 who are still working, and who have never applied for social security benefits, to ask: "How much can I earn and still receive some social security benefits?"

Then the social security people could say, "It depends on how much in benefits is payable on your account. The only sure way to find out is to apply for benefits." "Sometimes," the social security people could say to a worker, "you can earn as much as $4,000 in a year and still receive some social security benefits."

Be kind to the people in your local social security office. If you are over 65, still working, and have never applied for benefits, stop them from worrying and apply for benefits. It may mean more money in your pocketbook. It can cost you nothing.

Negro Home Demonstration News

By MRS. ONNIE S. CHARLTON, County Negro Home Economics Agent

Last week at 4-H Camp, twenty-seven 4-H'ers from Chowan and Dare counties had the time of their lives, as they experienced this small democracy in action. There were 123 4-H Club boys and girls at the J. W. Mitchell 4-H Camp, Swansboro, for the entire week.

As we arrived, this message from Mrs. G. H. Blount and W. C. Cooper, District 4-H Club Agents, awaited each camper. It makes clear the part 4-H Camp plays in the total 4-H Club program.

"This year, 1962, marks the 100th Anniversary of the Land Grant College. Before 1862, college education was generally available only to a privileged few. The Land Grant College grew out of a feeling of college and publication education should be made available to the common man. It was also felt that education should prepare young people for the practical pursuits of living. The Land Grant College, the Research Station and the Extension Service make up what we know today as the Land Grant College System.

"The Extension Service is dedicated to sharing the fruits of research with people wherever they may be found, on the farm, in the home or in the factory.

4-H Club work is the youth phase of Extension Service program. Organized camping is a vital education feature of 4-H work. The first known camping for farm youth was the "Farm Boys Encampment" of 1907 in Missouri. Camping, as we conduct it in North Carolina, probably has more of the total ideals of 4-H Club Work tied into it than any other one of the total activities which make up our state program.

"During this week in camp, it is hoped that you will remember that this is a part of the ongoing 'PEOPLES' educational program. To get the most out of any educational endeavor, one must put his best into it; do that for camp this week. We hope your participation in this setting will help you become more tolerant, understanding, kind and considerate of others. As you return to your communities, may the ideals expressed in camping be a part of your actions. May you find here additional inspiration which will cause you to always work 'To Make The Best Better' in your own development."

On Thursday of this week 4-H Club members will tell you via radio, of their experiences while at camp. Listen in at 12:30 P. M.

Those at camp from Chowan County were: Susie Valentine, Diane Jones, Barbara Jerkins, Virgie Dare Elliott, James Slade, Jr., Carolyn Hall, Gerald Perry, Kelsey Fleming, Kay Wardsworth, Joseph Tillet, Adrian Oliver, Paulette Lassiter, Angela Lassiter, and Eddie Charlton.

4-H'ers attending from Dare County were: Wallace Berry, Anthony Boone, Thomas Golden, Dwight Meekins, Percy Daniels, Richard Saunders, Walter Baker, Dora D. McClearse, Brenda Char-

It happened 100 YEARS ago

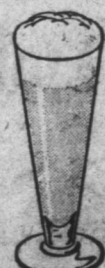

The oldest incorporated trade association in the country, the United States Brewers Association, was organized in 1862... the same year that

IN NORTH CAROLINA arrangements were made to transfer the Confederacy's naval ordnance center from Norfolk to Charlotte because of inland safety and good railroad to Wilmington. North Carolinians saluted this new commerce with glasses of beer.

For even then, beer was North Carolina's traditional beverage of moderation. Beer still provides enjoyment for North Carolinians, and a good living for many of them—not only the employees of the Brewing Industry itself, but also for North Carolina farmers and other suppliers of the materials brewers use.

TODAY, in its centennial year, the United States Brewers Association still works constantly to assure maintenance of high standards of quality and propriety wherever beer and ale are served.

WATERED-DOWN VERSION— This is a "watered-down version" of the once-solemn Buddhist rite for washing away sins. Rangoon, Burma, fire hoses and water cans have turned it into an annual fun-filled water melee.

Gets Silver Wings

First Lieutenant Edward R. Nugent of Baldwin, N. Y., has been awarded the silver wings of a United States Air Force navigator following his graduation from navigator training at James Connally AFB in Texas.

Lieutenant Nugent, a graduate of the University of Vermont, received radar and celestial navigation training in Air Force T-29 "Flying Classroom" aircraft. He is being reassigned to Charleston AFB, S. C., for duty.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Renwick E. Nugent of Baldwin, the lieutenant and his wife, the former Clara A. Comer of Edenton have a son, Timothy.

and find him. Just because the Exiles were driven away from their home, they were not necessarily driven from God. This sublime spiritual truth has blessed all mankind ever since. Distressed though they were over their national collapse, their deeper sorrow, Jeremiah believed, should be their spiritual disobedience. An about face, with repentant heart, would restore them in their relationship to God. In this lay their hope.

The story of bitter experience plunges us, as the Scripture often does, back into the question: Upon what does hope in the midst of tragedy depend? We are reminded that it is not a young man who is counseling the Exiles to hold on to the hope of national restoration. It is an old man. Even if a return could be negotiated very quickly, he would not witness it. Jeremiah was more concerned about his people than he was about himself. He believed that if they could re-establish their relationship to God—the God of their fathers—he would guarantee their ultimate reclaiming of national unity and dignity. This is the cradle of hope in any crisis hour. How anxiously the Free World today awaits evidence that the oppressed peoples of the earth have not altogether lost their will to be free. When he will be freed is paralyzed, and spiritual and moral fibers wither, hope is crushed. To the extent that Jeremiah found these qualities and virtues alive in the Exiles, he held on doggedly to his hope.

The days we live in are fraught with peril. No one, living in a nuclear age such as ours, will attempt to deny this fact. But when the world, or our nation, or we as individuals are in peril, is anything more reassuring than conscious, volunary identification with God's unchangeable and enduring law! We, like Jeremiah, really have a double hope—for hope on two levels. We hope that our nation, our children and our way of life will be brought through the fire of crises and be refined into useful instruments in God's hands. On the other hand, we have an over-coming belief and hope that God's ultimate purposes are being fulfilled. This hope stretches beyond our own lives, and even beyond our nation and the world as we know it, to that wideness of the future that only God can see.

If you take your truck for granted

...it's a good one!

A truck that doesn't call for a lot of attention, that just does its job every day, is a great asset. This is the thing most users tell us they like about Chevrolet trucks—their reliability. And this, of course, comes from quality.

Sound engines, strong frames, double-wall construction, insulated cabs, separated bodies and cabs, tight tailgates... are some of the features that help Chevrolet trucks work longer and bring back more of your investment at trade-in.

If you wish you had a truck that cost you less thought and attention, put your money on quality. Make your next buy a dependable Chevrolet truck.
