

AROUND THE FARMS IN CHOWAN COUNTY
By C. W. OVERMAN, Chowan County Agent

March Reminders On Peanuts And Cotton: Have soil tested and follow report for lime and fertilizer. Break land deep with bottom plow, turning under litter as deeply as possible. Plan to fumigate soil in April or at planting time if Nematodes are a problem. If not already on hand, secure good seed peanuts; N. C. 2, N. C. 4X or Va. 56R are the varieties recommended by the Extension peanut specialist. Secure good cotton seed of varieties REX, DeKalb 108, Coker 100W or some new variety that has proven good in your area.

Chowan County Junior Livestock Show And Sale: The 1963 Junior Livestock Show and Sale is scheduled to be held at the Privott and Asbell warehouse at Chowan-Cross Roads on Wednesday, March 27. 4-H and FFA participants must do everything possible to have their animals in top-notch shape for this event. If this annual event is important as we believe it is in the development of our youth and the livestock industry in Chowan County, then it is important enough for our farm people and also our city people to attend the event and support it. We realize that a single county show and sale cannot be as large as one on an area basis, but it has something special to offer Chowan County. This is Chowan County's Junior Livestock Show and Sale and support is necessary to keep it going if it is worth it.

National Poison Prevention Week: The week of March 17-23 has been declared National Poison Prevention Week by President Kennedy. This will be the second annual observance of the week. One big thing it can do is to make us conscious of the importance of respecting poisons, particularly insecticides and fungicides that we use on our farms. Careful and safe storage out of the reach of children and careful and safe use of these pesticides are very important for everybody's safety.

Hints Making Gardening Easier: The home safety program guide of the National Safety Council offers the following to make gardening safer and easier: "As spring approaches, the gardening urge is apt to strike. Digging in the soil and planting seeds has an outdoor spring-time appeal. "One of the first things to remember is to take it easy, especially at the beginning. The day you start spring garden activities, your skin will undoubtedly be tender. Blisters may develop very easily; they should be given prompt attention. If you overdo, sore and aching muscles, sunburned back, or even more serious penalties may be your reward. "For a starter, select some of the lighter jobs. Short sessions of raking, stooping, lifting, and carrying are good ways to condition yourself for strenuous gardening activities that may lie ahead. Avoid scooping up piles of rubbish with the hands; use a shovel. "Tools should also be conditioned before major gardening starts. The cutting edge of a spade, the hoe, or cultivator should be sharpened with a file. Inspect the handles of garden tools and make sure they are free of splinters that may cause wounds and invite infection. "Although hoes and rakes are simple tools, they should be handled carefully especially where more than one person is working in a small area. Carry the tools in your hand rather than over the shoulder; if they are put on the ground, place the blades or tines down. When the day's work is completed, tools should be cleaned and returned to their proper place."

Countries are well cultivated, not as they are fertile, but as they are free. —Montesquieu.
