

Owners Of Homes Opened To Public For Pilgrimage Guests At Meeting Of Woman's Club

Owners of homes which will be opened to the public during the three-day Pilgrimage of Edenton and Countryside were guests of the Woman's Club at their April meeting.

The club's bi-annual tour is scheduled for April 19-21 and arrangements are being completed for the event.

Mrs. R. Elton Forehand, Jr., club president, expressed to the homeowners the appreciation of the club for opening their doors for the tour. She told them the Pilgrimage could not be possible without their splendid cooperation.

Mrs. A. F. Downum, assisted by Mrs. J. D. Barnhill, arranged an interesting program on Williamsburg gardens and arrangements. Slides were shown with Mrs. Downum as narrator.

The membership was advised an invitation has been accepted to exhibit the restoration and beautification project of the Court House and Green at a seminar in Winston-Salem April 26-28. The seminar is being sponsored by the National Trust fleet upon our great heritage," he said, "we are looking ahead to the future with confidence that North Carolina will remain in the forefront."

Mr. Mitchener then introduced the special guests who occupied the stage of the auditorium.

Senator B. Everett Jordan and Congressman Herbert Bonner spoke prior to Postmaster General Day.

Mr. Jordan expressed his appreciation to Mr. Day for granting the state the commemorative stamp and commended the North Carolina Tercentenary Commission for its efforts in stimulating more interest in the history of North Carolina.

Mr. Bonner spoke more at length. He pointed out the events leading to the signing of the Carolina Charter. He called for rededication to the fundamental principles and ideals of our forefathers, saying, "we must again study and learn to appreciate the history of our nation. A dedicated study of all of us of the heritage of our nation will add luster to its future."

Mr. Day said the new stamp represents a fine merger of the aims of the Charter Tercentenary Commission and the Post Office Department and that it is making Americans aware of the historical significance of the state.

He said he had adopted a policy of limiting commemorative issues to 15 a year, a drastic reduction from previous years, explaining that too many commemorative stamps dilute the significance of any one person or event. He listed other commemorative issues which will honor Amelia Earhart, Eleanor Roosevelt, Montgomery Blair, centennial of West Virginia's statehood, Emancipation Proclamation, Food For Peace, Battle of Gettysburg and a science stamp in conjunction with the 100th anniversary of the National Academy of Science.

At the conclusion of his remarks, Mr. Day presented 12 leather-bound albums to President John Kennedy, Governor Terry Sanford, Senator Sam J. Erwin, Jr., Senator B. Everett Jordan, Representative Herbert for Historic Preservation, the N. C. Department of Archives and History, Old Salem, Inc., and the N. C. Society for the Preservation of Antiquities.

Other business transacted included decision to send $20 to State Headquarters to purchase a chair; contributed $25 to the Cancer Loan Closet for the purchase of bed rails; urged completion of the Cancer fund drive solicitations as soon as possible; and the membership was advised telegrams had been sent to Senators N. Elton Aydtlett and J. J. Harrington, Jr., urging their support of a legislative bill which would require seat belts in all new automobiles.

Guests included Mrs. J. G. Wood, Sr., Mrs. J. G. Wood, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Bond, Mrs. W. B. Rosevear, G. H. Harding, Mrs. R. D. Dixon, Jr., the Rev. and Mrs. Fred Drane, the Rev. and Mrs. George B. Holmes, the Rev. and Mrs. T. W. Allred, Mrs. J. W. Davis, Mrs. J. O. Perry, Jr., Mrs. M. K. Mobley, Mrs. David Wright and Mrs. Floyd Frizzelle.

Bonner, Representative Charles R. Jonas, Under Secretary of Agriculture Charles S. Murphy, Assistant Postmaster General Richard Murphy, Francis E. Winslow, Mayor John A. Mitchener, Postmaster J. L. Chestnut and Mrs. Ernest Ives of Southern Pines, sister of Adlai Stevenson.

Mr. Day also asked visiting postmasters to stand, about 30 in number, and led in a round of applause.

Following this program about 200 repaired to the Masonic Temple, where a delicious dinner was served by members of the Eastern Star.

Here again a delightful program was presented with Mayor John Mitchener acting as master of ceremonies. A number of the guests spoke including Francis E. Winslow of Rocky Mount, chairman of the Carolina Charter Tercentenary Commission. He said the Commission agreed that it was here in the Albemarle that this ceremony should be held and expressed his appreciation to Mr. Day for his good sense in selecting the Carolina Charter as one of the events to commemorate this year.

Following the dinner many of the visitors were taken on a tour of some of Edenton's historical shrines.

The Girl Scouts of Troop 8 met April 8, 1963. We had the flag ceremony. The president called the meeting to order. The scribe called the roll and read the minutes. Dues were collected. The girls that had not finished their first class requirements worked on their requirements. The other girls helped the ones that hadn't finished. We were served refreshments by Nellie Furlough and Jean Tribeau. Nellie served drinks and Jean served potato chips. The meeting was then dismissed.

vanced the idea that the town hardsurface the area back of Belk-Tyler's which, he said would accommodate approximately 125 cars. He also stated that he had approached the County Commissioners relative to tearing down the large warehouse back of Hotel Joseph Hewes in order to provide parking space.

No action was taken, but Mayor John Mitchener instructed Mr. Harrell to meet with the Finance Committee to investigate the cost and other angles to be considered to hardsurface the area.

Junius Britton appeared at the meeting on behalf of the newly formed Bell Battery Gun Club. Mr. Britton requested the town to allow the club to take up the old cannon at the corner of Granville and Church Streets.

which would be cleaned up and mounted on wheels. One of the purposes of the club is to preserve old relics. At present there are about 20 members in the club.

Tax Supervisor W. P. Mayor Mitchener appointed a committee to meet with a committee from the County Commissioners to consider these valuations.

The application of Hattie Bonner for a beer license on Oakum Street was approved.

Before adjourning the Councilmen authorized Clerk W. B. Gardner to advertise 1962 delinquent taxes the second Monday in May, and called for a special meeting Wednesday, April 17 at 8 o'clock.
