

Chowan County Joins With Other Counties To Assure 4-County Health Clinic

Ministers of County Present a Resolution Wholeheartedly Favoring Participation

Meeting jointly Thursday night Chowan County Commissioners and members of Town Council were briefed on community planning. The guest speakers were George Monaghan, administrator of the Division of Community Planning of the Board of Conservation and Development, and Bruce Briggs, chief area planner.

Mr. Monaghan pointed out the advantages of proper planning for a community and the importance of studying the trends and suggestions to solve various problems. He said the Division of Community Planning is now working with 70 cities in the state and that it will work with a community for a two year period.

He said Congress in 1954 realized the dilemma of small towns, so that machinery was set up for the federal government to pay two-thirds of the cost and one-third to be raised locally. The cost, he pointed out, would depend upon how elaborate the planning program was.

Quite a few questions were asked by the Commissioners and Councilmen, so that it was decided to consider further the idea of a planning program before any definite action is taken.

Following this meeting members of the County Commissioners went into special session primarily to consider the proposed mental health clinic for four counties, Pasquotank, Perquimans, Camden and Chowan. The Commissioners had previously considered participation in the program, but had taken no action. Attending this meeting also were local doctors and members of the Chowan Hospital board of trustees.

At the outset W. E. Bond, chairman, explained the county's position financially. He said that to finance Chowan County's part of the program would mean a slight increase in the tax rate, or a similar amount could be cut from the annual hospital appropriation or do away with the civil defense or water resources programs, or even use a levy from the rural fire protection levy.

The suggestion to cut the hospital appropriation immediately brought opposition on the part of several at the meeting. Mr. Bond also stated that he had spoken to a number of taxpayers who were not wholeheartedly in
