A LIFT FOR TODAY

Lead me in the way everlasting.—Psalms 139:24.

Faith fixed in God's goodness and power will destroy fear and doubt. God will lead us if we trust him, for there is no security for us apart from Him.

Give us faith, O God, to recognize Thy presence and sustain us with Thy strength when we call upon Thee in true humility and belief.

Volunteers Needed

Attention is called to a story on the front page of this issue of The Herald relative to the need of volunteer workers for Edenton's Girl Scouts.

The Girl Scouts is a great voluntary organization providing Scouting opportunities to two and two-thirds million girl members. Three-fourths of a million adult members give of their time and abilities to enable girls to have this worthwhile experience. Only one-fourth of one percent are professional workers.

During the 51 years of Girl Scouting, the organization has been vital and alert to the needs of local and national communities of the world.

The Edenton Girl Scouts are sponsored by the Edenton Woman's Club and are now part of the Virginia Tri-County Girl Scout Council. The Council will provide training and direction for the local troops.

However, local persons must provide the leadership here. Workers are very much needed to insure the continuance of the local program. Leaders and assistant leaders are especially needed as well as workers in other capacities.

About 90 girls are expected to participate in the local program for the coming year. There will be a Brownie Troop for the second and third grades, two junior Girl Scout troops for fourth through sixth grades and one troop for Cadettes for grades seven through nine.

Contributing of your time and efforts to this worthwhile cause will not only provide personal satisfaction but will have a permanent influence in making this a better community for future generations.

Anyone interested in sharing in this great program is asked to contact the chairman, Mrs. J. P. Ricks, Jr.

Worthy Of Note

It is interesting to note the progress made by the Pettigrew Regional Library for the fiscal year ending June 30, as prepared by Mrs. Robert Campbell, chairman of the board of directors.

Though real progress has been made during the past year, there are many goals yet to be reached, according to Mrs. Campbell. With the exception of two and one-half months the regional library has had no director. Now, however, a new director, Mrs. Rebecca Scoggin, is scheduled to take over the duties on September 9. With continued cooperation and with equal interest for the best library service in each of the three counties in the Pettigrew Region, it is reasonable to expect progress to continue, so that even more books will be read and a larger number of the citizens in Chowan, Tyrrell and Washington counties to receive library service.

It should be a source of pride to library officials that during the fiscal year 1962-1963 books were circulated by the library. This was an increase of 3,995 books over the previous year. This record was made possible by the untiring efforts of an efficient staff, a loyal regional board, aid from city and county officials, newspaper editors, radio managers, the State Library and many friends in the Pettigrew region. All of the above are aware that a reading public is a well informed public and with the services of an experienced director look forward to continued service and success of the library.

Why Read?

Why learn to read?
This sounds like a silly question but there are so many people who seldom seek to expand their mental vision through the simple process of reading a book.

With public libraries available there is no need for an individual to go to any unnecessary expense to become informed. For a few cents or less, a volume can be stirred upon almost any subject that interests the indi-

Heard & Seen By Buff

Earl Smith and the weather man apparently are not on good terms. Earl had his annual fish fry at his store in the Rocky Hock section Tuesday night and, as was the case the last few years, the weather man sent down a goodly amount of rain. But despite hell and high water, Earl went through with the fish fry—and a very good one it was. Glancing at the crowd which gathered one sort of got the idea that about half of the county's population turned out to fill up on fish, slaw, cornbread, iced tea and even a cookie for dessert. Due to the inclement weather, the crowd was obliged to go through the store to be served and eat wherever room could be found. Every available space in the store was used and many ate in automobiles. Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie Curran and Mr. and Mrs. George Hoskins managed to rig up a "table" on top of a string of grocery carts. Some squatted down on the floor to eat but Wilmer Malone spied a vacant space on a shelf about six feet high, which he used as a "table". Earl's store was completely packed for an hour or more, so that anybody who might have wanted to hurriedly buy a loaf of bread or some other item would have been out of luck. Yep, Earl had 'em packed in his store for a spell, but I didn't hear the cash register ring a single time. As usual, it was a very good fish fry and one to which a host of Earl's friends look forward to with a great deal of pleasure each year about this time. At most fish fries in the county Paul Ober has his hand in frying fish, but Tuesday night he was only a "spectator"—and eater.

F. F. Tanner, who lives at Charles City, Va., was among those who sent in renewals for The Herald. In a brief note Friend Tanner wrote: "Dear Buff—Just a note along with check to say hello, trust that everything is well with all of you. My wife has been after me for some time to send money to have paper subscription renewed before we were cut off. As you know, she is an Edentonian and looks forward in receiving the paper each week, of course, I have to look it over, too. I can recall many happy hours that I had while living in Edenton with you good people. By the way, I was through Edenton about two weeks ago and my good friend West Leary, as usual, gave me a nice watermelon. Hope that old Pembroke Creek will have some nice crappie in it this fall, as I want to get down that way for a few days of good fishing. So tell them to be getting fat and wait until fall to bite at minnows on a hook".

The gang at the Post Office is called upon to do any number of things, but they are not in the parking business. The other day somebody put in a mail box an Edenton parking ticket—maybe because the mail box is painted partly red. And then, maybe the party concerned didn't know where in the devil the little red parking ticket boxes are located.

Women apparently like to be complimented upon the clothes they are wearing, but one such compliment the other day was not so complimentary so far as the one to which the remark was directed. The remark went something like this: "My goodness, that dress looks so good on you especially for as many years you have worn it."

Speaking about the boys at the Post Office, a marked change has taken place so far as one of the gang is concerned. Bill Sexton didn't care so much about the crop of gray hair on his head, so he had the whole top of his dome dyed black. He created a good deal of excitement the first day he turned up with his new "hair-do" and was the target for a lot of kidding. Nathan Owens, however, refrained from saying anything about it, for Nathan doesn't even have enough hair on his head to have it dyed.

Chowan Ruritan Club is sponsoring a benefit barbecue chicken supper at the Center Hill-Cross Roads Fire Department Saturday night, August 17. The supper will be served from 5:30 to 7:30 o'clock and the proceeds will go to Luther Bateman, Jr. Ruritans are hopeful that a large crowd will turn out in order to get a good meal and at the same time help a very worthy cause. The upper Chowan County firemen know the art of barbecuing chicken, so that here's one who can recommend a good meal—even if a fellow has to park about half way to Center Hill.

Roy Emminizer has come up with an idea which, if it materializes, should be very interesting and provide a lot of entertainment. Roy was a member of a team that played the first football game in Edenton back in 1906, and says he'd like to have a reunion of as many as possible of the men who played on game, which was played with a team from Washington, neither team scored but Roy, who was called the ram-rod, came out of the game just about all in. Regarding the idea, Roy says maybe some of the boys would play a little between halves of one of the Edenton Aces' games. I told him he would not be able to secure the same kind of uniform. "Uniforms," said Roy, "shucks, we didn't even wear a uniform." Anyway, Roy has a clipping listing some of the players as follows: Meredith Jones, Joe Elliott, Lillian Thompson, Squires, Kermit Ferebee, Roy Emminizer, Edward G. Bond, Lloyd Burton, Wendlinger, Happy Yerts, Cutler Wozelka, Andrew Bateman, Ernest Bell and J. E. Skidoo. Looking over that list, most of them are now dead, but Roy would like to get those who are still living back in Edenton for a reunion.

BUTTON REPLACEMENT—Streetcars of Zurich, Switzerland, are equipped with a car in which the conductor has been replaced with a button, used by pre-paid passengers.

Roy L. Collins In 'Operation Flagpole'

Roy L. Collins, yeoman seaman, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Collins of Edenton is serving aboard the amphibious force flagship USS ESTES, a Seventh Fleet unit, which recently participated in a joint U. S.-Republic of Korea amphibious exercise dubbed "Operation Flagpole" and conducted near Seoul, Korea.

The training exercise involved 67 ships plus numerous Marine air and ground units of both nations.
"Flagpole" is similar to other operations periodically conducted by Seventh Fleet units with armed forces of Far Eastern countries to improve proficiency in amphibious maneuvers. It is aimed also at maintaining close working relationships between allied nations.
The ESTES normally operates out of San Diego, Calif.

SENATOR Sam Ervin SAYS

Washington—Foreign aid hearings, the condition of the Federal Treasury, and the tax program came back into sharp focus in Congressional activity last week. Earlier in the session these were the top issues. Again they have emerged in the President's special message on the "balance of payments" crisis, and hearings being conducted on foreign aid, the tax program, and the extension of the $309 billion national debt ceiling.

The House Ways and Means Committee has been marking up a tax measure which may go before the House for its action before Labor Day. If the House does act affirmatively on the tax bill by September 1, the Senate Finance Committee will begin its hearings to consider such legislation. Any tax legislation on the Senate Floor still appears to be several months away.

Debate on the national debt ceiling may be postponed until fall when a clearer Congressional picture will have emerged on both appropriations and proposed revenues. Last week the House Ways and Means Committee voted to extend the present temporary $309 billion national debt ceiling to November 30.

The seriousness of the "balance of payments" deficit for our country is outlined in the President's special message to Congress of July 28. The term "balance of payments" reflects our U. S. international banking dollar balance of trade receipts and expenditures. Over the years since World War II the trade balance for the United States has turned from rosy to gray. This unhealthy "balance of payments" condition brought the Presidential message to Congress. I am gratified that the President proposed a number of needful remedies to curb our dollar outflow. However, it seems to me that one significant remedy ought to be used to a much greater extent than the message offered. I refer to our foreign aid payments which represent a continuing drain on our dollar resources.

Last week the House Foreign Affairs Committee marked up tentatively the 1964 foreign aid authorization bill at $4.1 billion. The bill is still under consideration by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Since our foreign aid commitments have over a period of years contributed in large measure to our "balance of payments" deficits, it would seem appropriate that any realistic remedy for the situation should begin with one of its major causes. We ought to address ourselves toward an honest answer to the question of whether the U. S. Treasury and our Federal monetary system can continue to carry too heavy a burden with respect to our foreign aid expenditures.

Witnesses, who are admitted to be experts in the field of economics, come time after time before Congressional committees dealing with the financial troubles of the Federal government and express the opinion that our Federal Treasury is attempting to carry too heavy a burden for its tax revenues. Year after year I have stated that in my honest judgment we are unwise to imperil the monetary system of our nation with burdens in the foreign aid field that are beyond the limitations which the dollar can bear.

I do not believe that the problem which is now admittedly serious can be solved without drastic cuts in foreign aid. Congress and the nation ought to recognize the problem which has been spelled out by the Administration. The dollar is imperiled by a growing danger from continuing trade deficits. The facts ought to be recognized for what they are, and the nation ought to no longer ignore the need for realistic cuts in our foreign aid program.
