REPORTS

From WASHINGTON

Washington — During the past week many millions of people all over the world have been celebrating the 10th Anniversary of the United States Information Agency.

The USIA—as we know it and as it is known throughout the world—was set up ten years ago to carry the message of America to all parts of the world through broadcasts, newspapers, magazines, libraries, and other means of communications.

North Carolina has had a special place in the development of the USIA for several reasons.

First of all, the present Director of the USIA—the world-famous radio and television commentator, Edward R. Murrow—is a native North Carolinian. Mr. Murrow's predecessor was also a North Carolinian, the Honorable George V. Allen.

This means that for a good part of the ten years the USIA has been in existence native North Carolinians have had a direct hand in guiding its course and in developing it into one of the most highly respected information organizations in the world.

There is another reason that we in North Carolina are proud of the USIA.

In eastern North Carolina near Greenville there is located the world's largest radio transmitter, and it is operated by the USIA. The facilities near Greenville transmit radio broadcasts to all points of the earth, and to give you some idea of its strength this complex is equal to more than 90 radio stations of the 50,000-watt size.

It is estimated that many millions of people throughout the world listen to the regular programs of the Voice of America which are transmitted from North Carolina each day. In times of crisis, this number jumps into the hundreds of millions of people, and it gives us in the United States a unique way of reaching people behind the Iron Curtain and giving them the message of freedom and the United States at a time when world opinion is so sensitive to world conditions.

At times we may wonder in North Carolina just what we are contributing to the cause of freedom and our struggle with Communism, but we can take pride in the fact that we are at the very forefront in the contributions we have made to the USIA.

Library in Edenton, Chowan County; Tyrrell County Public Library in Columbia; two branch libraries, Brown-Carver at Edenton and the Washington County branch in Plymouth.

Two bookmobiles tour the three counties and serve six schools in addition to all patrons in the three counties.

The region's new director, Mrs. Rebecca Scoggin, will assume her duties on September 9th. There are two additional professional librarians in the region.

A total of nine full time and part-time persons are employed in the system, in addition to substitutes.

Staff members were held in the headquarters library every two or three months. They were valuable workshops.

The staff of the Pettigrew Library for the year 1963-64 includes the following:

Director—Mrs. Rebecca Balentine Scoggin, reporting September 9.

Librarians Washington County: Mrs. C. E. Ayers, Washington County branch, Mrs. Maytor Simon. Tyrrell County: Mrs. W. V. Reynolds.

Chowan County: Shepard-Pruden, Miss Marion L. Robertson; Brown-Carver, Miss Hattie Jerkins.

Bookmobile librarians for the region: Mrs. Bryan Harris and Mrs. Verdie Alexander.

New Bridge-Tunnel Is On Schedule

17, the Ocean Highway. Edenton will benefit greatly from this additional tourist business.

For the first time, a physical connection now exists between the Virginia mainland and the Eastern Shore. It was made Wednesday with the driving into the bay bottom of the final pile for this tremendous project.

The 126-foot concrete pile was the 2,640th driven to support the 12.2 miles of concrete roadway—about two-thirds the total length of the world's longest bridge-tunnel, Byrum said. Placing of the roadway deck will be finished by the end of September, it was stated.

No celebration is planned, said Byrum, although the event will end a 2-month task that started at the south edge of Chesapeake Bay, March 28, 1961. The real celebration, of course, will be in March next year when the first of the traveling public's vehicles will begin crossing the completed span.

be beyond community distance of training facility to which he is referred for training.

The beginning date for these courses is September 9, 1963, for auto-truck mechanics and September 16 for the stenographer class.

"Since the processing of applications is time-consuming," says William A. Hollar, manager of the Edenton Employment Security Commission office, "I would like to urge anyone interested in these courses to apply as soon as possible."

The closing date for accepting applications will be announced at a later date.
