

Two Training Classes In Edenton Are Scheduled To Begin On September 30

Applications Still Being Taken In Case of Possible Last Minute Vacancies

William A. Hollar, manager of the Edenton Employment Security Commission office, announced early this week that the auto-truck mechanic and stenographic courses to be offered in Edenton will begin on Monday, September 30.

At present, Mr. Hollar reports, a sufficient number of individuals have qualified to fill both the auto-truck mechanic and stenographic classes. "We will, however," says Mr. Hollar, "continue to take applications for these courses in order that we may fill any last minute vacancies which may occur."

Mr. Hollar also says there is a possibility that individuals interested in some other type of training could be enrolled in similar courses in other areas of the state.

"We have a current listing of all training being given and contemplated over the state," says Mr. Hollar, "and we will be glad to discuss these courses with any interested individuals."

Clayton Letcher On ECC Religious Quest

Dr. Samuel S. Hill, Jr., chairman of the religion department at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, will be guest lecturer at a student-faculty quest at East Carolina College Saturday and Sunday.

This is the first religious activity of its kind at the college. Sponsored by the Inter-Religious Council, an organization composed of one student representative from each organized religious group on the campus, the retreat will take place in ECC's Y-Hut.

Among the discussion leaders will be Clayton O. Letcher, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Letcher, former Edentonians. Mr. Letcher is an ECC senior psychology major.

Gatesville Attorney Says Country Is Now In Midst Of Social Revolution

The Constitution of the United States was 176 years old Tuesday. In recognition the Edenton Tea Party Chapter, DAR, is sponsoring the local observance of Constitution Week September 17 through September 23.

This week was designated by Congress in 1956 and has been proclaimed by the President. Mayor John A. Mitchener has proclaimed the week locally.

Under the chairmanship of Mrs. P. S. McMullan, assisted by Mrs. Blair Gibson, the week will be publicized locally. Every citizen is asked to learn more about this great document and uphold it.

Merchants have been requested to fly the American flag as part of the observance. Posters have been placed at the Edenton Furniture Store and the Shepard-Pruden Memorial Library. Also at the library are special book markers commemorating the week. Constitution Week will be publicized in the newspapers, on the radio and at the theatre. The schools will conduct special programs on the Constitution.

A Pilston Godwin of Gatesville, attorney and former State Senator, addressed the Edenton Tea Party Chapter, DAR, on the Constitution of the United States at the Chapter meeting Tuesday night, September 10, at the Edenton Restaurant as part of the observance of Constitution Week.

In discussing the historical background of this great document Godwin pointed out that the Constitution specifically states the powers delegated to each branch of federal government, the powers reserved to the states and to the people.

It also clearly provides for amending the Constitution, he said. In recent years, he said, the Supreme Court interpretations have resulted in the Su-
