SOCIAL SECURITY Question and Answer

George Dietrich, Field Representative of the Social Security Administration is in Edenton every Thursday and is located in the old Municipal Building.

One of the three major types of protection provided through social security is protection against the loss of family income because of the death of the family breadwinner.

Widows and children of recently deceased workers come in to the Greenville social security office daily to find out of they are entitled to monthly social security survivors payments. Some people do not inquire about their entitlement, however, and lose—or stand to lose—large amount of money.

Because it wants to pay all benefits that are due, the Social Security Administration has for many years urged people to check with a social security office any time a death in the family occurs. Such inquiry will help prevent misunderstanding about the requirements for monthly survivors payments. It will help prevent loss of benefits to eligible people who make the mistake of assuming they cannot get benefits.

Almost every working person has had earnings covered by the Social Security Act, and the record of those earnings is especially important to the families of workers who die. That record will usually show whether the person worked long enough and earned enough to permit payment of benefits. It will also be used to calculate the amount of the monthly benefits payable to a worker's widow and children.

Nine out of 10 young children and their mothers can count on these survivors benefits to help keep the family together if the breadwinner dies. The average benefit paid to widowed mothers with two children has been about $193 a month. It can be as high as $254 a month. The lowest benefit payment for widows and children is $60 a month.

Checking with social security if someone in your family dies is a most important thing to do. A lump-sum death payment can usually be made to a widow or the person who pays the burial expenses, even when

Learners Permit Rules Outlined

New regulations governing the issuance of learner's permits for young drivers became effective July 1, the Motor Vehicles Department announced this week.

Elton R. Peele, the agency's driver license director, said after mid-year, examiners will issue permits to beginning drivers contingent upon the following qualifications:

The applicant must be at least 15 years old and have signed permission of his parent or guardian.

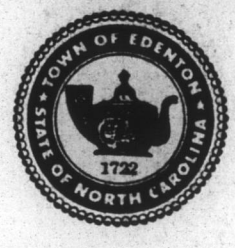

He must also have completed an approved driver education course, Peele said.

The learner's permit is valid for daylight driving only and a regularly licensed parent or guardian must accompany those using the learner's permit.

RESIDENTIAL ELECTRIC RATE REDUCTION AND ADOPTION OF NEW COMBINATION RESIDENTIAL, HOT WATER HEATING AND HOME HEATING RATE

Dear Customer Owner:

The Board of Public Works of Edenton, N. C., announces a reduction in residential electric rates to become effective on July 1, 1965. This rate change will reduce electric revenues approximately $7,000.00 per year, and in all cases the new rate is equal to or less than Virginia Electric & Power Company's residential rate.

The new rate is as follows:

FIRST 50 KWH @ 4.5c
NEXT 50 KWH @ 3.5c
NEXT 100 KWH @ 2.4c
NEXT 200 KWH @ 1.8c
NEXT 200 KWH @ 1.7c
OVER 600-KWH @ 1.4c

A new combination Residential Electric, Hot Water Heating, and Home Heating Rate was also adopted. Any one having an electric hot water heater may qualify for this rate. This rate in all cases is also equal to or less than Virginia Electric & Power Company's comparative rate.

The new rate is as follows:

A rate of 1.0c per KWH will be charged for 50% of the monthly use in excess of 100 KWH; the balance of the monthly use will be billed as follows:

FIRST 50 KWH @ 4.5c
NEXT 50 KWH @ 3.5c
NEXT 100 KWH @ 2.4c
NEXT 200 KWH @ 1.8c
NEXT 200 KWH @ 1.7c
OVER 600 KWH @ 1.4c

Those customers having time controlled hot water heaters may at their option qualify and be billed on the new combination rate. This rate will give the customer the advantage of having continuous electricity available to heat hot water anytime during the 24 hour day. This combination rate will be cheaper than the regular residential rate and time controlled hot water heating rate to those customers who have a consumption of 100 KWH or more on their regular residential meter than on their time controlled hot water meter.

The Board also announces that effective July 1, 1965, the time controlled electric hot water heating rate will no longer be available to new customers. However, those customers using this rate may continue to do so at the location they presently occupy, but should they move this rate will not be available at their new address.

Those customers having an electric hot water heater that is not time controlled should notify the Town Office immediately so that they may be billed on the new combination rate.

This is the third reduction of residential electric rates in 13 months, and the Board is proud to be in a position to offer you, its customer owners, the services of the Department at the lowest possible cost.

Yours truly,
