Sandra Hare Realizing Her Lifetime Ambition

MURFREESBORO — Sandra Hare, 19, of Edenton, has wanted to be a nurse as long as she can remember and is being helped to realize her ambition through a Don G. Matthews, Sr., scholarship award of $500 that she is receiving for the second straight year in Chowan College's 33-month program of education for nursing. The scholarship is given by Don G. Matthews, Sr., of Hamilton, whose son, Don,

SANDRA HARE

Jr., a member of the newly organized North Carolina State Highway Commission, is a member of the Chowan College Board of Trustees. Matthews neither chooses nor recommends recipients, but this is done by a Scholarship Committee.

Sandra is one of eight girls who started with the program of education for nursing at Chowan, a unique program recently accredited by the North Carolina State Board of Nursing with headquarters at Raleigh, which uses facilities at Roanoke-Chowan Hospital at Ahoskie, N. C., and Duke Medical Center at Durham, and is completely supervised by and under the auspices of Chowan College. Sandra and others pioneering in this program were joined by 40 new nursing students when school opened this year.

"I've wanted to be a nurse as long as I've been alive, I guess," she says, "at least since I was just a little tiny thing. I just love everything about nursing; the white uniform, the cap, the smell of a hospital, glamorous doctors, everything."

She worked for two summers at Saint Anne's Home, at Charlottesville, Va., an affiliate of the University of Virginia Hospital. She says that this work was meaningful to her because she was helping crippled and handicapped children. "It strengthened my desire to become a nurse."

Sandra is one of five children of Mr. and Mrs. Worth Hare, Sr., of Edenton. Her older sister, Gail, is in India with the Peace Corps. "Gail is so much like me," says Sandra. "She wants to help people."

Younger sister Iris, 17, is a student at John A. Holmes High School at Edenton; Sally Beth, 11, is at Edenton Elementary School; and Worth, Jr., four, "stays home sometimes."

Sandra is proud of Chowan's program of education for nursing. "We just started administering medicines give shots, are using compresses and dressings, and learning so much. Best of all, we gain valuable experience while learning."

Interest in nursing and ambition seem to be marks of Sandra's family. A cousin, Susan Hare, helped organize candy-strippers (young volunteer hospital helpers) at Edenton's Chowan Hospital. "She really enjoys it," Sandra explains, "and she wants to be a nurse."

Dormitory life has become more exciting than ever this year for Sandra and the other second-year nursing students. "New nursing students come to the dorm, ask questions and discuss nursing with us," she says. "We get to almost live, eat and breathe nursing."

"I think it's a great program," she says of Chowan's education for nursing, "and hope that, in the future, it expands. Then I can look back and say, 'That's the program I graduated from.'"

Sandra deeply appreciates the scholarship aid she receives. "Mr. Matthews is a wonderful man. He is helping me realize a life-time dream, the only ambition I ever had. I correspond with Mr. Matthews, and I always let him know how I am doing."

She also receives a scholarship from the Roanoke-Chowan Hospital and will work there after graduation. "I want to work in the operating room," she explains, "because I feel that is where I am most needed and where I can be of most help."
